JOHNSON SPEAKS UP FOR STATE'S RIGHTS

California's Dignity, and Not Japan's, Is at Stake Now, Says the Governor.

BRYAN STARTS WESTWARD

Meantime a New Alien Land Bill Is Drafted Based on the Federal Citizenship Law.

Special to The New York Times.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 24.—Gov. Johnson issued a statement in regard to the Alien Land bill to-day, in which he upheld the doctrine of State rights and said that California should be able to legislate as it saw fit without such a stir of public opinion throughout the country. He maintains that what this State is trying to do is only what other States have done, and that there is no reason why California should be singled out for criticism by the Federal Government or any one else when it is debating proposed laws that are within its constitutional rights.

The Governor makes the point that not the dignity of Japan but the dignity of California is at stake in the controversy over the alien land law. The Executive absolves the State from blame on the ground that Federal statutes already have drawn the line which the State now seeks to establish.

Gov. Johnson defined the position of the legislative majority in the matter, trusting that Secretary Bryan, who is on his way from Washington to Sacramento to present the views of the Federal Administration, might learn thereby the attitude of California toward a law denying land ownership in the State to aliens barred from citizenship in the Nation.

The Governor's statement follows:

The suggestion of the President that the Secretary of State visit California for conferences on the pending land bills was at once accepted by both houses of the Legislature and by the Governor, and we will be glad to welcome Mr. Bryan.

While the Legislature very properly maintained the right of the State to legislate on a matter clearly within its jurisdiction, I am sure there is no disposition to encroach on the international function of the Federal Government, or justly to wound the sensibilities of any nation. My protest has been against the discrimination to which California has been subjected in the assumption that action which has been accepted without demur when taken by other States and by the nation, is offensive if even discussed by California.

Says Nation First Discriminated.

I am not predicting the California Legislature will take any action on this subject, nor, if it does, forecasting the terms of any law which may be enacted. I am merely defending the right of California to consider, and if its legislators deem advisable, to enact a law which is clearly within both its legal power and its moral right.

Much has been said of the dignity of Japan. We would not willingly affront the dignity of Japan, nor offend its pride. But what shall be said of the proposition that a great State, itself an empire, of possibilities greater than those of most nations, shall be halted from the mere consideration of a legislative act, admittedly within its jurisdiction, by the protest of a foreign power which has itself enacted even more stringent regulations on the subject? What of the dignity of California?

Admittedly, California has a right to pass an Alien Land bill. No one suggests that such a bill should in terms describe the Japanese. It has been suggested that such a law in California shall follow the distinctions which are already an unprotested part of the law and policy of the United States.

"The United States has determined who are eligible to citizenship. The Nation has solemnly decreed that certain races, among whom are the Japanese, are not eligible to citizenship. The line has been drawn not by California, but by the United States. Discrimination, if it ever occurred, came and went when the Nation declared who were and who were not eligible to citizenship. If California continues the line marked out by the Federal Government, the United States, and not California should be accused of discrimination.

Washington's Land Law.

"The Constitution of California since 1879 has said that 'the presence of foreigners, ineligible to become citizens, is declared to be dangerous to the well-being of the State, and the Legislature shall discourage their immigration by all means in its power.' The alien land law of the State of Washington provides that 'any alien, except such as by the laws of the United States are incapable of becoming citizens of the United States may acquire and hold land,' &c. The State of Arizona in 1912, enacted that 'no person not eligible to become a citizen of the United States shall acquire title to any land or real property,' &c.

No protest was made against this policy of the laws of the United States, nor against its adoption into the laws of Washington and Arizona. If the Legislature of California were to determine on similar action it would be merely following the declaration of our Constitution, the policy of the United States Government, and the precedents of at least two States.

We protest, while we are merely debating similar laws, against having trained upon us not only the verbal batteries of Japan, but those of our own country. The position that we occupy at this moment is not pleasant to contemplate. Calmly and dispassionately we are discussing a law admittedly within our province to enact. Objection is made by Japan, and forthwith it is demanded that we cease even discussion, and upon us, if we do not cease calm and dispassionate consideration of that which is desired by a great portion of our people, and which we have the legal and moral right to do, is placed the odium of bringing possible financial disaster, and even worse, upon our Nation. What a position for a great State and a great people!

This question in all its various forms is an old and familiar one. The only new thing about it is the hysteria which it seems to arouse when California is the place in which it comes up.

My protest has been and is against this discrimination. This State will not willingly do anything to which there could be just objection, National or international. But it does resist being singled out on matters which pass unprotested when they happen elsewhere.

Assemblyman Stuckenbrueke of San Joaquin and Senator Campbell introduced resolutions to-day calling for a conference of the Governors of Pacific Coast States to be held in this city while Mr. Bryan is here. The idea is to bring the Governors together for a general discussion of the proposed land

STOTESBURY SHOWS RICHES

Displays Hundreds of Thousands to Make Bible Students Save.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—At the last rally of the Drexel Biddle Bible Classes held in the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Camden to-night, E. T. Stotesbury, financier and art patron, showed several hundred thousand dollars' worth of gold bonds to his audience of 1,500 young men to awaken in them the desire to save. In his address, Mr. Stotesbury dwelt on his earlier struggles and success in the business world, and warmly advised his hearers to practice the elementary virtues of hard work and thrift. He said in part:

"My object is to speak to the young in order to teach them to provide for a life of usefulness. What I have done others can do. There is no miracle in great material success. No greater opportunities ever existed than to-day.

"I started in 1866 with no college education; nothing but a public and private school education. I went into the banking business with the elder Drexel at a salary of $16.60 per month. When I had worked for fourteen months I received $200 as a Christmas present from the firm. This I saved. It was my start. Mr. Drexel then raised my salary to $500 a year."

Mr. Stotesbury spoke of the necessity for character, which must be possessed by every successful business man. He asserted that the truly successful man was the one whose word was as good as his bond.

"Character is credit, and when a man has good credit it means in the business world that he has a good character," he added.

In the opening sentences of his speech he said that, although he had spoken on many public occasions, he never had done so with as much pleasure as when addressing "men and women whose aim in life is to assist others in preparing for the hereafter."

SEE THE GREAT FOR A DIME.

Boys in Fifth Avenue Profit by the Curiosity of Visitors.

Four boys, who had been collecting tips for carrying grips and suitcases for travelers at the Grand Central Station, broke away from that field of endeavor for a time yesterday and tried living by the intellect.

One lad of vision had seen a prospect of an easier, fuller life, when he looked upon the crowd which on fine days gathers within the grounds of the New Library. Their amusement is gazing at the crowds passing on Fifth Avenue and trying to identify those in automobiles. The guards have learned that the people on the walks in front of the library are for the most part visitors, for whom the Fifth Avenue procession has a fascination.

The leader of the four boys had also discovered this. The plan which he outlined to his three friends was agreed to, and yesterday morning the four arrived at the library wearing large badges, which had formerly belonged to horse-car conductors and committeemen. They separated, and each took a different territory in front of the building.

"I'm one of the official guides," said the leader, accosting a man who held his wife by the hand, while both stared at never-ending lines of automobiles going up and down the avenue. "We point out the big men who pass by for a dime."

Each of the others likewise explained that he was a living "Who's Who" and knew every man and woman in the city worth being stared at. And whenever the camera-eyed youths could find a stranger trusting enough to pay the fee, the avenue would teem with famous men until the customer was considered to have seen ten cents' worth.

They were driving a pretty fair business for two or three hours. In the afternoon, however, they became too prodigal with millionaires. Somebody grew suspicious and asked one of the gray-uniformed library guards about it. And the four boys had to return to manual toil.

STAND UP, WOODY! HE DOES

Wilson Admonished at Ball Game—Breaks Away to Meet Bryan.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—President Wilson wrestled with conflicting desires as he watched to-day's Boston-Washington baseball game. He went to the contest hoping it would be over in time for him to meet Secretary Bryan in the White House at 5 o'clock for a final conference before the Secretary took a 6:45 train for the Pacific Coast.

The game was close and exciting and reached its climax as the time approached for the President to leave. Washington had overcome Boston's lead, tying the score at 2 to 2, and things were breaking well for the Washington nine. The President looked at his watch regretfully and told Secretary Tumulty that if his engagement had not been with the Secretary of State he might have been tempted to be a little late. He departed reluctantly, and was cheered as he went.

The President occupied a box in the upper balcony of the grandstand. When, according to custom, the local fans arose at the beginning of the seventh inning, Mr. Wilson remained seated.

"Stand up, Woody," shouted a voice, and the President joined in the laughter that followed. He waved his hand to the shouting fan and stood with the crowd amid cheers of approval. Miss Eleanor Wilson and Dr. Cary Grayson, one of the naval aids at the White House accompanied the President. They stayed throughout the contest.

COAL COMBINATION BROKEN.

New Laws in Jersey Restore Real Competitive Bidding.

One of the effects of the new "Seven Sisters" laws was revealed yesterday in Newark when bids were received for a coal supply for the Post Office. It was the first time in the history of the Coal Exchange that there was any competitive bidding, the prices ranging from $6 to $6.35 a ton. It also became known that there would be no more coal-rate fixing by the New Jersey Coal Dealers' Association.

When bids for coal were asked for by public institutions and manufacturing and other concerns heretofore many were received, but only one price was quoted. That price was fixed by the Exchange. It now appears that the Exchange has quietly submitted to the new laws, notwithstanding that they do not become effective until July 4.

At a recent meeting of the New Jersey Coal Dealers' Association a resolution was introduced by Jonas C. Canniff, President of the coal organization, putting the coal dealers on record as complying with the new "Seven Sisters" laws. The resolution was adopted and copies were sent to all of the members of the Exchange.

CHANGE OF VENUE TO BLOCK WHITMAN

Tammany Influences Reported Behind a New Plan to Save ex-Inspectors.

HOPE FOR A LONG DELAY

With Cases Sent Up-State Trials Would Not Take Place Before Whitman's Term Expires.

A new move to circumvent District Attorney Whitman and his graft investigation is under way. Tammany Hall influences are said to be behind this latest attempt to block the attack on the system, and they hope by this plan to put off the conspiracy trial of the four former Harlem Police Inspectors, Sweeney, Hussey, Murtha, and Thompson, until after the Fall election and until another District Attorney can be elected.

The first inkling of this move became known yesterday when it was announced that counsel for the four Inspectors were considering making a motion for a change of venue. The lawyers for the defense include John B. Stanchfield, who was retained only yesterday to represent ex-Inspector Thompson; George Gordon Battle, Francis L. Wellman, Alfred J. Talley, Arnold L. Davis and Abraham S. Gilbert. These lawyers had an all-afternoon conference and considerable contention developed, it was learned. Mr. Battle and Mr. Wellman favored asking for a change of venue, while Mr. Stanchfield led the opposition to such a move. It was said that Mr. Battle's camp triumphed and that a motion for a change of venue would probably be made on Monday.

The first and very obvious reason for asking for a change of venue for the ex-Inspectors, of course, would be to get rid of Justice Seabury, before whom the Inspectors' trials are scheduled to begin next Tuesday morning. Justice Seabury disposed of the Hartigan and Robinson trials in rapid order. Patrolman Hartigan, who was convicted for perjury, got two and a half years in Sing Sing. Patrolman Robinson was convicted of extortion and will be sentenced to-day.

Justice Seabury showed no kindly disposition toward the police in either of the cases. If the case was delayed for only a few weeks, it was pointed out, the defense would only steer clear of Justice Seabury and steer directly into the path of Justice Goff, who sentenced Lieut. Becker, the four gunmen, and ex-City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde, also in uncompromising fashion. The Inspectors would rather be tried before Justice Seabury than before Justice Goff. The point is that they do not desire to be tried by either.

If a change of venue was granted, it was pointed out, the trial of the ex-Inspectors would be taken up-State somewhere, far away from the city and the "anti-police atmosphere." But the up-State courts would be adjourned for the Summer before the trial could be moved. Then there would be a delay until the Fall term, some time in October. A little thing like a few weeks' more delay might then very easily mean a new election and a new District Attorney.

The reason that Mr. Stanchfield in yesterday's conference did not favor a change of venue, it was explained, was because he had had an experience in the Hyde case which he has not yet forgotten. Hyde asked for a change of venue and produced hundreds of affidavits to show that he would be unable to get a fair trial in New York County. The motion was denied.

It can be said on good authority that District Attorney Whitman will fight to the last ditch to prevent the granting of a change of venue in the case of the four Inspectors. He is most anxious to have the trial begin on Tuesday. He has repeatedly announced that he is ready, not only for the conspiracy trial, but for a string of bribery trials that are to follow.

As a first step in the programme of delay Mr. Stanchfield, for Thompson, and Mr. Battle, for Sweeney, yesterday sent notice to Mr. Whitman that they would this morning ask permission of Justice Seabury to withdraw their clients' formal pleas of not guilty and to demur to the indictment. The notice did not come as a surprise to the District Attorney.

The grounds for entering a demurrer were not stated. It is more than probable that the old "accomplice" argument will be renewed, but an application for the dismissal of the blanket indictment on this ground has already been denied by Justice Seabury. Mr. Whitman said yesterday that the finding of the indictments against the four former Inspectors was in every way regular. Mr. Whitman, it is expected, will personally appear in court when the arguments are heard this morning.

The Grand Jury yesterday took up the investigation of the $30,000 hush fund which is said to have been the price for Hartigan's "loyalty" to the police graft system. The only witness examined was Claus Bohling, proprietor of the Hotel Sinclair in East 125th Street. It was in the back room of his hotel, Mr. Whitman learned, that an agent of Hartigan intercepted an agent of the "system" while Hartigan was in the Tombs awaiting a decision of his application for a certificate of reasonable doubt. Bohling is said to own a string of hotels in Harlem. When he came from the Grand Jury room his face was much flushed. He refused to be interviewed. It was said that he might be called again by the extraordinary Grand Jury next month to tell what he knew about graft in Harlem.

Lawyer Newell and Patrolman Fox were callers on the District Attorney during the afternoon. These men, in fact, are frequent callers at the Criminal Court building. Newell, it was said, has had his memory refreshed considerably since Mr. Whitman won a confession from him. He has applied his legal knowledge to the District Attorney's advantage and is now busy in patching up the prosecution's case against the Inspectors.

Harry Kopp, attorney for Patrolman Robinson, convicted of extortion, said yesterday that he would this morning appear before Justice Page in the Special Term of the Supreme Court and ask for a certificate of reasonable doubt for his client.

"Robinson has nothing to confess," said Mr. Kopp. "He is innocent. Nor is any fund being raised for him. No one has even been so kind as to furnish him with counsel fees. Robinson is a much injured man."

HOWARD SIPP FINED.

Informer's Son Summoned to Court for Auto Law Violation.

Howard Sipp, son of George A. Sipp, the informer against the police graft system, was fined $1 yesterday, in the Harlem Court, by Magistrate Levy, for violation of one of the city automobile ordinances. Young Sipp appeared in court on a summons served by Motor Cycle Policeman Haggerty, who testified that Sipp had run his automobile in Seventh Avenue, near 145th Street, with the muffler open.

Young Sipp has figured prominently in District Attorney Whitman's graft investigation. He was in Newark with his father when Lawyer Newell delivered the bribe fund, which constitutes the basis for the blanket indictment charging conspiracy against ex-Inspectors Sweeney, Hussey, Murtha, and Thompson. He has been a Grand Jury witness on several occasions.

MR. BRYAN DEFENDS GRAPE JUICE FEAST

Explains That He Solaced Ambassadors with Words Instead of Wine.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—In view of the wide publicity given to the fact that only unfermented grape juice and mineral waters had been served at the diplomatic dinner given by the Secretary of State and Mrs. Bryan in the New Willard Hotel last Monday in honor of the British Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, Secretary Bryan made a public statement this evening on the subject in behalf of Mrs. Bryan and himself. Although Mr. Bryan did not say it in so many words, the inference from his statement was that he had thought the fact that he and Mrs. Bryan were opposed to serving wine at table might be a bar to his appointment to the Cabinet because it was customary for the Secretary of State to have wines at official dinners in honor of members of the Diplomatic Corps.

That there might be no misunderstanding, Mr. Bryan put the question squarely to Mr. Wilson when the President invited the Nebraskan to enter the Cabinet. He asked Mr. Wilson if the objection of Mrs. Bryan and himself to having wine served at their own table would be any embarrassment to the Administration. Mr. Wilson left the subject to the discretion of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan.

The statement by the Secretary was given to the press in typewritten form. It makes known that when the British Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce and seven other Ambassadors, several with their wives, assembled at the Secretary's table last Monday evening Mr. Bryan made a little speech, in which he told them that he and Mrs. Bryan were teetotalers and never had served wine to their guests. He told what he had said to President Wilson when the Executive asked him to become Secretary of State and he gave the President's response. In his statement Mr. Bryan says his remarks "were applauded and we never spent a more enjoyable evening." Here is the statement:

"We did not intend to magnify, by mentioning it, the importance of the non-use of wine at the dinner given to Ambassador Bryce Monday night, but as the papers have made some inaccurate references to the matter the facts might as well be known.

"This was the first dinner which we have given to members of the diplomatic corps and therefore the first time when we came into conflict with the social custom of serving wine at dinner. The seven other Ambassadors then in the city and their ladies were invited to meet Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, and as all the gentlemen guests present were from foreign countries, I thought it proper to explain to them the reasons for our failure to conform to what seems to have been customary in this matter.

"Believing that the issue should be met frankly in the beginning, I told them when we sat down to table that Mrs. Bryan and I had been teetotalers from our youth, as were our parents before us, and had never served liquor at our table; that when the President was kind enough to tender me the portfolio of State, I asked him whether our failure to serve wine would be any embarrassment to the Administration, and that he generously left the matter to our discretion.

"I suggested that I thought it unfair to assume that those coming to us from abroad would judge us harshly or be willing to tolerate the maintenance of a traditional custom, and expressed the hope that our friendship would be made so apparent to them and our hospitality so cordial that they would overlook this weakness in us, if they regarded it as a weakness. My remarks were applauded by the company and we never spent a more enjoyable evening.

"That is all there is to the matter, and we can consider the incident closed and the custom established, so far as we are concerned."

The failure of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Bryan to have wine served to their guests caused a buzz of comment in diplomatic circles, and the buzz became so loud that the story soon was known all over fashionable Washington. Certain of those who attended the dinner apparently thought the failure to serve wine was a joke on themselves, and that the joke was too good to keep.

The wide interest shown in news dispatches and editorial comment surprised the Secretary. To those who asked him to-day about the dinner Mr. Bryan had little to say beyond what was contained in his statement. He explained that for many years Mrs. Bryan had made grape juice in their home in Nebraska, and they had found it a delicious and wholesome drink. He admitted smilingly that grape juice had been the beverage served at the diplomatic dinner on Monday night, although it was not of Mrs. Bryan's making.

"WISHYWASHINGTON."

English Suggestion Inspired by Mr. Bryan's Wineless Diplomatic Dinner

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 24.—The Pall Mall Gazette, commenting on Secretary of State Bryan's teetotal banquet, says:

"Official life in Washington under the Wilson-Bryan régime holds out little prospect of gaiety. The long accumulated experience of man demands wine to make glad the heart on festive occasions.

"We fear that the capital of the great Republic is destined to be known as 'Wishywashington.'"

FIRE NEAR POWDER ON GRANITE STATE

Crew Risk Their Lives Fighting Flames on Old Civil War Vessel in the Hudson.

With two tons of gunpowder in her magazines, the old Granite State, formerly the battleship New Hampshire, a famous relic of the civil war, now used as a training ship for the First Battalion of the State Naval Militia, took fire in some unknown manner early this morning at her dock at the foot of West Ninety-eighth Street, and furnished the Police and Fire Departments with considerable excitement before the flames were finally extinguished. Neighboring vessels were in great danger for a time.

Incidentally, the commander and crew of the ship, consisting of a hundred men, gave a splendid account of themselves in rescuing the apparently doomed vessel from complete destruction and in preventing the explosion of the two deadly magazines, which were in the stern of the vessel and directly within the zone swept by the flames.

The fire started shortly after midnight, and the flames were first discovered by Seamen Klemm and Frazer, who aroused their shipmates and hastened to notify Commander Raynor, who was asleep in his cabin. Commander Raynor immediately ordered all hands on deck and dispatched Seaman Fornes to turn in a fire alarm, while the crew at the direction of their chief officer, fought the flames.

Commander Raynor sent six seamen into the stern and succeeded in flooding the magazines, although the men were almost strangled by the heavy smoke. Upon the arrival of the regular Fire Department Commander Raynor ordered all his men to leave the ship for the dock, and it was then discovered that more than a dozen had been overcome by the smoke.

The regular fire fighters speedily recognized that the fire was a serious one. A second alarm summoned Deputy Fire Chief Burns, who immediately ordered that a third alarm be sent in. Hearing that the attempts to flood the magazines might not have been successful, Chief Burns requested Commander Raynor to cast off and take the old ship away from the pier and out into the channel as she was lying alongside of the United States cutter Wasp and there were a number of other craft in the vicinity.

Commander Raynor told off eight men and boarded the burning ship with them. Four were ordered to go below to the engine room and start the engines, while the others busied themselves in response to orders on deck, preparing to cast off. Before the ship was gotten under way, however, the Deputy Fire Chief rescinded his directions, and assured Commander Raynor that the flames could in all probability be fought without danger or the necessity of moving the ship.

Meanwhile on the wharf Dr. Baxter, from the J. Hood Wright Hospital, was kept busy resuscitating sailors who had been overcome by smoke. Not a single case was serious enough to demand the removal of the patient to the hospital, but in all about ten cases of partial asphyxiation were treated. The names of only four victims were given out. These were Seamen J. Maxwell, Charles Noars, William Finneran, and Donald Lloyd. Seaman John Doyle fell from a guy-rope into the water and was rescued with difficulty by his shipmates. He was treated by Dr. Baxter and revived after some difficulty, but refused to go to the hospital.

After Deputy Fire Chief Burns had rescinded his original order to take the burning ship out into the channel the commander of the revenue cutter Wasp decided to take no chances with his vessel, and the Wasp backed away from the dock and anchored in midstream. Shortly afterward the fireboat Velox arrived, and directed four streams upon the Granite State. After an hour's fight the fire was finally brought under control.

While the firemen were working strenuously to save the historic old hulk, Seamen Gallagher, Hexter, and Treloyd organized themselves into a volunteer salvage corps and succeeded in lowering and saving eight of the twenty-six life boats on board the Granite State. Other seamen followed suit and were able to rescue a considerable quantity of small arms and other equipment from the flames.

During the fire, police reserves held a crowd of several thousand sightseers from the pier for fear of an explosion.

Trifling Fire on the Finland.

A fire last night on the Red Star liner Finland, lying at her pier, 61 North River, caused about $50 damage. The flames caused some excitement on the pier when they shot up the open hatchway. The Finland arrived in port from Antwerp on Tuesday, and sails again for that port to-morrow morning.

HILL TO BUILD FOUR LINERS.

Order Reported Placed for Big Craft for Oriental Service.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 24.—James J. Hill has ordered four large passenger ocean liners, according to dispatches received from St. Paul to-night. It is said that the order for the steamers has been placed with an Eastern shipbuilding concern, and that the approximate cost will be more than $15,000,000.

The fact that the Hill interests ordered the building of two boats two months ago for service via the Panama Canal gives weight to a supposition that extraordinary results are expected from the canal opening.

Besides using the new vessels for passenger and freight business between Puget Sound and Australian ports and the Orient, it is believed that an agreement will be sought whereby British mail from the Far East will be carried across to the United States and thence to London. This route would be one week shorter than the Asiatic route.

WATERPLANE'S HIGH MARK.

Army Officers Break Altitude Record Twice in a Day.

ANNAPOLIS, April 24.—The hydroaeroplane altitude record was broken twice here to-day. Lieut. P. N. L. Bellenger of the Marine Corps about noon ascended 3,710 feet. Later in the day Ensign Victor Herbster climbed to 4,450 feet. The former record was 3,500 feet, made by Lieut. John H. Towers of the navy.

The flights to-day were made to test a new six-cylinder engine with which both machines were equipped. Ensign Herbster was accompanied by W. S. Daniels, a mechanician. He was forty-five minutes in making the ascent, but came down in four minutes.

YACHT CLUB MOVES FOR NEW CUP RACE

A Committee Will Take Up Lipton's Challenge with the Ulster Yacht Club.

ACTS AT SPECIAL MEETING

Sir Thomas's Challenge Says His Boat Will Be Named Shamrock IV. and Will Be a 75-Footer.

The action of the New York Yacht Club at a special meeting last night makes a yacht race for the America's Cup in 1914 reasonably certain. The reply to Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge for a race with Shamrock IV. was neither a declination nor an acceptance, although the appointment of a committee to confer with a committee of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, the challenging party, indicates a virtual acceptance with conditions to be determined at a later date.

Sir Thomas has challenged under "the same regulations as governed the last contest" for the America's Cup, withdrawing the condition contained in his former challenge that the New York Yacht Club shall meet his boat with one of a similar length, which is 75 feet. He names Shamrock IV. as the challenging boat and leaves the question of conditions as to sail area and water line open for future adjustment. He, however, selects Sept. 10, 12, and 15 as the dates for the races, with further races, if necessary, on each following Thursday, Saturday, and Tuesday, until finished.

The challenge was considered at the special meeting of the club, which was presided over by Commodore Dallas B. Pratt, and attended by Vice Commodore George F. Baker, Jr., Rear Commodore J. P. Morgan, Harold Vanderbilt, and about 250 members, with thirty-five yacht owners voting. The challenge follows:

Royal Ulster Yacht Club,
Bangor, Co. Down, Ireland.
April 8, 1913.

To Secretary New York Yacht Club,
New York:

Dear Sir: I am requested by Sir Thomas J. Lipton, Bart., K. C. V. O., to forward you this challenge for the America's Cup, subject to the same regulations as governed the last contest, and which proved to be so satisfactory, namely, the best three out of five races, over the same courses with like starts and other details.

The first race to be sailed on Thursday, the 10th day of September, 1914.

The second race to be sailed on Saturday, the 12th day of September, 1914.

The third race to be sailed on Tuesday, the 15th day of September, 1914.

Further races, if any, to be sailed on each following Thursday, Saturday, and Tuesday until finished.

I, therefore, on behalf of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, and in the name of Sir Thomas J. Lipton, a member of the club, challenge to sail a series of matches with the yacht "Shamrock IV.," against any one yacht or vessel constructed in the United States of America for the "America's" Cup.

The following are the particulars of the challenging vessel:

Owner.........Sir Thomas Lipton, Bart., K. C. V. O.
Name of yacht....."Shamrock IV."
Length on load water line....75 feet
Rig.............................Cutter

The Custom House measurement will follow as soon as the vessel can be measured for registration.

I shall be much obliged if you will cable the receipt of this challenge.

(Signed) E. F. PATTERSON,
Honorary Secretary Royal Ulster Yacht Club.

The reply, which was offered as a resolution and was unanimously adopted, will be cabled to the Royal Ulster Yacht Club as follows:

Pursuant to a resolution adopted at to-night's meeting the Commodore was given power to appoint a committee, of which he shall be one, which committee shall have power on behalf of the New York Yacht Club to take such action in relation to the challenge of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club as it shall deem proper, and in the event it shall accept the challenge under the deed of gift, then to arrange the conditions thereof.

Committee—Commodore Dallas B. Pratt, Lewis Cass Ledyard, E. D. Morgan, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Henry Walters, C. Oliver Iselin, C. Ledyard Blair, George F. Baker, Jr., J. P. Morgan, Arthur Curtiss James, W. B. Duncan, and G. A. Cormack.

The Royal Ulster Yacht Club has appointed a committee with similar power.

Committee—Lord Shaftsbury, Commodore; Col. Sharman Crawford, Vice Commodore; J. C. Lepper, Rear Commodore; Herbert Brown, E. F. Patterson, R. E. Workman, and H. L. Garrett.

The members of the committee appointed by the New York Yacht Club to confer with the Royal Ulster Yacht Club will be notified this week, and a meeting will be held in the near future, when the question of rules and other details will be considered.

It is possible that the committee will be unable to agree upon rules. It is understood that the New York Yacht Club will insist upon the old rules regarding the sail area and water line, while it is possible that Sir Thomas will seek to sail under the international or universal, rule, in which event the committees may disagree and the races will then be sailed boat for boat without restrictions.

Sir Thomas has announced that his new challenger will be a 75-foot boat. He has given H. Nicholson, the builder, an order for the construction of two yachts of this length. It is understood that he will use one for a trial boat and afterwards send it to the Pacific Coast to take part in the international races in 1915.

Although it would be possible for the Reliance to be raced against Shamrock IV., it is not thought that this is at all likely, but that the defending boat will be the same length as the challenger. It was intimated that two, and perhaps four, 75-foot boats will be built in this country and a series of trial races held to select the fastest boat to defend the cup. The attempt on the part of the New York Yacht Club to sail a 90-foot boat against a 75-foot yacht would be regarded as unsportsmanlike, and although the Reliance would probably have been again selected had the challenger been of the same length as the old defender, the time allowance that would be necessary for the British boat leaves little doubt as to the building of a new boat.

J. P. MORGAN AT HARTFORD.

Will Decide What Treasures Are to be Placed in Memorial Building.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, April 24.—J. Pierpont Morgan, to-day paid his first visit to Hartford since his father's funeral. He was met at the station by Senator Walter L. Goodwin and went direct to the Morgan Memorial Building.

It is understood that Mr. Morgan's visit to Hartford may have much to do with the selection of such of the Morgan treasures as are to be placed in the Morgan Memorial here.

EXPLOSION ON IMPERATOR.

Eight Men Badly Hurt—The Ship Not Damaged.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON WITH THE TURKEY TROT.

Waldo Agrees to Withdraw Policemen from Murray's.

The police ban on turkey trotting and tango dancing at Murray's Restaurant, on West Forty-second Street, was lifted yesterday.

Upon assurances from Commissioner Waldo that he would withdraw his men from the rooms of the Supper Club, a society formed to circumvent Mayor Gaynor's embargo on the dancing cabarets, James V. Cleary of 309 Broadway, the club's attorney, withdrew his application for an injunction against the police.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Hahlo, who had consented to several adjournments of the injunction application, did not object to its withdrawal.

McMANIGAL SOON FREE.

Confessed Dynamiter Will Seek Retreat Where He Is Not Known.

LOS ANGELES, April 24.—Ortie McManigal, the confessed dynamiter and chief witness against the McNamara brothers, who has been a prisoner here two years, will be released within thirty days, according to attachés of the District Attorney's office.

McManigal himself said to-day that he had no information regarding prospective liberty, and maintained that when he turned State's evidence against the McNamara dynamite crew he did so to ease his conscience and not for any consideration of immunity.

McManigal, it is understood, will receive his liberty without restriction, and will make his way promptly to some place where he will be unknown to "start life over again."

R. WANAMAKER FOR PARIS?

Wilson May Be Urged to Appoint Him, Though a Republican.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Pennsylvania politicians in Washington discussed with interest to-day a report that President Wilson would be asked to appoint Rodman Wanamaker of Philadelphia, son of John Wanamaker, as Ambassador to France. Mr. Wanamaker is said to have been first suggested for that post by Representative Diffenderfer.

The understanding among the Pennsylvanians is that he is a Republican, and if he is urged for the Ambassadorship it will be upon the grounds of his familiarity with French affairs, due to his long residence in Paris.

"HYDROGEN" WAS ALCOHOL.

Smugglers' Big Haul Out of Proposed Transatlantic Air Trip.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, April 25.—A telegram from Madrid to The Daily News says:

"The much-talked-of transatlantic balloon trip has been made the medium of carrying out a most ingenious and audacious fraud on the customs.

"A Teneriffe telegram announces that 1,834 tubes, ostensibly containing hydrogen, but in reality filled with 200,000 liters of alcohol, were smuggled into Las Palmas under the very noses of the customs officials, who unconsciously aided in a loss of revenue amounting to £8,000, ($40,000.)"

MISS WILSON AGAINST VOTE.

President's Daughter Thinks Women Do Not Need Suffrage.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 24.—Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President, sounded the keynote in the session of the council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to-day. Directly after the council was opened Miss Wilson was introduced. She received a very enthusiastic greeting.

"Splendid hospitality has been shown to me," said she. "I thank you heartily. Let me plead for women to take an active part in politics. Let them work from a social centre, when public questions are concerned, and have their opinions heard. In this way—and mainly in this way—can the real woman make her influence be felt."

Strong approval met the sentiment of the brief address.

"Did you mean that women should use the suffrage?" was asked of Miss Wilson.

RALEIGH NEWS BURNED OUT.

Home of Secretary Daniels's Paper Destroyed with $100,000 Loss.

Special to The New York Times.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 24.—The plant of The News and Observer, owned by Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, was destroyed by fire this afternoon.

The origin of the fire is unknown. When the shifts were changing, at 6 o'clock, and the big building was almost deserted, the blaze started in the composing room. Six linotypes, the stereotyping outfit, the presses, and the records of the paper were destroyed. The loss is $100,000, not fully insured.

News of the destruction of his newspaper plant was received by Secretary Daniels last night at The Associated Press dinner, as told elsewhere in THE TIMES. The Secretary immediately after the dinner started for Raleigh.

MISS BORDEN MAY BE ON STEAMER AT SEA

Father Will Wireless Captain of Cincinnati to Learn if She Is on Board.

HAS NO OTHER TRACE OF HER

Recently Had Detectives Take Her from the Custody of Mrs. Helen White in Washington.

After an all-day search for his daughter, Ramona Borden, who disappeared Wednesday from the Adams Sanitarium at Pompton, N. J., in company with two women, Gail Borden communicated with Police Headquarters in this city shortly before midnight and requested that detectives be sent to confer with him. Pending their arrival he called up the Burns Detective Agency and engaged private investigators to work on the case.

Mr. Borden, in his apartment at the Hotel Manhattan, talked with a TIMES reporter shortly before midnight. He said he had spent the day searching for his daughter, but had not obtained the slightest clue to her since she disappeared from the Hotel Navarre in Newark, where the two women left her late Wednesday afternoon, after taking her there in a touring car from the sanitarium.

"I am most anxious to communicate with Mrs. T. A. Backe of 677 St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn, and Miss Helen Webb, a schoolmate of my daughter," Mr. Borden said. "Women answering their description were in the touring car in which my daughter was taken away from the sanitarium, and I want to learn from them if they can throw any light on the situation."

Mr. Borden described Mrs. Backe as a friend of Mrs. Helen Maloney White, wife of a chewing gum manufacturer. He said that his daughter was visiting with Mrs. White in Washington a week ago. A dispatch from Washington says that Miss Borden was taken from the custody of Mrs. White in Washington a week ago by detectives employed by her father and sent to the sanitarium at Pompton.

Miss Coagland, the companion engaged to attend Miss Borden when the girl was taken to the Adams Sanitarium, told Mr. Borden yesterday that when she was in the touring car with the two women and Miss Borden she observed a suit case with the initials "M. A. B." Mr. Borden said last night he would endeavor to ascertain from Mrs. Backe if the suit case was her property. Her name is Marion A. Backe.

Mrs. White's Nieces Her Chums.

Mr. Borden said his daughter entered a select school at Engleside, Conn., about two years ago, where she made the acquaintance of Miss Gladys and Miss Violet Sheldon, sisters, and nieces of Mrs. White. Another of her school friends was Miss Helen Webb. The Misses Sheldon and Miss Webb became the closest chums of Miss Borden.

"My daughter and I were in close sympathy," Mr. Borden said last night, "until an incident came up last Winter. I suggested that she meet a young lady whom I knew would be a help and comfort to her. I learned that my suggestion was disregarded on the advice or demand of girls under whose influence my daughter had come. I was grieved to learn of my daughter's decision."

"Do you know where your daughter is at present?" Mr. Borden was asked.

"No," he replied.

"I have communicated with friends of my wife, who is in the West, and I have learned from them that Mrs. Borden is as much shocked as I am over our daughter's disappearance. She had nothing to do with it."

During his talk with Police Headquarters last night Mr. Borden suggested that his daughter may have sailed on the steamship Cincinnati, which departed from this port yesterday for Plymouth, Cherbourg, and Hamburg. He asked that a wireless message be sent to the Captain, asking if a girl answering to his daughter's description was on board. Scotland Yard detectives will be asked to meet the Cincinnati on her arrival at Plymouth. The reason for believing that Miss Borden might be on the Cincinnati was that just before the departure of the steamship a girl, unaccompanied, drove to the pier in a taxicab and went aboard. The description of this girl seemed to tally with that of Ramona.

False Report of Her Return.

While the search for Miss Borden was in progress early yesterday, inquiries were made at the Adams Sanitarium. A woman who seemed to speak with authority said Miss Borden had returned to the institution about 10 o'clock Wednesday night, accompanied by Miss Coagland. The further information was volunteered that Dr. Adams was too busy to talk about the case. His wife was shopping in Pompton in the forenoon when friends asked her about the case. She told them Miss Borden had not returned, but it was hoped she would during the day.

Mr. Borden investigated the report of his daughter's return to the sanitarium and established to his satisfaction that it was false. He attributed it to the efforts of the sanitarium authorities to distract attention from the case.

Inquiries in Atlantic City met with the response that Mrs. White and her party had left the Marlborough-Blenheim at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, taking a train for New York. Mr. Borden said late last night that he had been unable to get into communication with Mrs. White, the Misses Sheldon, or Miss Webb. He will renew his efforts to-day.

DETECTIVES GOT MISS BORDEN.

Took Her from Mrs. White in Washington on Gail Borden's Order.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Ramona Borden was hidden for seven days in a fashionable apartment in Washington, from which she was taken last Friday by private detectives and sent over to the Adams Sanitarium in Pompton, N. J.

Miss Borden came to Washington on April 11 with Mrs. Helen Seldon White, wife of William J. White, the "Chiclet King," and went to the New Hotel Powhatan, at Eighteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue. There were two other young girls in the party, both described as being as beautiful as Miss Borden and about her age. Mrs. White registered for the four. They remained at the Powhatan only a part of the day, and then went to Stoneleigh Court, on Connecticut Avenue, a fashionable apartment house, built by the late John Hay when he was Secretary of State.

The records at Stoneleigh Court show that Mrs. White and the three girls arrived there on April 11 and that the party, with the exception of Miss Borden, left last Saturday, April 18. Miss Borden left on Friday, April 17, having been taken away by agents of the Bradford Detective Agency of Washington, who turned the girl over to a physician who took her to the New Jersey sanitarium. The detectives acted on orders from Miss Borden's father.

None of the members of the party was known to the management of either the Powhantan or Stoneleigh Court. On the blotter at Stoneleigh Court they were registered as:

Mrs. W. J. White, New York City.
Miss Violet Sheldon, New York City.
Miss Gladys Sheldon, New York City.
Miss Ramona Borden, 147 Riverside Drive, New York City.

At both the hotel and the apartment house Mrs. White was described as an attractive woman of about 35 years of age, with blond hair. The three girls were also described as beautiful enough to attract attention. Persons living at Stoneleigh Court did not see very much of the party. During the week that they were there they remained a great deal in their apartment, No. 803, which Mrs. White had sub-let for a month. They were seen principally by the bell boys who took cracked ice and water to the apartment.

Meanwhile the Bradford Detective Agency had been called into the case, and nearly a dozen detectives were sent to the neighborhood of the apartment house, but it was not until Friday that they got Miss Borden away. Mrs. White protested against the removal of Miss Borden, but when the detectives insisted that they had Gail Borden's authority the girl was permitted to leave.

Mrs. White and the two other young girls tarried there only a day longer. When they gave up the apartment Mrs. White, who seemed to have ample funds and paid the bill, asked that all mail addressed either to herself, the Misses Sheldon, or Miss Borden be forwarded to them at the Marlborough-Blenheim, Atlantic City. Mrs. White also asked that any mail that came addressed to her as "Mrs. Helen S. White" or to "Mrs. S. P. Baker, care of Mrs. Helen S. White," be forwarded to the Atlantic City address.

Morgan Bradford, Jr., chief of the private detectives, who trailed Miss Borden to Stoneleigh Court, refuses to discuss the case. According to statements made here, Mrs. White seemed to exert a remarkable influence over Miss Borden. It was said that they had met first in Paris and afterward at Palm Beach, Fla.

Detectives are to-night seeking Miss Borden in this city, but they think that if Mrs. White had anything to do with her removal from the sanitarium she would not return to Washington in the face of the publicity that has been given the case and knowledge of the fact that private detectives would be on the lookout for them.

MRS. WHITE LEAVES HOTEL.

She and Miss Baker Come to New York from Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 24.—Mrs. Helen White and Miss Baker, who are said to have been cognizant of, if not parties to the disappearance of Miss Borden, came here in the early part of the week and were quartered at the Marlborough-Blenheim. It was learned that both Mrs. White and Miss Baker left here for New York yesterday afternoon on the 2:30 express train for New York.

At the hotel it was denied that any one by the name of Borden was or had been at the hotel or that reservations had been made for her.

Neither Mrs. White nor Miss Baker is expected back. They gave up their rooms and took with them what they had in the way of baggage. They gave no forwarding address to any of the employes of the hotel.

DEFENDS TITANIC CASE.

Counsel for A. L. Brougham Argues for Right to File Claim.

Argument was made yesterday in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals on the writ of error sued out by A. Leonard Brougham to review the judgment of Judge Hough in the Federal District Court, which held him in contempt and fined him $250 for beginning in the State Supreme Court an action against the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company for $75,000 on account of the death of the husband of Mrs. Elizabeth H. Natsch in the Titanic disaster. Judge Hough had issued an injunction against bringing any such actions pending the Federal Court's decision of the petition of the steamship company asking for a limitation of its liability.

Frederick M. Brown appeared as counsel for Mr. Brougham, and urged on Judges Lacombe, Noyes, and Ward, who were sitting yesterday in the Circuit Court of Appeals, that the fine should be remitted on the ground that the District Court had no authority to issue such an injunction, and that even if it was decided that it could do so, the mere filing of the Natsch papers did not amount to disobedience to the order of the court.

Moreover it was argued that the petitions of the owners of the Titanic, so far from showing that there were grounds for a limitation of liability, admitted facts which showed that the company could not avail itself of the American law. There was, too, no authority in the District Court to prevent such action being taken as was vitally necessary to preserve the rights of Mr. Brougham's client. The United States Supreme Court, Mr. Brown went on to argue, had never held that pending the decision of a limitation proceeding a claimant could be enjoined from taking such steps as would preserve his right to sue in case the limitation proceedings were dismissed.

"Common justice," urged Mr. Brown, "dictates that if the shipowner has the right to claim limitation of liability, claimants should not be debarred from exercising their own rights, if the shipowners fail to establish their contention."

J. Parker Kirlin, Charles C. Burlingham, and Norman B. Beicher will reply to Mr. Brown.

MRS. CICCONE NOT TO DIE.

Death Sentence Commuted as Her Partner in Murder Is Convicted.

Mrs. Madeline Ciccone, who has been sentenced to death for the murder of her husband, received word of the commutation of her sentence yesterday only a few hours before her accomplice, Antonio Fiore, was found guilty of murder in the first degree.

The murder occurred on March 10, 1910. Mrs. Ciccone was convicted on Jan. 29 of this year. The first trial of Fiore resulted in a disagreement of the jury. At his second trial Mrs. Ciccone took the stand against Fiore, and it is understood that her agreement resulted in the act of the Court of Pardons, which at a special session at Trenton today, commuted her death sentence to life imprisonment. The jury was out more than seven hours before the verdict was returned against Fiore at 11 o'clock to-night.

In her confession, Mrs. Ciccone said that she and Fiore were in love and that, while Fiore was in jail on a charge of assault, he wrote letters threatening to kill her unless she killed her husband. Accordingly, Mrs. Ciccone, her confession said, sent her daughter to buy arsenic, and this was administered to her husband in his coffee.

S. J. JACKSON SENTENCED.

From Three to Seven Years for Frauds Amounting to $300,000.

Salo J. Jackson, called the "Petticoat King," who pleaded guilty to stealing $300,000 from private bankers by means of false invoices, was sentenced yesterday to not less than three or more than seven years in State's prison by Justice Seabury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

Jackson was formerly the controlling factor in the Jackson-Mack Manufacturing Company at 119 East Twenty-third Street. This company went into bankruptcy last Fall and Jackson's thefts were discovered. Just before the company failed Jackson fled to Frontera, Mexico, where he was arrested. His confidential man, Max Stember, was also indicted and pleaded guilty. The complaint against Jackson and Stember was made by L. Ernstein & Co., who were defrauded of $100,000, and L. Spiegelberg & Sons, who were defrauded of $200,000. Jackson says he spent all the money in building up his company.

WILSON ASSAILED IN TARIFF DEBATE

Hamilton Accuses Him of Holding Patronage Club While Bill Is Pending.

TART PARTY RECRIMINATIONS

Hammond Explains Change in Wheat and Flour Duties—Republicans and Progressives Attack Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—General debate on the Tariff bill, which was resumed in the House to-day, was marked by party recriminations of a bitter character and an attack on President Wilson. The Progressive faction was designated as a "branch shot from the dead Republican trunk," Republicanism was dismissed as "dead, damned, and lost forever," while the Democratic Party was charged with overeagerness to "clean its feet on the Progressive door mat."

Criticism of the President came from Representative Hamilton of Michigan in a defense of the Republican minority.

"With a cocksureness of a man accustomed to instruct the immature mind of youth," he said, "the President, in his address to Congress undertook to settle in eight minutes problems that have vexed the minds of statesmen for more than a hundred years.

"Leaning down from the heights of altruism, the new President told his followers in a language that none of them understood that the Nation was intending to use them for 'a large and definite purpose.'

"This gave general satisfaction until it was explained to them that it did not involve their employment in an official capacity. The Postmaster General, however, as the connecting link between altruism and appetite, is understood to be giving diligent consideration to a method of simplified civil service examination of fourth-class Postmasters, designed to give the Government an opportunity to use the brethren more largely for 'definite purposes.'"

Explains Why Flour Is Free.

The leading speech of the day was that of Representative Winfield S. Hammond, a Democrat of Minnesota and a member of the Ways and Means Committee. Interest in his remarks was marked because he comes from a great wheat-growing and flour-milling section and because he framed the wheat and flour paragraphs in the Underwood bill. He defended the motives which actuated the committee in changing the tariff on these products.

"In 1900," said Mr. Hammond, "the exports of wheat amounted to 102,000,000 bushels. In 1910 they amounted to 30,000,000 bushels, valued at $47,806,590. They had shrunk in 1912 to $28,477,584. To-day there is less than 4 per cent. of our wheat exported."

"In 1910, when we exported better than $47,000,000 worth of wheat, we exported $47,621,467 worth of flour, but in 1912 the exports of wheat showed a loss of $19,329,014, while the exports of flour showed a gain of $3,378,330, being $50,999,797. Therefore, we find wheat continually decreasing, so far as exportation is concerned, and flour continually increasing.

"We found, too, that there was a considerable revenue derived from wheat imported into this country under the rate of 25 cents a bushel. There were 2,684,391 bushels imported in 1912, and the Treasury was enriched by tariff duties assessed thereon to the amount of $352,245.

"In view of the situation, we did not put wheat on the free list, but let it remain on the dutiable list, with a duty of 10 cents a bushel, a cut of 60 per cent. in the rate, and I fancy that with flour on the free list the millers who are now able to sell $50,000,000 worth of their products in other countries might be able to protect themselves from competition. But in order, as we thought, to allay any criticism that might be made, we introduced in this bill a provision favorable to the American millers, requiring that when wheat flour came into this country from any country that placed a duty on American flour, it should bear a rate of 10 per cent. ad valorem. Canada has a duty upon American flour of 60 cents a barrel. Nearly all the European countries, save England, have duties on American flour.

Expects No Move by Canada.

"But the millers and their friends say that the moment this bill passes the House, Canada will wipe away that duty so that Canadian flour will come free into the United States. We have reason to believe that Canada will not do so. We have every reason to believe that Canada would be very much averse to having American flour go free into Canada for the sake of having Canadian flour come into the United Sattes."

Mr. Hammond said the Democratic majority, in framing the Underwood bill, had given attention to the growth of American export trade.

"The aim of the majority," said Mr. Hammond, "has been to establish in this country a competitive market; competition from within and limited competition without, so that there may be the least possible danger of monopoly in any markets of the United States, and we have tried to give relief to a class of our fellow citizens who have been crying out against the high cost of living. We have tried to make a tariff law not only to the advantage of the manufacturer and producer, but for the benefit and welfare of the consumer."

Representative Hinebaugh of Illinois and Hullings of Pennsylvania attacked the Underwood bill on behalf of the Progressive Party. Representative Hullings asserted that the bill would not curb monopoly nor reduce the cost of living, though he hoped it would. He predicted that if President Wilson could convince the public that the tariff ideas were right, "the Democratic Party will remain in power for the next twenty years.

"This bill," he said, "could not be passed without the tremendous power of political patronage. The prospect of patronage plums to be handed out as soon as the Tariff bill is passed is exceedingly effective. Every special interest in the Nation has filed its brief and used every ounce of pressure to have certain schedules of the bill defeated in this House, and they will naturally keep up their fight in the Senate. And when the measure becomes a law it will represent a compromise between the power of special privilege and the power of political patronage."

"The two old parties, in arguing for a tariff commission, are afraid to drop the tariff—the bone of contention over which they have snapped and growled for more than two generations, and by means of which they have alternately hoodwinked the people into giving them office."

Progressives Assailed.

New Democrats, among them Representatives Aswell of Louisiana, Quinn of Mississippi and Barkley of Kentucky, expressed loyalty to their party and the bill, and defied the Progressives to create discord in the Democratic ranks. Mr. Aswell described the Progressives as being only "one per cent. Bull Moose" and the other 99 per cent. as merely trying to disrupt the Democratic Party by sowing discord among the new members in the House.

Representative Fordney, Republican, of Michigan, attacked the sugar schedule.

"The free sugar provision of this bill," he said, "was proposed with the assistance of Frank C. Lowry, press agent of the Committee of Wholesale Grocers, which has never held a meeting, and, so far as I can learn, all the money expended by Lowry in his free sugar campaign was supplied by August Spreckels, President of the Federal Sugar Refining Company of New York.

"Another Spreckels, Rudolph, of San Francisco, was one of the most ardent supporters of President Wilson during the last campaign, financially and otherwise. Between Rudolph Spreckels in San Francisco and August Spreckels in New York, God help the sugar industry."

Senators Ransdell and Thornton of Louisiana, and two Louisiana sugar growers called on Majority Leader Underwood and pleaded for more time before the proposed 25 per cent. reduction on sugar went into effect. They said it would afford considerable relief to the industry of Louisiana if the sugar reduction were not made before Oct. 1 next, instead of immediately upon the bill becoming a law. Mr. Underwood, it is understood, told his visitors that the request could not be entertained.

PROGRESSIVES' TARIFF NEED.

Murdock Presents Party Objections to Underwood Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—In a minority report on the Democratic Tariff bill, presented to the House to-day, Representative Victor Murdock of Kansas, the Progressive member of the Ways and Means Committee, urged the appointment of a tariff commission, with power to elicit information, reasonable reduction of any duty obviously excessive, and opposed radical reductions not founded on adequate information. Mr. Murdock in his report asserted that if there had been wanting proof of the necessity of a tariff commission the pending Democratic Tariff bill alone would supply it. He charged that, as a result of the methods used in its preparation, the few men who drafted it "are not warranted in feeling certainty as to its effects, and most of those who have indorsed it in caucus as a party measure cannot have other than a superficial knowledge of its provisions."

The Democratic revision, he said, had been undertaken in defiance of a universally popular demand that "the tariff should be revised scientifically, a schedule at a time, upon data that is not ex parte, with full right of debate and amendment without secrecy in caucus or committee and without closure in Congress." Thus, he said, was repeated the error which characterized the earlier stages of preparation of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff act.

Mr. Murdock asserted that the Democratic Party had proposed a tariff which would be injurious to many industries and destructive to some.

A NEW TARIFF LEAGUE.

Would Apply Principle of Reciprocity in Reducing Duties.

Supreme Court Justice Lehman signed yesterday the certificate of incorporation of the American Reciprocal Tariff League. Application for the incorporation was made by Frank Hendrick of the Union League Club. The objects of the league, as outlined in the petition, are:

"To advocate the principle of tariff reduction through reciprocity as a permanent basis of tariff adjustment, and the constant application of this principle to changing conditions and opportunities in the markets of different countries."

The Directors are Frank Hendrick, George H. Mann, and Major William Barber of Brooklyn and Howard Fletcher Whitney and William C. Davidson of Manhattan. The first annual meeting of the new organization is to be held on the first Monday in May, when Directors to serve for the next year will be elected.

Bryan Dinner Postponed.

Frederick Brown, Secretary of the Pan-American Society, announced yesterday that the dinner which was to have been given to Secretary of State Bryan here on April 28 had been postponed until May 15 because of Mr. Bryan's trip to California.

ARMAMENT LIMIT OUT OF PEACE PLAN

Senators' Objections, with Japan in Mind, Impress Wilson and Bryan.

DIPLOMATS HEAR SCHEME

Some Approve the Proposal to Avert War by First Investigating Cause of Dispute.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—For the second time since he became Secretary of State Mr. Bryan invited the diplomatic corps to the State Department to-day. His purpose was to submit to them his plan for preventing war, which he explained to the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations yesterday nearly all the Ambassadors and Ministers were present.

Mr. Bryan dropped from his proposal the clause prohibiting the contracting parties from adding to their military or naval forces whilst the cause of dispute was being investigated by a joint commission of the contending parties. This omission, which was made with the President's knowledge, followed sharp criticism of the suggestion by Senators yesterday. They pointed out that while the United States and another power were investigating some difference and were under obligation during the investigation to maintain the military status quo, a third power, not similarly bound, might make extraordinary preparations and strike at the United States before this country could make any defense.

The criticism so strongly impressed the President and Mr. Bryan that the latter made no reference whatever to armaments in his explanation to the diplomats. He told them that his plan was intended as a supplement to the twenty-five arbitration treaties now in force, to fill the gaps left by the exceptions which each treaty makes in regard to the subjects that may be arbitrated. The proposed delay would be beneficial in all disputes, said Mr. Bryan, and in no case could do harm.

The Secretary of State told the Ministers and Ambassadors that the President was ready and willing to enter into negotiations with all the Nations severally for the drafting of a separate treaty with each Nation. This suggestion emphasized the fact that the proposed plan did not contemplate anything like a "peace league" of the civilized Nations, as such a league, it was realized, would be too cumbersome to organize and leave too wide a field for jealousy.

After the conference with the foreign representatives, Mr. Bryan made the following statement:

> The statement presented to the Diplomatic Corps is only intended to set forth the main proposition, namely, that the President desires to enter into an agreement with each nation for the investigation of all questions of every nature whatever. This agreement is intended to supplement the arbitration treaties now in existence and those that may be made hereafter. Arbitration treaties already except some questions from arbitration. The agreement proposed by the President is intended to close the gap and leave no dispute that can become a cause for war without investigation.
> The time within which the report is to be made is left to be agreed upon, and it may be that the time will differ in different cases; but any time, however short, furnishes an opportunity for investigation and deliberation, and it is hoped that the period provided for investigation and deliberation will be sufficient to secure a settlement without resort to war.
>
> Each party is to reserve the right to act independently after a report is submitted, but it is not likely that a nation will declare war after it had had an opportunity to confer, during the investigation, with the opposing nation.
>
> But whether the proposed agreement accomplishes as much as is hoped for it, it is at least a step in the direction of universal peace, and I am pleased to be the agent through whom the President presents this proposition to the powers represented here.

Strangely enough, the first member of the Diplomatic Corps to arrive at the State Department to-day was Viscount Chinda, the Japanese Ambassador, to whom the peace suggestion proved a most interesting subject of discussion. The Ambassador remained after the conference to have a final talk with Mr. Bryan about his mission to California in connection with the effort to persuade the Legislature of that State to refrain from enacting an alien land law offensive to Japan.

Mr. Bryan said diplomats had expressed frank approval of the plan.

Later President Wilson made known his views on the plan at an informal conference with newspaper men at the White House. He indicated that the details would be worked out by negotiation. The general proposal he has in mind is that the contracting nations should never go to war over any dispute before there has been an investigation of the facts involved. The plan would not be to bind the Nations to abide by any decision of the investigation commission, but merely to effect a suspension of judgment until impartial persons have looked into the circumstances at issue.

The President considers that the plan of limiting armaments is feasible only if every Nation enters into a general arrangement. He recognizes that if two Nations agree not to make preparations for war a third might take advantage of the lapse and encroach upon either one of the inactive Nations.

NEBRASKA'S TURRETS FAIL.

Clamps Break Through Heavy Recoil of 12-Inch Guns.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—It was learned to-day that the battleship Nebraska, while at target practice on the Southern drill grounds en route from Vera Cruz to the Boston Navy Yard three weeks ago, sustained serious injuries to her turrets in consequence of the breaking of several clamps.

The first accident occurred in the firing of the twelve-inch guns in the first division, embracing the two forward turrets. Both turrets failed to function, the electrical gearing seeming to break down. One inspection showed that the turrett gear was in perfect order.

It was then discovered that the turret had been thrown off its track, and the cause was at once said to be the breaking of the turret clamps by the recoil of the heavy guns. The seriousness of this accident is hardly measured by the cost of repairs which are now being made at the Boston yard. The real importance of the mishap is that should it occur in a naval engagement the ship would practically be put out of action.

It is reported that a similar breakdown occurred on the battleship New Jersey in her target practice. The matter has been made the subject of very careful inquiry, and although hushed up in naval circles, is regarded as likely to lead to the appointment of a board to consider the strengthening of turret clamps on all battleships.

The matter will also be studied with reference to the firing of the fourteen-inch guns to be installed on the New York and Texas. There is grave apprehension among ordnance officers as to the effect of the new coil of these guns on the construction of the ship, especially on turret gears. Where the recoil of the twelve-inch guns is expressed in about 60,000 foot pounds of energy, it is said that the fourteen-inch gun will practically quadruple this recoil power.

POOR MAN'S BOY STOLEN.

Fortune Teller Says He Was Mistaken for Rich Man's Son.

Andre Massocchi, an Italian stonecutter, is out of work, and for the last ten days he and his wife Christina, have been walking the streets in search of their 6-year-old son, David, a little, fair-haired boy, who disappeared after school on April 14. Other children in the neighborhood say they saw him playing that afternoon in front of his home, at 310 East 105th Street, and saw him walking off hand-in-hand with a man who had stopped to question him.

Massocchi and his wife consulted a fortune teller, who told them that the blackmailers had stolen the little boy by mistake for the child of a family reputed in the Italian colony to be possessed of much money. Little David would be returned the next day, said the fortune teller, but he was not returned, and the mother now feels sure he has been killed and thrown into the river. The father says he knows of no enemies and has no money, and thinks that if the child was stolen by blackmailers it must have been through some such mistake as that pointed out by the fortune teller.

BUSTANOBY EXCISE ARREST.

Two Detectives Swear They Bought Beer on Sunday Night.

Peter Robotti, 30 years old, a waiter at Bustanoby's restaurant, 110 West Thirty-ninth Street, was arraigned in the Men's Night Court last night on a warrant signed by Chief Magistrate McAdoo, charging him with violating the excise law.

Detectives Lowenthal and Raftis made affidavit that they were in the restaurant last Sunday night from 9 o'clock until 11:45, and during that time they bought twelve bottles of beer, which cost $3.60.

Jacques Bustanoby asked for an adjournment, which was granted by Magistrate House and examination fixed for to-night. The proprietor gave $500 cash bail for Robotti.

WILSON AT CAPITOL TALKS PATRONAGE

Senators and Representatives File Into President's Room to Discuss Local Offices.

MANY NOMINATIONS FOLLOW

When Senators Find Original Wilson Men Mostly Favored—Republican as Trenton Postmaster.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Again acting on his theory that it is easier for a President to go to the Capitol than for many Congressmen to come to the White House, President Wilson occupied the President's Room in the Senate wing of the Capitol for three-quarters of an hour to-day before the Senate convened for its afternoon session. The only business discussed by the President was local appointments to office. He saw sixteen Senators and thirteen members of the House, mostly from the South and West.

No one here can remember a President establishing a fixed rule to consult Senators of the opposing party concerning appointments in their States. That is what Mr. Wilson did this morning, and the Republican Senators who saw him said he had consulted them several times in the same way. Some Democratic Senators who saw the President were at a loss as to just why he had summoned them. They had no questions to ask him about patronage on the spur of the moment, and he did not ask their advice. Their calls, although on the President's invitation, simply amounted to paying their respects.

None of the Republicans expressed any objections to the Democrats in their States whom the President wished to appoint, and as soon as Mr. Wilson returned to the White House he sent to the Senate a list of nominations including all the names concerning which he had consulted them. The Republicans, of course, were not asked to suggest appointees, but simply if they knew anything against the men whom the President had decided upon.

The President's trip to the Capitol was as simple as on the two previous occasions. Secretary Tumulty and four Secret Service men accompanied him. Mr. Wilson also invited Representative Jones of Virginia, who had an appointment at the White House, to drive with him to the Capitol. On the way Mr. Jones tried to interest the President in his bill for Philippine independence.

Senator Gore of Oklahoma was the President's first visitor. Other Senators, all of whom had been notified in advance, were summoned by pages and a steady stream of members of both houses filed into the President's room. Some Senators were awaiting their turns on the floor of the Senate chamber just across the corridor from the President's room. The door to the President's room was left open and the conferences were conducted in full sight of anybody passing by.

A large group of Representatives, including Messrs. Oldfield and Goodwin of Arkansas, Hughes, Howard and Bell of Georgia, and Sisson, Collier, and Stephens of Mississippi came together and asked the President to appoint W. V. Turley of Chattanooga, Tenn., to be Public Printer. They reported afterward that the "President listened politely and just smiled."

Names Original Supporters.

Original Wilson men were conspicuous in the large list of nominations the President sent to the Senate this afternoon.

One of the nominations was that of E. T. Lanterman, to be Postmaster at East Orange, N. J. In selecting Mr. Lanterman the President served notice on his enemies within the Democratic party in his own State that they need not expect consideration at his hands. Representative Walter I. McCoy, Democrat, who used to live at East Orange, but moved to East Jersey when the Congressional districts in his State were redistricted recommended Washington Cross, Treasurer of the Democratic County Committee, for the East Orange Postmastership. Mr. McCoy was not a warm supporter of Mr. Wilson's Presidential candidacy, and besides, Mr. Cross was regarded as entirely too close to State Chairman Nugent, who had been active in his opposition to Mr. Wilson at Baltimore and as Governor.

The unwritten law with regard to appointments of postmasters is that a Congressman2 shall have the privilege of selecting the postmaster for his home town. President Wilson decided to ignore this rule in the case of Mr. Cross. It is not expected that there will be any opposition to the confirmation of Mr Lanterman's nomination, as both the New Jersey Senators, Messrs. Martine and Hughes, are strong supporters of the President.

Two of those nominated to-day were recommended by Joseph E. Davies, of Madison, Wis., secretary of the Democratic National Committee. Mr. Davies was a strong Wilson man before the Baltimore convention. The men nominated through his influence are Edward Luckow of Wisconsin, to be Auditor for the Navy Department and John A. Alward, to be United States Attorney for the Sixteenth Western district of Wisconsin. Mr. Aylward is Mr. Davies's law partner.

Anthony Van Wagenen of Iowa, nominated to be District Attorney for the Northern District of Iowa, was selected at the instance of William F. McCombs, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Mr. Van Wagenen helped Mr. McCombs in the Wilson preconvention campaign. William H. Berry, nominated for the Collectorship of Customs for the District of Philadelphia, owes his selection to Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, one of President Wilson's foremost supporters at the Baltimore Convention, who was also responsible for the nomination of Samuel J. Graham of Pennsylvania for Assistant Attorney General, Hugh Gilmore for Postmaster at Williamsport, and P. H. McKenzie for Postmaster at Barnesboro.

In nominating Sherlock Swann to be Postmaster at Baltimore President Wilson ignored Senator John Walter Smith of that State and followed the advice of William L. Marbury, one of the Wilson supporters in Maryland and candidate against Smith for the United States Senate.

William H. Cottrell, nominated for Postmaster at Princeton, N. J., is a personal friend of President Wilson. He is now Assistant Postmaster there, and is a Republican. The Senate this afternoon recognized the personal character of this nomination by confirming it without reference to the Post Office Committee. This practice is intended as a compliment to both the President and the nominee.

The nominations included that of Charles P. Neill of the District of Columbia to be Commissioner of Labor Statistics, an appointment based solely on merit. Mr. Neill has been Commissioner of Labor, a title recently changed, for many years, and was opposed by Southern Senators.

What looked like the first skirmish in a general battle for control of patronage in the Consular service began in the Senate to-day, when Senator Johnston of Alabama introduced a resolution asking the Secretary of State to inform the Senate as to the number of Consuls and consular assistants, the States from which they were registered, and their political affiliations.

The Republicans were expecting the move, and earlier in the day, at a secret caucus, had adopted a resolution condemning the Democratic filibuster against nominations last session, deprecating any return to the spoils system, particularly in regard to the Consular and Diplomatic service, and registering a protest against the removal of any public official in the middle of his term without cause, especially if his position required technical experience.

Mr. Johnston's resolution went over one day without action, but the informal debate it stirred up showed that the Republicans and Democrats are prepared to fight about it.

POLK NOMINATION WITHHELD.

Nor Did O'Gorman See Wilson on Appointments at Capitol.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—A good deal of surprise was shown among New York politicians because the nomination of Frank Lyon Polk to be Collector of Customs for the Port of New York was not sent to the Senate by President Wilson to-day. That the President had definitely decided to nominate him was generally understood among those who have the President's confidence. No explanation was given as to why the nomination was not contained in the long list the Senate received.

Senator James A. O'Gorman of New York, who is opposed to the nomination of Mr. Polk, and who asked President Wilson to appoint any one of six other men named by the Senator for the Collectorship, did not see the President when the latter visited the Capitol today, and did not appear to have been invited, as the Senators and Representatives were.

If Mr. Polk is nominated, the only course open to Senator O'Gorman is either to oppose the nomination or accept it gracefully.

None of the six men Senator O'Gorman suggested for the post, it is contended here, could be objected to on the ground that he was not fitted to hold the office, nor was so tied up with Tammany Hall that his appointment would be objectionable to the elements of the Democratic Party in New York that gave Mr. Wilson his principal support prior to the Baltimore convention.

It was said, also, by friends of Senator O'Gorman that President Wilson knew that the Senator's attitude toward him had not been changed, and that Senator O'Gorman was not any closer to Tammany Hall now than he was two years ago, when he was elected Senator through the support of men who were friends of Mr. Wilson.

Senator O'Gorman's friends are indignant over what they regard as the intention of the Administration to humiliaet him personally and hurt him politically in New York State. They complain that the selection of Mr. Polk for the Collectorship was due entirely to the personal wish of Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury.

Flushing Postmaster Chosen.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Postmaster General Burleson has decided to recommend Alfred J. Kennedy for Postmaster at Flushing, L. I., over the protest of Representative D. G. O'Leary of Douglaston, L. I., [illegible] Flushing is in the First District.

Receives Japan's Trade Protest.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 24.—W. Gibson, President of the Pacific Coast Association of Chambers of Commerce, received a cablegram from Tokio, Japan, urging that his organization use its influence to defeat the alien land bill. The cablegram was sent by a joint committee of Japanese chambers of commerce.

PRAISES WILSON'S POLITICS.

Austrian Ambassador Says Humane Views Are Practical.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Dr. Konstantin Dumba, new Ambassador from Austria-Hungary, who presented his credentials to President Wilson to-day, after delivering the customary felicitations from his ruler, said to the President:

"Permit me to add that, as far as I am personally concerned, I congratulate myself on being sent to Washington on the eve of the discussion of momentous issues raised by your memorable address of inauguration. The necessity of more humanity, of a higher valuation of the individual life of the poor and humble, of more human solidarity in the desperate struggle for life, is a demand which, emphasized by your eloquent address, Mr. President, henceforth will remain within the scope of practical American politics.

"The triumph of these principles can only improve the lot of many thousands of my compatriots, who, mostly representing the element of unskilled laborers, emigrate to this country in ever-increasing numbers."

HARPER'S BAZAAR SOLD.

George von Utassy, Hearst Man, Buys Woman's Publication.

Harper & Bros. announced yesterday through Col. George Harvey, head of the firm, that Harper's Bazaar, one of the oldest publications for women in the country, had been sold to George von Utassy. In making this announcement a representative of the firm said that it had been led to part with its distinctive woman's publications, not because of any sense of failure to publish successfully such a periodical, but because the growing business of Harper & Brothers was such that they could no longer deal in a purely specialized branch of their many publications.

Mr. von Utassy is Secretary of the company which publishes Hearst's Magazine. Frederick T. Leigh, Secretary of Harper & Brothers, was asked last night if William Randolph Hearst was interested in the purchase of the magazine. He said:

"I do not know whether the purchaser represents another or is buying the magazine for himself. We were glad to accept an advantageous offer for the magazine, for the reason that we are now publishing books and periodicals beyond the capacity of our plant and have been forced to send much of our work to outside printers. Harper's Bazaar has now been in existence a matter of forty years."

Col. Harvey said last evening that the price offered for Harper's Bazaar was satisfactory and so the publication had been sold. He said the name would probably be retained.

legislation. The resolutions have not been adopted, and there is little sympathy for the plan among the Progressives, who, having asserted the right of the State to act, now say that such a conference would only serve to cloud the issue.

Framing New Bill.

Senator Thompson is drafting a new alien land bill which will apply solely to members of foreign races described in Federal laws and judicial decisions as ineligible to citizenship in the United States.

When Secretary Bryan arrives he will be confronted with the new draft of the bill and the question of whether or not it is discriminatory. Governor Johnson's view on this point is set forth in his statement as follows:

"The nation has solemnly decided that certain races, among them the Japanese, are not eligible to citizenship. The line has been drawn, not by California, but by the United States. Discrimination, if it ever occurred, came and went when the nation declared who were and who were not eligible to citizenship. If California follows the line marked out by the Federal Government, the United States and not California should be accused of discrimination."

If Secretary Bryan concedes the justice of this view in his conference with the Governor and the Legislature there is little doubt that the Thompson bill will pass. It was said to-night that the bill was almost certain to pass unless Mr. Bryan could convince the leaders here that it would precipitate a grave crisis.

The Chinese commercial organizations of San Francisco have voiced a protest against discriminatory legislation such as the Alien Land bill. The protest was introduced in the upper house by Senator Beban. It was signed by officers of the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association, Chinese Six Companies, Chinese Chamber of Commerce, and Chinese Merchants' Association.

BRYAN LEAVES WITH HOPES.

Secretary Hurrying to California to Discuss Land Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Secretary Bryan, accompanied by Robert F. Rose, who will serve as his secretary, left Washington on the Chicago Express over the Pennsylvania Road at 6:45 o'clock this evening to carry out the special mission committed to him by President Wilson in the hope of averting the passage of an alien land law by the California Legislature that might offend the people of Japan.

Mr. Bryan remained at work in the State Department until a late hour, and barely had time to go to the White House for a final conference with President Wilson before catching his train. The President in bidding him good-bye wished him a safe journey and all possible success in the task committed to him.

The President had explained earlier in the day that the purpose of Mr. Bryan's visit was to take counsel with the California authorities as to the best way to avoid international difficulty. The President let it be known that he considered the attitude of the Japanese government, in arguing its case, proper and friendly and that there had been no note of antagonism, despite reports to the contrary, the position of the Tokio Government having been one of respectful urgency that no discrimination be made against their people.

Inquiries as to just what Japan would consider a discrimination brought forth the intimation from the President that with the eligibility of Japanese to citizenship, still a debatable question, it would be difficult to define just what would be construed as a discrimination.

The Japanese Ambassador has at no time indicated what the language of the bill should be, and there is no special form or draft of a measure to be carried by Mr. Bryan to the California Legislature.

When asked if he would address the Legislature Mr. Bryan replied that he had no present expectation of appearing before the Legislature for any purpose except as outlined in the dispatches exchanged between the President and Gov. Johnson. The Secretary of State expressed a hopeful confidence in the outcome of his visit. He said he expected to do a big day's work every day while he was away, and possibly he should be able to catch up with his much-neglected correspondence.

In a conference with the Japanese Ambassador early in the afternoon Mr. Bryan expressed his belief that the California Legislature would realize the temperate and reasonable manner in which the representations of the Japanese Government had been made by the Ambassador, and told him that he felt much encouraged in regard to the ultimate result. The Ambassador thanked the Secretary for his earnestness in the matter and his thorough kindness in all their relations, and wished him a pleasant and safe journey and the success that the Governments of both countries desired.

EXPOSITION BOARD OBJECTS.

Says Proposed Alien Bills Challenge Honor of California.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24.—The Directors of the Panama-Pacific Exposition adopted resolutions to-day committing themselves to take a position opposite to that of Gov. Johnson and the majority of the Legislature with regard to the proposed alien land laws. The resolutions say that the pending bills challenge the honor and good faith of California.

They also set forth that California was selected by Congress at her request to act for the Nation as host to all Nations who desired to join in celebrating the opening of the Panama Canal; that the President of the United States invited all Nations and all peoples to take part "without regard to race, creed, political system, or social development"; that California accepted this trust, and that "any action by the Legislature offensive to any foreign country, to their pride as a people, or their honor as a Nation, must challenge the good faith of the Commonwealth."

Charles C. Moore, President of the Exposition Board, said to-day:

"The attitude of the Legislature—that is, the administration majority of it—has shown such apparent disregard of the solemn pledges made by California to the people of the United States that the course taken by the Directors to-day was imperative.

"As the resolutions adopted by the board recite, the State unquestionably has pledged to all participants in the exposition equal opportunity and courtesy and undiscriminating welcome and hospitality. This proposed legislation is aimed directly at the Japanese. The final wording of the administration bill may not read that way on the surface, but there has been no disguise in debate that the measure sought is aimed at the Japanese, and there can be no denying that for all practical purposes it will affect only the Japanese."

MAKINO URGES PATIENCE.

Minister Fears Further Anti-Japanese Feeling May Be Aroused.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, April 25.—A telegram to The Times from Tokio says:

"Baron Makino, the Foreign Minister, addressing a delegation representing sixty-six Chambers of Commerce to-day, (Thursday,) urged restraint in public utterances lest anti-Japanese sentiment might be aroused elsewhere than in California, and the negotiations might be impeded, in view of the power of public opinion over the United States Government.

"The advice is timely. The tendency toward an extremist attitude noticeable in certain quarters is caused partly by a desire to strengthen the hands of the Government and partly by a sense of wounded national pride."

TOKIO, April 24.—The relations between Japan and the United States were [illegible] of Commerce to-day by Count Yamamoto, the Premier, [illegible]. He expressed absolute confidence that American citizens, both official and unofficial, would demand that there be no discrimination against Japanese. He also said he disapproved of any agitation or any exhibition of temper on the part of the Japanese.

Seventy American missionaries, representing all denominations, met to-day and adopted a resolution deploring the possibility of discriminatory legislation in America and asking Californians and all missionary bodies in the United States "to oppose action which is contrary to friendship and their interests."

It is proposed that this council shall formulate and recommend to Congress a continuing naval policy. THE TIMES'S DAILY SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCHES

THINK MONTENEGRO WILL BE PERSUADED

Diplomats in London Hopeful, but King Nicholas Is Still Defiant.

ULTIMATUM FROM AUSTRIA

Immediate Joint Action Against Montenegro, or She Will Act Alone—Slump on Berlin Boerse.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, April 25.—The Austro-Hungarian Government's dispatch calling upon the powers to take action against Montenegro, will be considered at a meeting of the Ambassadors in London to-day.

London opinion regarding the outlook continues optimistic. It is pointed out that the Austro-Hungarian dispatch was sent under the first impression of the fall of Scutari, and before it was made clear that the powers had unanimously decided not to let the event affect their decision that Scutari must remain Albanian.

The powers will doubtless formally warn King Nicholas to that effect within a day or two. It is believed that there are means of persuasion and pressure by which, without recourse to armed coercion, Montenegro can be brought to submit to the decision of Europe.

St. Petersburg dispatches report fresh demonstrations there, but the Russian Government is checking all disorderly manifestations.

According to a Vienna dispatch, Cettinje telegrams announce that King Nicholas delivered a speech to the crowd which fêted him, in which he said: "Scutari is Montenegro's from to-day," concluding with the words, "Long live Montenegrin Scutari!"

King Nicholas yesterday had a long conversation with the Russian Military Commissioner, Gen. Potapoff, in which his Majesty is alleged to have said that the fall of Scutari had created a new situation, which would have to be reckoned with. Everywhere they joy in the whole land at the taking of the city was as profound as the grief would be if the people thought Scutari would be taken away again.

No one, said the King, would dare express that thought in Montenegro to-day, neither the Government nor he would be listened to by the people.

If Europe, declared the King, still thought of taking away Scutari, for which Montenegro had bled almost to death, Europe would be forced to carry out the operation herself.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24.—Essaad Pasha, the Turkish commander at Scutari, has reported to the Porte that he surrendered the town in consequence of the exhaustion of the provisions and on the conditions that his troops were allowed to depart with arms and ammunition and were authorized to embark immediately at San Giovanni di Medua.

BERLIN, April 24.—Austria-Hungary telegraphed to all the great Powers yesterday demanding that they send an ultimatum ordering Montenegro to evacuate Scutari within forty-eight hours, according to an unconfirmed despatch from Vienna to the Zeitung-am-Mittag. Otherwise, Austria declares, she will, with her allies, take steps to protect her political interests.

There are many indications here today of the seriousness with which the German Government and public regard the European situation, which, according to a high diplomatic official, has entered another crisis as grave as that which preceded the Austro-Russian demobilization.

The press bureau of the German Foreign Office, contrary to its custom, was not prepared to-day with a statement either in regard to the ultimatum to Montenegro or to the general situation. An official, however, said he believed it probable that force would ultimately have to be employed to expel the Montenegrins, who, it is thought, will not retire from Scutari voluntarily or in return for a loan or compensation elsewhere.

It is the official view here that all the European powers will work together until the problem has been solved.

A feeling of consternation and helplessness was displayed at yesterday's conference of the powers' Ambassadors in London, according to advices received here. The representatives of all the nations, including Russia, agreed that the decision of the powers concerning Scutari must be adhered to and enforced, but all were nonplussed by the question how Montenegro was to be coerced.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, and Herr von Jagow, the Foreign Minister, visited the Budget Committee of the Imperial Parliament to-day in order to make a confidential communication to its members in relation to the international situation.

The proceedings of the secret session of the Budget Committee, from which, contrary to usage, all the other Deputies were excluded, have been kept strictly confidential. The Lokal Anzeiger, however, says it has learned that the statement made by the Imperial Chancellor led the committe to decide to begin the discussion of the Military bills to-morrow instead of postponing them, as was proposed, until May 19.

The Kaiser's cancellation of his proposed trip on the Imperator and his determination to return to Berlin from Homburg on April 28 are attributed in well-informed quarters to the crisis brought about by the fall of Scutari.

The stock market to-day was demoralized by the fears of grave political complications. Investors and speculators started realizing at the opening. Then prices slightly recovered on the strength of Premier Asquith's speech and on The London Times's editorial insisting upon an Albanian Scutari. The market again broke later on, and there was heavy selling on the report from Vienna that Austria had demanded that the powers send an ultimatum to Montenegro.

ROME, April 24.—Representations have been made to Montenegro, it became known here to-day, in which the attention of the Cettinje Government is called to the fact that all the Balkan States have bowed to the decision of the powers, inspired by the supreme interests of Europe.

Bulgaria, it was pointed out to the Montenegrin Government, had renounced her decision to continue the movement of her army toward Constantinople; Servia had given up the seaport of Durazzo; Greece had abstained from permanently occupying the town of Valona, and Montenegro must evacuate Scutari.

Such a move on the part of Montenegro, it is considered here, would not imply any loss of dignity after her occupation of the city. If the European powers gave way in the matter of Scutari, it is affirmed, the other Balkan States also would have the right to realize their aspirations.

Italy, close followers of the Balkan situation declare, was ready to go to war rather than allow Greece to occupy Valona, and Australia also would rather go to war than allow a change in the boundary of Northern Albania, as arranged by the London Ambassadorial conference. Consequently, the Cettinje Government, it is understood, has been told that it would be impossible to allow a European conflagration simply to please Montenegro.

It appears that Austria-Hungary is determined to act alone if she is not backed up by the other powers in obtaining the evacuation of Scutari by the Montenegrins. Such action would almost certainly mean, according to well-informed opinion here, a European conflagration.

The efforts of Italy, therefore, are directed toward preventing the isolation of Austria-Hungary and toward convincing Montenegro of the necessity of complying with the decision of the conference of Ambassadors. If this cannot be accomplished the opinion prevails here that collective armed European intervention is inevitable.

LONDON, Friday, April 25.—"Take immediate combined action to turn the Montenegrins out of Scutari or we shall do it alone," is the effect of the circular note sent by the Austro-Hungarian Government to the Powers composing the Concert of Europe. The note is virtually an ultimatum.

Austria-Hungary declares that she cannot permit the Montenegrins to flout the decision of the great Powers. The prestige of the European nations has been violated, says the note, and Austria-Hungary demands that the Powers decide promptly on the steps to be taken to restore that prestige, adding that if the Powers should be unable to reach a speedy decision she will see to it herself that the will of Europe is respected and that the Montenegrins vacate Scutari.

In diplomatic quarters in London the belief now prevails that Montenegro will yield to the Powers on the Scutari question, and it was reported last night that Montenegro had made an informal suggestion regarding a new frontier line, giving her territorial and other advantages, including possession of the town of Berdica and both banks of the Boyana River.

The new frontier which, it is stated, Montenegro has proposed as compensation for the loss of Scutari would run northwest of Vraka through Koplik to Kaldrum on Lake Scutari. This slip of territory, although very mountainous, is important to Montenegro because it affords a natural road to Ipek, avoiding a great detour. From Berdica the line would run to the coast north of San Giovanni di Medua.

According to the latest news, Austria has not stipulated any time limit for the evacuation of Scutari. It is reported that Austria has an expedition of 60,000 men completely organized to coerce Montenegro, if necessary.

There were serious pro-Montenegrin demonstrations on the fall of Scutari among Austria's Slav subjects at Prague, Agram, and other cities. They were suppressed, and all similar demonstrations have been forbidden.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

COPENHAGEN, April 24.—Prince Axel, son of Prince Valdemar of Denmark and nephew of Queen Alexandra, who is a Naval Lieutenant and a member of the Danish Naval Flying Corps, had a narrow escape from death to-day.

He made a flight of an hour's duration at a height of 1,800 feet in a new biplane. While he was descending a gust of wind threw his machine against a barrier with such force that it was smashed. Prince Axel jumped unhurt from the biplane in the nick of time.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 24.—Von Waltershausen's opera, "Oberst Chabert," was given for the first time in England at Covent Garden to-night. It went smoothly and was sympathetically, if not enthusiastically, received by a large audience.

The critics welcome the piece as a sincere and skillful work, containing moments of strong feeling, but express doubt that it will ever become as popular here as in Germany.

POPE'S DOCTORS FIRM.

Pontiff Unable to Receive American Pilgrims Now in Rome.

ROME, April 24.—Mgr. Kennedy, rector of the American College, gave a dinner to-night in honor of the Right Rev. Joseph Schrembs, Bishop of Toledo, Ohio, who is in charge of an American pilgrimage to Rome.

Bishop Schrembs has made every effort to obtain a papal audience for the Americans, but in vain, as the physicians attending the Pope absolutely refuse to relax in any way the restrictions imposed upon the Pontiff. The American pilgrims will be received on Sunday by Cardinal Merry del Val, and Bishop Schrembs still hopes that they may have a glimpse of the Pope, who may be permitted to show himself from a window of the Apostolic Palace.

COLOGNE, April 24.—Herr Hughenberg, Chairman of the Krupp Company's Board of Directors, in an interview published by The Cologne Gazette to-day, says that if the Berlin agent of the company bribed officials of the War Office for the purpose of gaining information about armament contracts, it was with his own money, and without the knowledge of the company.

The secret reports sought, added Herr Hughenberg, were only such as any company must have in order to know what its competitors were doing.

OUR CUSTOMS PLAN ANGERS FRANCE

Commercial Federation Urges a Government Protest to Washington.

HYPOCRITICAL PROTECTION

Temps Thus Stigmatizes the Rule Requiring Exporters to Submit Books to Our Consuls.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

PARIS, April 24.—A federation of French commercial and industrial firms is urging the Government to make representations to Washington regarding the proposed examination of the books of French exporters for the purpose of ascertaining domestic sales prices in order to guard against undervaluations. The federation representatives say that the administrative details of the new American tariff are extremely vexatious and will result in great delays. They add: "The American Government wants by unbelievable usurpation of sovereignty to exercise rights which our own Government does not possess in this country."

They ask the Government to intervene in defense not only of French commercial interests, but also of the primordial rights of its nationals.

The semi-official Temps gives prominence to this protest in a strongly worded editorial, saying that aside from protective tariffs, against which it is possible to fight, there is another brand of hypocritical, insidious, shifty, veiled protectionism. Plain tariffs can be fought, but arbitrary pettifogging customs regulations are a hundred times more dangerous than direct imposts. The Temps then scores the Treasury circular sent out some time ago, calling upon the exporter to deposit samples of his goods and his invoices at American Consulates.

The newspaper concludes by saying that, although President Wilson's message gave rise to the belief that a new spirit was coming into existence, facilitating commercial currents and preparing the way for a large extension of American foreign trade, the suspicious provisions accompanying the new tariff are causing legitimate disquietude. "Is American protection," the Temps asks, "to be made less brutal only to become more effective under another form? If so, what remains of President Wilson's programme of April 8? The President talked of opening a free canal in conformity with a great people's interests and in a way worthy of a great party. It will be ridiculous if the liberal revision of the tariff is counterbalanced by the aggravation of arbitrary customs regulations. What, then, becomes of Mr. Wilson's free canals under such veiled protectionism?"

OLD FURNITURE GOES CHEAP

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 24.—The second day of the sale of antique furniture belonging to Sir Lionel Phillips was disappointing compared with the results on the first day. Little is to expected from the next session of the sale next Tuesday, but it is likely that there will be some excitement over the tapestries and Persian carpets on Wednesday.

A buhl inkstand inlaid with foliage and a coat-of-arms was bought by C. Davis for the high price of £231.

A Louis XV. secretaire of oak veneered with tulip-wood panels went for £304.

A pair o fsmall tapestry firescreens brought £210.

FOR WORLD 2-CENT POST.

British Postmaster General Wants It, but Lloyd George Won't Aid.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 24.—Postmaster General Samuel, in presenting the annual Post Office budget in the House of Commons to-day, declared himself in favor of universal penny postage, which, he said, would cost £500,000 ($2,500,000) yearly. He said he had made a strenuous but unsuccessful attempt to obtain the support of the Chancellor of the Exchequer for a reduction in the postage rates between England and the Continent.

The loss on penny postage between England and the United States in the first year, said Mr. Samuel, was £136,000. It had now been reduced to £123,000.

No development was more remarkable, said Mr. Samuel, than the increase in the use of the overseas cables since the reductions in rates. A new "loaded" telephone cable, the longest of its sort in the world, was being laid from England to Belgium. The Post Office was communicating with the German Post Office with a view to the establishment of telephonic communication between them.

Mr. Samuel proposed the introduction of a system of synchronizing clocks, whereby everybody could have timepieces set to Greenwich time daily for £2 yearly.

In reference to the imperial wireless chain, Mr. Samuel deplored the delay of two years that had intervened since the matter was declared to be urgent. He said he had secured or was securing sites for six stations, but these would be subject to approval by the contracting firm, which took the risk of having to make the stations a success.

Mr. Samuel pointed out that the expert commission had already exhausted the three months which was to be the term for making recommendations.

BELGIAN STRIKE IS OFF.

Socialist-Labor Conference Votes for Immediate Resumption of Work.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

BRUSSELS, April 24.—The great Belgian strike came definitely to an end to-day. The Socialist Labor conference sat for five hours, at the end of which the strike committee's motion, recommending the immediate resumption of work, was carried by a 4 to 1 majority.

M. Vandervelde, the Socialist leader, said that the victory obtained was colossal, and that a long step had been taken toward universal suffrage. He added that at that solemn hour of triumph the breasts of Belgian workers rightly swelled with pride. A scene of tremendous enthusiasm followed the announcement of the figures of the vote.

It is generally believed that work will be resumed without protest, as the decision to retain in being the Committee for Universal Suffrage will satisfy those who doubted the effectiveness of the Masson resolution. The early defeat of the Government is anticipated by the Belgian progressives.

BRUSSELS, April 24.—Opposition to the settlement, for the most part, came from the delegates of the miners' unions in the Borinage and Centre districts and the textile workers of Verviers, who declared that their unions did not consider that enough had been gained. The congress, however, after a five hours' session, formally called off the strike, at the same time continuing the special committee on the general strike and universal suffrage.

After adjournment the delegates notified their various districts of their decision. There were no demonstrations of any kind. The action of the congress seems to be generally accepted with favor, but the miners may refuse to work for a time. It is expected the resumption will be pretty general to-morrw. That this is the view held by the authorities is shown by the fact that the War Minister ordered the withdrawal of the troops as soon as he learned that the strike had been abandoned.

There is general rejoicing in business and industrial circles to-night, particularly among those identified with the exposition at Ghent. Arrivals at the leading hotels in Brussels have trebled since the Chamber's action on Tuesday rendered peace possible.

The extra parliamentary commission on electoral reform, it is announced, will be nominated next week. It will consist of twenty-one members, drawn from political, university and sociological circles.

ANTWERP, April 24.—The Civic Guard have been sent to their homes as a result of the strike settlement. The Burgomaster to-night issued a proclamation expressing his thanks to the people for their peaceful attitude during the strike, and gratitude to the soldires, the Civic Guard and police for their untiring zeal.

After a short rest Gilbert ascended again. He came down at Medina del Campo, landing aawwardly and damaging the wire stays if his monoplane. He was not hurt, and made repairs without difficulty.

PASS HUNGER STRIKE BILL

Lords Send It to the King—Mrs. Despard Goes to Jail, Refusing to Pay a Fine.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, April 25.—The Home Secretary's bill for dealing with hunger strikers by releasing and rearresting them after their recovery at their homes, known as "the Cat and Mouse bill," which on Wednesday was formally brought to the House of Lords, was yesterday rushed through all the remaining stages and will receive the royal assent to-day.

Lord Haldane, in appealing to the Opposition not to delay the bill, expressed his profound personal regret that it was necessary to take such action against women whose offenses were marked by no sordid or personal motives; but he said that the women refused to accept the punishment properly awarded to them, and the State was obliged to take action if its foundations were not to be undermined.

"The present condition of anarchy must be put an end to," said Lord Salisbury, speaking for the Opposition. Therefore, it would not stand in the way of the Government, but it would accept no responsibility for the bill.

The Standard learns that the suffragettes have formed a plot to kidnap the son of Mr. Justice Lush, who sentenced Mrs. Pankhurst, and that they also will try to burn the famous school buildings at Harrow and blow up the house of Reginald Blair, M. P., in the same neighborhood. Mr. Blair recently defeated the suffragette candidate, Mr. Lansbury, at the Bow and Bromley bye-election.

The conspiracy became known in an extraordinary manner. A woman traveling in a train in the direction of Harrow was dozing in a corner, when she heard two other women who were occupants of the carriage discussing the plot. She informed the police, who have taken prompt measures to prevent the intended outrage.

Mrs. Despard, the suffragette leader, who was arrested on Wednesday while trying to hold a meeting in Trafalgar Square, was yesterday committed to jail for two weeks on her refusal to pay a fine of $25. Her companions, Nina Boyle and Mrs. Wood, were sentenced to ten days' and a week's imprisonment, respectively.

Late last night an attempt, attributed to the suffragettes, was made to wreck the Northumberland County Council offices in Newcastle. A bomb was exploded and the caretaker had a narrow escape. The building was but little damaged.

MANCHESTER, April 24.—An immense window of the Free Trade Hall here was blown out last night by a bomb which exploded beneath the platform.

The police believe that the bomb was intended to provide a militant suffragette salute for John Burns, President of the Board of Trade, who spoke in the Free Trade Hall to-night.

AIRMAN DUNETZ KILLED.

Falls at Johannisthal — Russian Princess Hurt at Same Aerodrome.

BERLIN, April 24.—The German aviator Dunetz was killed this morning at the Johannisthal Aerodrome, near Berlin by falling from a considerable height while flying in his aeroplane.

Princess Eugenie Shakoffskoya, a certificated Russian air pilot, and Vsevoled Abramovitch, a Russian airman, fell while flying in a biplane at Johannisthal to-day and were both injured, Abramovitch very serevely and the Princess slightly. Their machine collapsed at a height of thirty feet and dashed to the ground.

Abramovitch last August made a flight from Berlin to St. Petersburg.

April has been a disastrous month for airmen, Dunetz being the fourteenth to lose his life.

NOT GERRY DINNER PLATE.

Cable Said That the $150,000 Gold Service Was for Judge Gary.

A cable dispatch from London, printed in Wednesday's Times, describing how the King and Queen, in visiting the Minton pottery at Stoke-on-Trent, had shown great interest in a dinner service in raised gold pattern being made there for "Judge Gary of New York," at a cost of $150,000, was misinterpreted, owing to an error in transmission, into reading that the dinner service was being made for Elbridge T. Gerry. Mr. Gerry said yesterday that the service was not for him. Mrs. Elbert H. Gary declined to say whether the service was for her husband.

NAPLES, April 24.—The new Italian dreadnought, the Duilo, was launched to-day at the navy yard at Castellmare, in the presence of the King and Queen of Italy and a large gathering of military and naval authorities. Queen Helena named the vessel, amid the cheers of an immense crowd.

DIAZ DROPS CANDIDACY.

Mexican Commander Withdraws from Presidential Race.

MEXICO CITY, April 24.—Gen. Felix Diaz and Francisco de la Barra, the Foreign Minister, to-night definitely withdrew as candidates for the Presidenc yand Vice Presidency respectively. The reason given for their action is Congressional delay with regard to their elections.

The Chamber of Deputies on Tuesday negatived the measure introduced by Provisional President Huerta, calling for elections on July 27. The eDputies opposed the holding of elections until after the restoration of peace.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The second step in the programme for the withdrawal of battleships and troops mobilized in Mexican waters and along the Mexican border when the revolution in the City of Mexico was at its height was taken to-day, when 700 marines of the 2,000 sent to Guantanamo in February were ordered home. The battleships Nebraska and Vermont were ordered from Vera Cruz three weeks ago, and it is expected that the Georgia and Virginia will be ordered north within a few days. It is left to Col. Karmany, who is in command of the provisional brigade of marines at Guantanamo, to select the organizations that will make up the 700 marines to be brought back.

MEXICO CITY, April 24.—The Mexican Government has floated a loan of $7,500,000 for one year at 88½, bearing 5 per cent. interest, through Coutts & Co., bankers, of London, according to reports here. The loan was arranged by Sir Weetman D. Pearson (Lord Cowdray) and is secured on the Government's holdings in the Tehuantepec Railroad.

Francisco de la Barra, Minister of Foreign Affairs, announced to-night his withdrawal as a candidate for the Vice President on a ticket with Gen. Felix Diaz. There is some possibility that Gen. Diaz will withdraw his candidacy for the Presidency.

WILSON CROSSED FIRING LINE

Cleveland Describes Conduct of Ambassador in Mexico Fighting.

Mrs. Charles E. Rector, wife of the proprietor of the Hotel Rector, has received a letter from her brother, Charles B. Cleveland, who has for several years lived in the City of Mexico. Mr. Cleveland is a warm admirer of the American Ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson. Regarding Ambassador Wilson's conduct during the troublous days of the revolution, Mr. Cleveland says:

"He took the lead in everything, and the representatives of the other foreign nations came to him, and when it was necessary to take action sided with him. In fact, he was the whole show. One day, while the firing was on, in the hope of arranging matters with Madero, he, the German and Spanish Ministers, the English Minister saying he would agree to anything Mr. Wilson did, went from the American Embassy to the Palace, and in doing so had to cross the firing line twice each way. I was through a few times, and know how it feels. From this you will see that he even risked his life.

"The auto of the Spanish Minister received a bullet through one corner, and he was the most angry man I have seen for some time, as he was in it at the time. It was through Mr. Wilson's efforts that an understanding was reached between President Huerta, Felix Diaz, and Gen. Mondragon. I know that he did everything in his power to save the life of Madero after he was captured, and had President Huerta's assurance that it would be done.

"When the trouble first started Ambassador Wilson organized a force of men to guard the American colony, and also organized a force with automobiles to get Americans and others out of that part of the city within the firing line and to secure accommodations for them in the safety zone."

The cruise is estimated to cover 7,000 miles and occupy about six weeks, and the only stop to be made between this port and Para, at the mouth of the Amazon, will be at St. Lucia for coal.

The Oneida was formerly the Atreus, recently purchased from Anthony J. Drexel. She is 198 feet long and 560 tonnage. Among the guests on board are Mr. and Mrs. Colgate Hoyt, on their wedding trip; Mrs. Richard R. Sinclair, Miss Georgia Appleton, Mrs. Siebert, Edward Beers, John Jolles, and Dr. Griffen.

OVERBOARD WITH FAREWELL

Waving to Friends on Departing Ship, He Fell from Pier—Rescued.

While waving his handkerchief at his friends leaving for Hamburg on the Cincinnati at noon yesterday in Hoboken, Charles R. Leslie of 1,233 Manhattan Avenue slipped off the pier into the river. He was quickly carried down stream by the strong tide, but managed to get off his coat and shoes in the water and keep afloat until picked up by a lifeboat manned by longshoremen from the Hamburg-American pier.

When he was landed, apparently none the worst for his unexpected swim, Leslie was supplied with a pair of dry shoes and a coat.

SWINDLER TRAPPED BY HIS OWN LETTER

Plan to Dupe Congressman Howard Thwarted by Odd Combination of Circumstances.

PRISONER HAS OFFICE HERE

Sent to Jail as "Thornton," He Has Long String of Aliases—Tells of Checkered Career.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—A slender, blue-eyed Southerner who had a law office in the Tribune Building in New York City under the name of "H. S. Wyndham," was committed to the District of Columbia jail here to-day, under the alias of "Henry W. Thornton." It is charged that he tried yesterday to swindle Representative William Schley Howard of Georgia out of $450 by means of a forged check on the Hanover National Bank of New York.

Thornton, as he gave his name, is thought to be one of the cleverest check swindlers in the country. He might have been at liberty to-night enjoying the spoils of his shrewdness instead of in custody as a confessed swindler, if the finger of fate had not beckoned Hollins N. Randolph, a prominent attorney of Atlanta, into the office of Representative Howard to-day. A letter addressed to Thornton, in care of Mr. Howard, lay on the latter's desk.

The envelope bore the imprint of the firm of Brown & Randolph. Mr. Randolph is a member of the firm. The letter contained a forged letter purporting to be a request from Attorney Randolph to his close personal friend, Representative Howard, to cash a check for $450 for Thornton. Randolph told the Representative he did not know and never heard of Thornton. They called for a detective and awaited developments.

When Thornton called at the Capitol to-day to induce Representative Howard to indorse the forged check on the New York bank the man was arrested. It then developed that Thornton had been busy in Washington for some time. He got $350 by a spurious letter and check in February last from James Aranoff, Secretary to Senator Martine of New Jersey, and $100 in August last from Charles R. Pierce, a land attorney, in the Pacific Building. It is also charged that, by similar tactics, he tried to obtain $390 from Senator Ashurst of Arizona a few months ago.

When he was arrested Thornton carried papers that convinced the Washington detective force that he had been occupying an office in The Tribune Building in New York under the name of "H. S. Wyndham." Chief of Detectives Boardman asked the New York Police Department to investigate. A reply was received from Inspector Faurot of New York to-night, saying that the police had located Wyndham's office. Inspector Faurot asked for instructions. Capt. Boardman then telegraphed, requesting that all papers regarded as belonging to Thornton, found in the office in The Tribune Building, be seized for investigation.

When he was arrested Thornton seemed anxious to shield a woman in New York City. Among his effects were two photographs of a good-looking woman and two letters, which he evidently intended to mail. In both he asks the woman to marry him, promising her "$300 a month pin money" out of his "income of $1,000 a month." The letters were signed "H. S. W."

The police records indicate that Thornton has used the aliases of H. M. Wallace, H. G. Royston, H. G. Gathright, H. S. Wyndham, J. D. Boland, W. L. King and other names. The prisoner boasts that Thornton is not his real name. He says that his identity is well concealed, and that for the sake of his family and a woman, it will never be discovered. He says he is the son of afield officer of the Confederacy, a member of a prominent and influential Southern family, university graduate, a soldier of fortune under two flags, more recently a writer of fiction for magazines, and a discharged convict from Columbus, Ohio, penitentiary.

He is 37 years old. He said he was born in Noxunee County, Miss., and served in Cuba as a volunteer during the Spanish war, after which he went to South Africa with a cargo of mules from New Orleans and fought in the Boer war. Morphine and two hypodermic syringes were in his pockets when he was arrested. By means of Bertillon measurements and his admissions the police have ascertained that he was arrested in Louisville in 1906 and sent to the Columbus Penitentiary for seven years by the Cincinnati courts.

Three days ago Representative Howard received a letter mailed in New York City on April 19 addressed to "Henry W. Thornton," in care of Mr. Howard. Before receiving this letter Representative Howard received a long-distance telephone introduction from Thornton, who called from New York and explained that he was connected with the firm of "Brown & Randolph of Atlanta," and was taking the liberty of having mail sent to the Representative's office because of that association. It so happened that Hollins N. Randolph was one of Representative Howard's best friends, and was then en route to Washington to visit the latter. Upon the arrival of Mr. Randolph, who saw that the stationery of his firm had been forged in the case of the first letter which came to the Representative's office for "Thornton," it was decided to open the letter, after consulting the proper authorities. When the letter was opened it contained a check purporting to have been made out by Henry W. Davis, cashier of the Lowry National Bank of Atlanta, on April 19, on the Hanover National Bank, New York, payable to Henry M. Thornton or order. The same envelope contained this forged note:

> Atlanta, April 19, 1913.
> Dear Henry: Enclosed you will find cashier's check for $450. I hope same may prove sufficient for our joint purposes, as well as for your personal needs. Should need arise, write me and more will be following. H. N. RANDOLPH.

This letter was written on stationery forged to resemble that of the Randolph law firm at Atlanta. In the cases of Mr. Price and Senator Martine's secretary the same scheme was worked with success.

TO BOYCOTT THE STAGE JEW

Chicago Meeting Votes to Work for Reform Through the Box Office.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 24.—Jewish leaders in Chicago to-night planned a Nationwide boycott of the theatres presenting "scurrilous and debasing impersonations of the Hebrew type."

At a meeting in the Hotel La Salle, attended by many prominent men and women, it was decided to appoint a committee of nine to co-operate with the many Jewish organizations throughout the United States in an attempt to drive caricatures of Jews from the stage. Judge Hugo Pam presided.

It was proposed to rid the stage of the objectionable "Jewish comedian" through a concerted attack upon the box office. The method to be pursued will be similar to that adopted by the Drama League in stamping its disapproval of unworthy plays. Bulletins will be sent to every Jew in Chicago announcing that a play objectionable to the Jewish race is being given at a certain theatre.

Especially was the portrayal of the Jew as a mean, slinking individual, given to vulgarity and villainy, disapproved of. Honest characterization of the Jew was declared commendable, but a protest was made against the introduction of immoral songs and questionable speeches in the impersonation of the type.

"Such a representation," said Judge Pam, "is vile, outrageous, and undignified, and tends only to create prejudice. Many theatregoers are unacquainted with the Jewish character, and they get their impressions of the race from the stage Jew. As a result race prejudice is fostered. Many of the caricatures that we have seen are unfair and dishonorable, and tend only to bring ridicule upon our people. If we have our foibles and weaknesses we do not mind seeing them reflected on the stage. All we demand is fair play."

The agitation of the Irish-Americans which brought about the elimination of stage lampoons on the Celtic race was commended. James O'Shaughnessey of the Irish Fellowship League attended to-night's meeting to give the conference the benefit of his advice.

Rabbi Tobias Schanfarber said that the majority of theatre patrons were Jews, and that if they protested as a body against the "blackguardism of their race" the theatrical producers would be quick to remedy the evil.

Prof. Ernest Freund of the University of Chicago said that the line should be drawn between the harmless and the vicious. The harmless caricature of the Jew, he said, was merely amusing. A. B. Seilenfreund, Grand Secretary of Benai B'rith, objected to the portrayal of the Jew as a pawnbroker and an incendiary, and said that such plays as "The Melting Pot" had done more to injure the race than the lampoons of low comedy.

SULZER VETO CALLS PRIMARY BILL FRAUD

Governor Rejects Blauvelt Measure as Miserable "Makeshift"—Anger in the Senate.

"OFFENSIVE," SAYS WAGNER

Col. Roosevelt Advertised as an Attraction at the Hearing on Sulzer's Own Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—Gov. Sulzer today vetoed the Blauvelt Primary bill in a message bristling with harsh epithets. He called it a fraud, and thereby enraged members of the Senate.

Just about the time that the veto was sent to the Legislature Col. Theodore Roosevelt was being advertised in the Governor's local organ as an attraction at the hearing on Sulzer's own Statewide primary bill, scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Should Col. Roosevelt come, it is not likely that he will be permitted to hold the centre of the stage for any length of time. Gov. Sulzer has learned that Judson Harmon when Governor of Ohio once visited the Legislature, and after a three hours' fight from the rostrum prevailed upon the lawmakers of his own party to pass not only a direct nominations bill, but eighteen other measures drafted in pursuance of party pledges. It was rumored at the Capitol to-night that Gov. Sulzer has a similar plan in mind, and that in all probability he will be the principal speaker in support of the Direct Nominations bill at the hearing. Gov. Sulzer himself was unwilling either to affirm or deny this rumor.

According to the best information obtainable at the Capitol the announcement that Col. Roosevelt would be on hand was based on a statement emanating from the Executive Chamber. Yet, the Governor, when asked this afternoon regarding the truth of the statement, said:

"Ask Col. Roosevelt. He will be heartily welcomed if he decides to come. I know he has been asked. This Direct Nominations bill of mine is a non-partisan measure. There is no reason why Col. Roosevelt should not support it most heartily. It would do the Colonel no harm to come up for the hearing."

Gov. Sulzer lost no time in soliciting the support of the Progressives, once he had made up his mind to use the direct nominations issue as a weapon in his fight on the Democratic organization.

Ex-Senator Frederick M. Davenport, who ran for Lieutenant Governor on the Bull Moose ticket, and Arthur C. Ludington, another Progressive, attended the first direct primary conference held in the Executive Chamber three weeks ago. The Governor at once named them on the Committee of One Hundred which was created to arouse sentiment for the Sulzer measure throughout the State.

Neither Mr. Davenport nor Mr. Ludington has been seen at subsequent direct nominations conferences held at the Capitol under Sulzer auspices.

The Progressives in the Assembly, all except one who happened to be absent, voted with the Democratic organization men for the Blauvelt bill amending the present direct primary law, although they were aware that Gov. Sulzer intended to veto it.

Gov. Sulzer Quick with Veto.

Gov. Sulzer sent a message vetoing the Blauvelt bill to the two branches of the Legislature this afternoon, fifteen minutes after the official copy of the bill had come before him for approval. In his message he cast serious reflection on the sponsor of the bill, Senator Blauvelt of Rockland, by characterizing the bill he was chiefly instrumental in drafting as "a fraud."

Gov. Sulzer's message caused amazement and anger in the Senate, where Senator Blauvelt is highly respected. The message was not read to the Senate, but news of what it contained spread rapidly among the members.

Senator Blauvelt himself, after reading the message, said that he would have something to say in reply when the Senate reconvenes on Monday night.

There is no mincing of words in the Governor's veto of the Blauvelt measure. It is referred to as "a fraud," "miserable makeshift," "mere patchwork," "a design to tinker with a grave subject," "enacted in bad faith," "wholly fraudulent," and "a glaring breach of the pledged faith of every member of the Legislature."

Gov. Sulzer spent the greater part of last night in writing the veto.

Calls Blauvelt Bill a Fraud.

In his message Gov. Sulzer said:

"The Blauvelt bill claims to be the fulfillment of the pledges of the last Democratic, Republican, and Progressive State platforms, and purports to change and perfect existing primary and election laws, in establishing genuine State-wide direct primaries for all candidates to be elected by the people.

"As a matter of fact, the bill is a fraud, and does nothing of the kind. At best it is a miserable makeshift."

Gov. Sulzer says he is convinced "that the slight amendments made to the existing laws are mere patchwork, changing only a few minor details that clearly demonstrate a design to tinker with a grave subject by way of subterfuge, in order to deceive the voters."

"These amendments will accomplish no honest reform, and would read like an amusing farce if it were not for the fact that the members of the present Legislature who sanctioned its enactment are irrevocably pledged and bound by the highest moral and political obligations to pass an honest and genuine State-wide direct primary law.

"Hence, in the light of all we know concerning this measure, it must be branded as enacted in bad faith; wholly fraudulent, and a glaring breach of the pledged faith of every member of the Legislature. There is no escape from this conclusion."

The Governor points out what he considers "the many shortcomings of the bill," and says "it does not extend the system of direct nominations in any way."

"When we consider the waste, the extravagance, the inefficiency, and the corruption," continues Gov. Sulzer, "which have recently been brought to light in connection with the administration of public affairs in our State, and which are the cause of painful humiliation to every thoughtful and patriotic citizen, all due, in no small degree, to the fact that in recent years political power has been gradually slipping away from the people, who should always control it and wield it, there can be no doubt as to the necessity of this legislation and as to our duty in this all-important matter.

"Every intelligent citizen is aware that those who subvert the Government to their personal advantage have found their greatest opportunities to do so through the adroit and skillful manipulation of our system of party caucuses and political conventions. We have been given leadership, dishonorable to the various political parties of the State, and we have been given party tickets which reflect this dishonorable leadership in disgraceful secret alliances between big business interests and crooked and corrupt politics. It must cease, or our free institutions are doomed.

"It is unnecessary for me, or any other man, to say that in continuing the delegate system in nominating State officers electors are not allowed to nominate directly. In continuing the delegate system we are therefore ignoring and repudiating our platform pledges and betraying the people with false pretenses. I shall not be a party to such repudiation; I shall not indorse such a betrayal of the people. No political party can make me a political hypocrite."

Glad to Have It Off His Mind.

Gov. Sulzer said this afternoon that he was glad to have the veto off his mind..

"When the people throughout the State read that message, he said, and digest its contents, I think there no longer will be any doubt as to where I stand on the subject of direct primaries or the sanctity of party pledges."

The Assembly had adjourned for the day when the message was sent up stairs. The Senate was busily at work on a long calendar when the message was received. By unanimous consent the message went over in the upper house.

Copies of the message, however, were available, and some of the lawmakers read what the Governor had to say. Senator Wagner said:

"The tone of this message is decidedly offensive, and there will be a reply to the Governor's characterization of the Blauvelt bill as a fraud, I have no doubt. It is a serious affront to one of the members of this body of whose integrity or conspicuous ability there can be no doubt in the mind of Gov. Sulzer or anybody else who knows him."

Despite the frequently reiterated assertion of Gov. Sulzer that the State is aflame with sentiment for his Direct Nominations bill, a most extraordinary campaign of acceleration from the Executive Chamber has been found necessary. Gov. Sulzer is appealing to the malcontents of his party. It is predicted that if the roll is called at the hearing on Saturday afternoon, it will contain the names of nearly every conspicuous enemy of the Democratic organization in the State.

Gov. Sulzer's campaign of acceleration is carried on through his private Secretary, Chester C. Platt. Judging from the reports that are coming in to the Executive Chamber, there is little doubt that the Assembly chamber will see the largest crowd it has held since the Governor's inauguration at the hearing. Gov. Sulzer insisted that his supporters bring delegations with them. What effect this will have on the lawmakers it is difficult to predict. The Democratic leaders of both houses say that in their opinion the Governor's Direct Nominations bill will not be passed either by the Senate or the Assembly.

NO WORD FROM ROOSEVELT.

His Response to Sulzer's Invitation to Attend Hearing Not Revealed.

Local Progressives had not decided last night whether or not to attend the hearing on the Sulzer Direct Primary bill which Gov. Sulzer announced would be held at Albany tomorrow. Francis W. Bird, the County Chairman, said the invitations had come only yesterday and the matter would be taken up to-day. It could not be learned whether or not Col. Roosevelt, who received an invitation from Gov. Sulzer to attend, would go. Mr. Bird said last night that the party was doing all it could to support the best direct primary legislation possible.

"We will support any first-class primary legislation," he said. "F. M. Davenport, Chairman of our Legislative Committee, and Arthur C. Ludington, Chairman of our Primary Legislation Committee, had a hand in framing the Sulzer bill, and it is likely that they will be present at the hearing. We will decide to-day about sending up a local delegation."

Theodore Douglas Robinson, State Chairman of the National Progressive Party, sent a letter to Gov. Sulzer yesterday quoting that part of the party's State platform which called for a real direct primary law, and adding "the National Progressive Party takes the same position to-day as it did at the time its platform was adopted, and we pledge ourselves to use all honorable means to assist in the enactment of a State-wide Direct Primary law."

Controller William A. Prendergast received an invitation from Gov. Sulzer to attend the hearing, and he will go to Albany, but not as a representative of the Progressive party.

BOTH HOUSES RUSH WORK.

Senate and Assembly Busy with Bills—Kendall's Measure Killed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—Both houses of the Legislature put in a busy day, clearing the decks for approaching final adjournment, which may be reached late next week. More than 100 measures were advanced in the Senate, while sixty bills were passed.

The Senate Codes Committee defeated the Kendall Stock Exchange bill, refusing to report it by a vote of three to three. Senator Stilwell, Chairman of the Codes Committee, avoided a vote on the bill. The bill is the one which was involved in the charges made by George H. Kendall, President of the New York Bank Note Company, against Senator Stilwell. The bill was designed to prevent alleged discrimination by the New York Stock Exchange against Mr. Kendall's company.

Senator Griffin's bill fixing at five cents the maximum rate of fare for suburban passenger traffic on the New York Central lines was designed to give the Bronx better transit facilities. Similar action was taken on Senator Torborg's bill, fixing five cents as the maximum fare on a railroad between Flatbush Avenue and Manhattan Crossing in Kings County.

Another railroad bill advanced by the Senate was introduced two months ago by Assemblyman Hearn. It requires that after July 1, 1920, cabooses shall be equipped with steel centre sills, four sleeping berths, properly furnished toilet rooms, lockers, and other facilities.

The Senate dealt a death blow to the Pollock bill requiring savings banks to maintain reserves of 15 per cent. This measure was advocated by George C. Van Tuyl, Superintendent of Banking. The Senate struck out the enacting clause, but permitted the bill to remain in general orders. Its introducer admitted that it could not be passed.

Senator Griffin, aided by Senator Stilwell, attempted to obtain the passage of the bill legalizing certain theatrical productions on Sunday. The measure was defeated some time ago, and the vote was reconsidered to-day. When the bill was again put on passage it lacked one vote.

The Senate advanced to the order of passage the constitutional amendment for the acquisition of property for municipal purposes before a Judge, with or without a jury. The bill also gives cities the right to condemn more property than is actually needed in laying out, widening, or extending parks and other public places.

Senator McClelland's Anti-Vivisection bill was killed by the Senate, receiving only eleven votes. This bill provided for an investigation of vivisection in this State. Senator McClelland charged that medical experimentation had been carried so far as the inoculation of children with serum which caused death.

The Senate passed the Boylan bill to prohibit bootblacking after 3 P. M. on Sundays, except in hotels and on ferryboats.

Senator Duhamel introduced a bill that no marriage licenses shall be issued except upon presentation by each party of a health certificate.

The annual appropriation bill, carrying $29,549,280, was passed by the Assembly. It is $2,420,767 in excess of the appropriation bill of last year.

The Assembly passed Assemblyman Silverstein's bill providing that after Jan. 1, 1914, no railroad company in New York City shall operate any cars with horses.

The Walker bill, adjusting telephone rates in New York City, was passed by the Assembly, 82 to 9. The bill provides for unlimited service and flat rates, the maximum charge for residences being fixed at $50 and for business houses at $125.

The Foley bill incorporating the Rockefeller Foundation was passed unanimously by the Assembly, and now goes to the Governor.

SIGNS CIVIL SERVICE BILL.

Sulzer Also Gives Commissioner Neu the Long Term.

ALBANY, April 24. —Gov. Sulzer has signed the bill to reorganize the Civil Service Commission. It fixes the time of the three commissioners at six years and increases the salaries of each commissioner from $3,000 to $5,000. The measure also authorizes to designate one member of the present commission to serve until Feb. 1, 1919.

Accordingly Mr. Sulzer designated Jacob Neu of Brooklyn for the long term, Meyer Wolff of New York for a four-year term and Commissioner James A. Lavery of Poughkeepsie, a Republican, for the two-year term.

Senate Confirms Weeks and Philbin.

ALBANY, April 24.—Without opposition the Senate to-day confirmed Gov. Sulzer's recent appointments of Bartow S. Weeks and Eugene A. Philbin of New York as Justices of the Supreme Court.

SULZER IS URGING A MERCHANT MARINE

Writes That He Has Hope of State's New Nautical School and Washington, Too.

LOOKING FOR LEGISLATION

F. B. Dalzell Believes Boys Will Eagerly Enter Now to Fit Themselves for Merchant Service.

Gov. Sulzer says in a letter received yesterday by Frederick B. Dalzell, President of the New York Board of Trade, that he is seeking legislation in Washington for the restoration of the American merchant marine, and that he regards the New York Nautical School bill, which he has signed, as a step in that direction. Mr. Dalzell was most active in urging the passage of the Nautical School measure, which takes control of the school from the City of New York and places it in the hands of the State. The school is maintained on the gunboat Newport, in the East River.

"This is a very important measure," writes the Governor to Mr. Dalzell, "and I hope you will give it the publicity to which it is entitled. I am taking the matter up with friends in Congress with the view of getting some legislation at the extraordinary session to restore the American merchant marine. This is a splendid step in the right direction and deserves more than a passing notice."

The Governor believes that the establishment and maintenance of nautical schools by the States will do much to spread the sentiment for a merchant marine of our own and encourage the movement by fitting lads for service on merchant vessels. Besides New York, Massachusettes and Pennsylvania have public marine schools. The New York Nautical School has heretofore been maintained by the city, under the direction of the Board of Education.

The Board of Education desired to be released from the care of the school, and the movement to have the State take it over was started by men prominent in shipping circles in New York. The organizations which gave support to the bill included the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, National Board of Steam Navigation, the Marine Society, Maritime Association, and Alumni of the New York Nautical School. The bill carried with it an appropriation of $100,000 for the maintenance of the school, which will be under the direction of a Board of Governors consisting of nine members selected from the organizations which aided the passage of the bill, and the State Board of Education. The members of this board will serve without pay. Boys of a certain age, who pass an examination as to their character and physical fitness, will be eligible to membership in the school. They will be instructed in navigation and engineering, and will be taken on cruises to foreign waters.

At his home, 111 Bainbridge Street, Brooklyn, Mr. Dalzell said last evening that he was confident that, under State control, the school would grow fast in popularity and importance. There were thousands of lads, he said, in this port, on the Hudson, the shores of the Great Lakes in this State, and the Great South Bay of Long Island who would welcome a chance to fit themselves in such a school for service on merchant ships. He expected, he said, that applications to join the school would come in at such a rate that the State would have to ask the Federal Government for a naval vessel much larger than the Newport, which is of only 1,010 tons displacement.

CALLS ON SULZER TO ACT.

Board of Estimate Asks for Emergency Message on Bus Monopoly.

The Board of Estimate adopted a resolution yesterday calling upon Gov. Sulzer to send to the Legislature an emergency message favoring the immediate passage of the Pollock-Walker bill for the control of stage coach companies. This bill aims to destroy the monopoly enjoyed by the Fifth Avenue Coach Company of such streets of the city as it can obtain permission to operate along. It would compel the company to go to the Board of Estimate for any new franchise, as well as to the Public Service Commission, and it would permit the city to grant the right to operate stage coaches over a street to more than one company.

In moving the resolution, Borough President McAneny said:

"The bill has not advanced very rapidly and has been opposed by the railroad companies and the stage coach company."

The bill is at present in charge of the Senate Committee on Cities and the Assembly Committee on Rules, and the resolution declared that unless the bill was passed this session "a legalized and uncontrolled monopoly would continue to exist in the City of New York to the detriment of the interests of the city and contrary to the principles of home rule and fair play."

Mass Meeting for Widows' Pensions.

A mass meeting in advocacy of the bill introduced into the Legislature at Albany by Assemblyman Levy providing for State pensions for widowed mothers will be held at Cooper Union to-night at 8 o'clock under the auspices of the People's Institute and the League of Mothers' Clubs. John Lovejoy Elliott of the Hudson Guild will preside at the meeting, and among the speakers will be ex-Commissioner of Charities Robert H. Hebberd, now Secretary of the State Board of Charities; the Rev. John Haynes Holmes of the Church of the Messiah, Mrs. William Einstein, President of the Widowed Mothers' Fund; Patrick Mellen, and Edward Cassidy.

PUZZLE IN COMPENSATION.

Committee Unable to Draw Measure Satisfactory to All.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—The sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee appointed last night for the purpose of framing some compromise workmen's compensation bill spent practically all day at the task, but to-night had not been able to draw a measure satisfactory to the labor organizations on the one hand and the State Insurance Department on the other. There is likely to be more discussion over the workmen's compensation measure than over any other bill now pending in the Legislature, except Gov. Sulzer's State-wide primary bill.

These measures remain to be acted upon: Direct nominations, workmen's compensation, the Murtaugh bill providing for hydro-electric development under State auspices, the bill repealing the Long Sault charter, the Stock Exchange incorporation bill, and the 15 per cent. call loan bill, the bill reorganizing the State Health Department, a bill amending the conservation law generally, the Governor's salary bills, amendments to the automobile law, and the New York police bills. The Senate has yet to act on the Governor's nominations for State offices, with the exception of the two Justiceships. Action on the nominations was put off until next week.

Senator Wagner said this evening that he hoped the final adjournment would be taken a week from Saturday.

BECOMES TWO-CENT PAPER.

Scranton Tribune-Republican Follows Lead of Public Ledger.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., April 24.—After citing the action of the Philadelphia Public Ledger in announcing an increase in its price to two cents in view of the fact that the paper obviously could not be sold for less, except "at a material loss on each copy," the Tribune-Republican will take similar action to-morrow. In an editorial announcement, it says:

"The same problem is confronting practically every penny newspaper publisher in the country. Considering the amount of the investment and talent required in its production, the one-cent newspaper is to-day the cheapest article offered for sale in America.

"It is not to be wondered, therefore, that most publishers are considering a return to the old two-cent rate, and that some of them have already done so. Their action gives no excuse for fault finding on the part of their patrons, for what other business would seriously contemplate the sale of its product for less than cost price?"

VERY few people associate constipation with their nervous system. Emotion, excitement and worry have a direct effect upon the bowels. Everybody has had that experience. Therefore, such a temporary interference needs a gentle stimulation and NOT a powerful, drastic purgative which paralyses your nervous system, puts you into the chronic class and causes an irreparable injury.

CONSTIPATION, due to nervous irritability, requires a remedy which will give quick action within an hour or so after taken; causes no further discomfort; is harmless and gentle. There is such a remedy—HUNYADI JANOS WATER, the Natural Laxative; to be taken at any time on an empty stomach; ½ tumblerful acts promptly. REMEMBER!

RAILROADS TAKE UP PHYSICAL VALUATION

Heads of 52 Lines Confer Here on Law Which Goes Into Effect Next Tuesday.

SEEK STANDARD OF VALUE

President Rea Named as Head of Committee of Eighteen to Find One—Another Tax on Roads.

Fifty-two of the more important railroads of the country were representd yesterday at a four-hour conference held in the Board room of the New York Central lines at the Grand Central station, to discuss the Physical Valuation Act approved by Congress on March 1 and which becomes effective on Thursday next. The meeting was held behind closed doors and those who flitted in and out merely told the newspapermen that it was "a general discussion" and that no definite policy had been decided upon. The conference began at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. At 6:30 after the last of the railroad conferrees had gone this brief statement was given to the newspapermen:

> A meeting of the executive officers representing practically all of the railroads of the country, was held in the offices of the New York Central Railroad to consider the questions involved in the act of Congress approved on March 1, 1913, for Federal railroad valuation. After a general discussion a permanent committee was appointed, with Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, as Chairman. The committee has eighteen members and is composed of representatives of seven Eastern railroads, seven Western railroads, and four Southern railroads.

It was also stated that the full committee would not be announced for several days because there might be some changes. No date was set for the first meeting of the committee. It will be subject to the call of Chairman Rea.

The gathering was brought about by a call sent out by Mr. Rea, who presided at the meeting. The formal conference lasted an hour, during which it was decided to name a permanent committee, inasmuch as the debate was not productive of definite conclusions. W. C. Brown, President of the New York Central Lines, left soon after the formal conference. The informal conference and discussion continued for three hours more.

Besides Mr. Rea and Mr. Brown, the conferees included: W. H. Truesdale, President of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western; Joseph Wood, of the Western Division of the Pennsylvania Lines; F. D. Underwood, President of the Erie; Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio; Henry Walters, Chairman of the Atlantic Coast Line; Milton H. Smith, President of the Louisville & Nashville; E. B. Thomas, President of the Lehigh Valley, L. E. Johnson, President of the Norfolk & Western; T. M. Emerson, President of the Atlantic Coast Line; W. J. Harahan, President of the Seaboard Air Line; B. A. Worthington, President of the Chicago & Alton; George F. Baer, President of the Reading; Ralph Peters, President of the Long Island; W. B. Story, Vice President of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé; B. F. Winchell, President of the St. Louis & San Francisco; J. M. Fitzgerald, President of the Western Maryland; H. M. Kocherspeyer, Vice President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford; E. T. Jeffery, Chairman of the Denver & Rio Grande; Kingdon Gould, of the Denver & Rio Grande; H. U. Mudge, President of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific; Marvin Hughitt, Chairman of the Chicago & Northwestern; W. W. Finley, President of the Southern Railroad; Julius Krutschnitt, Chairman of the Southern Pacific; W. A. Gardner, President of the Chicago & Northwestern.

As the railroad officials left the boardroom they were approached by the newspaper men, but not one was found who would discuss what had taken place. The reporters were referred to President Rea of the Pennsylvania, but Mr. Rea had no statement to make. It was said authoritatively, however, that no conclusion was reached as to a standard of valuation. That is one of the questions the committee of eighteen will consider. Another general meeting of the executive officers would be called when a definite programme is ready, it was said.

Senator Robert La Follette of Wisconsin originally proposed the legislation which was passed by Congress on March 1 over the protests of the railroad men. The act directs the Inter-State Commerce Commission to "investigate, ascertain and report the valuation of all the property owned or used by every common carrier." This work, it was believed, would call for an expenditure of some $6,000,000, and would take five years to complete. The railroads are called upon to lend their aid to the commission. This means a heavy expense to the railroads, which the executive officers declare is useless.

A number of the Presidents were called before the Senate Inter-State Commerce Committee when the bill was being considered last February. They pointed out that in twenty different States one or more railroads had attempted to place a value on their properties, but that in each case different valuation methods had been used by the engineers. The suggestion was made then that in order to avoid this confusion, a railway valuation board of nine members be established, three of the members to be selected by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, three by the American Railway Association, and one each by the chief engineer of the army, the navy, and the American Society of Civil Engineers. No action was taken on the suggestion, however, and the railroad men are now confronted with this problem of devising some standard method of valuation. Here are some of the things which the law provides:

> That the commission shall, as hereinafter provided, investigate, ascertain, and report the value of the property of every common carrier subject to the provisions of this act, and used by it for the convenience of the public. To enable the commission to make such investigation and report, it is authorized to employ such engineers, experts, and other assistants as may be necessary, who shall have power to administer oaths, examine witnesses, and take testimony.
> In such investigation said commission shall ascertain and report in detail as to each piece of property owned or used by said common carrier for railway purposes, the original cost to date, the cost of reproduction new, the cost of reproduction in depreciated condition, and an analysis of the methods by which these several costs are obtained, and the reasons for their differences, if any. The commission shall, in a like manner, ascertain and report separately other values, if any, of the property of said common carrier, and an analysis of the methods of valuation employed and of the reasons for any differences between any such values and each of the foregoing values.

The freight-rate problem was one which received serious consideration in the conference. Railroad men, it was said, believed that the purpose of the law was to provide a basis for future use in dealing with this question. Such railroads as the New Haven and the Alton have been cited by the advocates of the Physical Valuation Act as instances in which there is a direct connection between excessive capitalization and freight rates. It has been said also that the railroads never take watered stock into consideration, but insist that freight rates are too low when a company is unable to pay dividends on overcapitalization. On the other hand, the railroad men have held that investigation would show that the railroads were undercapitalized rather than overcapitalized.

A first edition of "The Lost Galleon and Other Tales," San Francisco, 1867, Bret Harte's first volume of poems printed at his private charge, went to the Library of Congress for $12.50.

James F. Drake gave $7.25 for the earliest issue of Bret Harte's "Poems," Boston, 1871, with a two-page letter laid in of Harte to Osgood, the publisher. The same bidder obtained for $6 a first edition of John Burrough's "Winter Sunshine," with a letter of the author inserted. A first edition of Robert Browning's "Fifine at the Fair," with a letter of the author inserted, brought only $5.

The sale will be ended to-day.

USED GLASS GLOBE TO EFFECT A CURE

Shoemaker "Doctor" Didn't Know His Patient Was Medical Society Agent.

CHANTED OVERACHINGARMS

Faith the Basis of the Cure, "Prof. Ross" Explained — Pleads Guilty in Court.

Domenico Cargulo, a shoemaker of 2,251 Seventh Avenue, and also known as "Prof. Ross," a curer of human ills, was brought before the Justices in Special Sessions yesterday and pleaded guilty to practicing medicine without a license. He was remanded one week for sentence.

Cargulo was arrested on the complaint of Stephen Fontena, an agent of the County Medical Society, who set forth that on March 28 he was passing the shoemaker's establishment and was attracted by a sign which read, "Professor Ross, all pains and sore eyes cured without medicine." Fontena entered the store and was met by a woman, who informed him that Prof. Ross was out, and asked if he would leave a card and make an appointment. This was accordingly done, and on March 31 the agent for the Medical Society again entered the shop.

Cargulo was seated in his chair, hammering shoes, when Fontena entered, and smilingly asked him what he could do for him.

"Is Prof. Ross in"? asked the complainant, "I have an appointment with him."

The shoemaker resumed his pounding upon the shoe, and, after driving in a few nails, surveyed his work approvingly and said:

"No, the professor is out. Can't I be of some assistance to you?"

Fontena told him of the appointment, and, leaning over in a confidential manner, the defendant said:

"There is no Prof. Ross, or, if there is, I am that person. I can cure all manner of ills without resorting to the use of drugs or pills; in fact, I am the exponent of the new cure. You see, I say there is a Prof. Ross, because the patients I have place no faith in the cures of a shoemaker, and therefore I cannot cure them. Faith is what does the trick; faith in the idea that you are to be cured. Now, what seems to trouble you at present?"

The complainant said his arms pained him very much, and, getting up from his chair, the shoemaker led the way to a rear room, where he placed a chair for the investigator to sit upon. Another chair was placed near this, and, seating himself in this in such a manner that his knees touched those of the complainant, Cargulo said:

"Now, this little globe of glass is of great assistance to me, although faith does the trick. Now, then, close your eyes and think of nothing."

Fontena did as instructed, and the shoemaker passed the glass globe over his arms, muttering a sort of chant. This continued for five minutes, and then Cargulo stopped and asked if the arms felt any better. The complainant said they felt much better, but added that his right arm was still in bad shape. Cargulo said he would fix that, and, getting up, tied a piece of cloth about the arm. He then said:

"I admit that I cannot cure you in one treatment. Who can for the small sum of $1? But I can guarantee a cure in from three to ten treatments. Now, then, I suggest that you take some 'Ardito Pills.' They will assist you."

"I can't remember that name. Can you write it down for me?" asked the complainant.

Cargulo then drew from his pocket a soiled card, reading "D. Cargulo. All work neatly done at the lowest prices." He wrote underneath this "Ardito Pills" and handed the card to Fontena and said he hoped to see him again.

"You certainly will," replied the complainant. "You shall see me in court."

ATTACKED T. F. RYAN'S RAIL.

Two Boys Caught Trying to Break Off Bronze Figures.

Two boys who gave their names in the Harlem Court as Luke Butler, 16, of 258 East Seventy-eighth Street, and Charles Carren, 16, of 271 East Seventy-eighth Street, were held in $1,000 bail for trial on a charge of malicious mischief for attempting to wreck the bronze railing around the residence of Thomas F. Ryan, at 858 Fifth Avenue.

Patrolman Whelpley of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station said that he caught the two boys on Wednesday night as they were trying to break off several figures from the railing with a piece of lead pipe. Boys have been arrested several times before for attempting to break pieces from the railing, but Mr. Ryan has never prosecuted them. Yesterday, however, Mr. Ryan's watchman, John McCauley, appeared against the boys, and they were both held.

EXCISE MEN SEIZE $60,000 IN LIQUORS

TAKE 800 BARRELSOF GOODS

Some of the Places Had U. S. Revenue License, but None Was Licensed by the State.

Sixty agents of the State Excise Department, led by Deputy Excise Commissioners James J. Nolan of Albany, and Thomas McAvoy, raided twenty-two unlicensed liquor stores on the east side yesterday and seized $60,000 worth of wines and spirits. Some of the raiders traveled in automobiles, and with them went Charles F. Firestone and George L. Donnellan, attorneys for the department. The raids were made upon search and seizure warrants issued on Wednesday by Justice Irving Lehman of the Supreme Court, on evidence submitted by special excise agents, who, for several weeks, had been gathering evidence against places in which liquor was sold without the State license.

The arrival of the raiders caused a sensation in each neighborhood visited, and about each place gathered large crowds that often jeered the State officials. The raids netted about 800 barrels of liquors, besides a small mountain of demijohns, bottles, and case goods. It is said to have been the largest series of seizures ever made by the Excise Department in this city.

The first place visited was 33 Rivington Street, where Samuel Rosenthal has a wine cellar. While one party of agents searched the premises for contraband goods, another party crossed to 34 Rivington Street, another Rosenthal place. Rosenthal has a United States Internal Revenue certificate allowing him to sell in quantities of more than five gallons. Deputy Commissioner Nolan said that the department had gathered evidence showing that the wine merchant had been selling in less than five gallon lots, and this without a State license. At 33 the State seized thirty-five barrels of liquor, and at 34, about one hundred barrels more.

One of the interesting places visited was the Café Monopol, at Ninth Street and Second Avenue, a place much frequented by east side politicians. There was taken to storage from this café about 800 bottles of beer and some bottled spirits. Deputy Commissioner Nolan said the Monopol was on the department black list. It was the second time within twelve months that the place had been visited. Peter Roth, the proprietor, the officials say, is willing to take out a license, but has been unable to obtain the consent of property holders in the vicinity as required by law.

Very vigorous were the protests of Osias Lebenson, keeper of a small restaurant at 145 Forsyth Street, against the deputies entering his cellar.

"The key is gone," he said, when the demand was made that he unlock the door. The agents stormed, but Lebenson repeated that the key was missing and asserted besides there was no liquor in the cellar. An agent procured a hammer and a chisel and was getting ready to break down the door when the missing key was produced, and the whole party went trooping down the stairs. They found Lebenson was right. There was no liquor stored there. The only compensation for the visit was a gallon and a half of wine which one of the agents found under the counter in the restaurant.

The pupils of Public School 105 had just been dismissed at noon when the automobiles drew up in front of the restaurant of Lippa Novogradsky at 281 East Fourth Street, next door to the school. In five minutes the street was nearly blocked by a crowd made up mostly of school children. The raid appeared to be an unexpected treat for them and a majority of the children went without luncheon to stay and see the fun. Here 55 barrels were seized.

Repeated knocking upon the door of Meyer Lichtman's place at 88 Cannon Street served only to bring a crowd to the scene. Finally the Deputy Commissioners came to the conclusion that the opinion of a neighbor that "the boss was not in" was correct. An agent was left on guard with instructions to make the seizure as soon as the place was opened up, and the automobile squad scurried across to 85 Willett Street, a resort run by A. Paget. Here twenty-five barrels, a cask, 150 demijohns, and a number of jugs were seized.

Very unlucky was Samuel Steinlauf, keeper of a wine shop at 184 Stanton Street, who had taken out a United States license on April 18 and had only been in the place two weeks. Thirty-two barrels were seized there. The next place visited was 85 Attorney Street, where Jacob Berel keeps a small restaurant. The proprietor had gone out and taken the keys of the cellar with him. An agent was left on watch with instructions to seize the liquid contents of the cellar.

The store of the Keystone Vineyard Company, of which P. R. Lepanto was said to be in charge, was next visited. Here ninety-five barrels and a quantity of bottled goods were seized. The raiders found the store of Lenaro & Pinello, at 276 First Avenue, well stocked, and seized thirty-two barrels of liquor, 500 bottles of wine, and twenty-three cases of beer. One of the smallest seizures was made at the grocery store of Tony Caracausi, 609 East Twelfth Street. The visit to Tony added only four barrels to the list of seized goods. This place is directly opposite an almost completed school building. Several other small shops were raided.

Why Best-Informed People Read Advertising

We are frequently asked:

"Why do you spend so much money in advertising—for surely nobody reads it?"

And thus we discover that there really are people who THINK they don't read advertising. Perhaps they do not read down the columns. Perhaps they turn the page quickly, when they see that it contains only advertising. But, no matter how quickly they turn it, they must see "GIMBELS" at the top, or bottom, and learn that we have much to say about our business.

And SOME people MUST read advertising very thoroughly—else GIMBELS—the store that didn't exist three years ago—wouldn't be one of the busiest stores in New York City today. For, though Broadway and 33d Street is the very HEART OF NEW YORK, so many thousands of people wouldn't place "GIMBELS" at the top of their visiting list each day, unless our Daily Store News was interesting, and they had read much of it with care and enthusiasm.

Now What Is It That Makes So Many Thousands Read GIMBEL Advertising?

Here are a few of the things that aroused very great interest during the past FIVE DAYS:

SUNDAY'S ADVERTISING from GIMBELS told of:
"The Newest Modes of Paris"—the Mme. Pompadour Blouse of cobwebby tulle and lace.
The new Fichu Neckfixings for women.
The predicted vogue for lace veils.
THREE fashion notes that the well-informed women would not wish to miss.
And these, with true investment interest.
Women's draped Wraps of bead-encrusted net—just off the "Kaiser"—at a much lower price.
The London-Oriental Rug Fair, presenting a superb assemblage of Eastern Carpets, in a unique setting, at extraordinary economies.
And a dozen other announcements of large interest.

MONDAY'S ADVERTISING told a helpful story of how to make the all-year-round home "blossom forth in Summer garb"—describing and picturing the new Summer things in furniture, floor coverings, draperies and the many devices for comfortable and easy housekeeping.
It told women about the new "uncorseted figure."
It told interesting stories of the new silks and cottons.
It printed a message for the Boy Scouts of America.

TUESDAY'S ADVERTISING told some secrets about the newest Summer Millinery.
It told women why the camisole is worn, and how.
It told how the Summer Frocks got their inspiration from Marie Antoinette.
It told about the securing of INTRINSIC VALUE when buying Diamond Jewelry, and proved why an investment at GIMBELS NOW would be profitable.
It told how to select a Piano to satisfy for a lifetime.

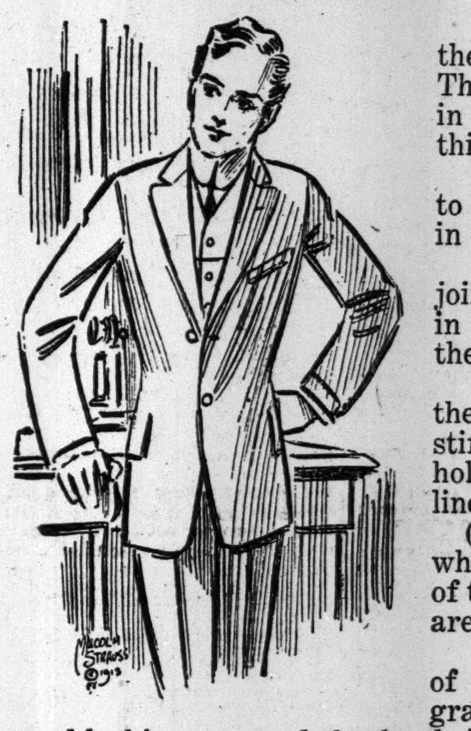
WEDNESDAY'S ADVERTISING told authoritatively what was new in Correct Millinery for motoring, for steamer wear, and for outdoor sports.
It described the new fabric for Little Tots' Coats.
It told about the new furore for Lace Blouses, and an interesting word about securing them economically.

THURSDAY'S ADVERTISING sounded the glad note of the days Out-of-Doors—launches, canoes, golf, tennis, fishing, camping—fascinating to the bungalower and week-ender.
It made an important announcement about Costumes from Paris.
It told men about the new Russian Cord Shirts.

This much in five days—and yet this is only a fraction of the news that was told. The LIVEST, freshest, tersest, but completest story of what is correct in Fashionable Apparel and Furnishings for the Home.

That is why clever people are constant readers of Advertising. And that is why people who read Advertising are BEST INFORMED.

That is why advertising—when it is prepared as GIMBEL Advertising is prepared—is part of the LIVE and interesting Daily News. Every word of fashion is authoritative. Every statement of fact is true, to our best knowledge and belief.



GIMBELS

MEN'S NEW SUITS

That Emphasize the Fashion for Flannel

There's a basis of sound common-sense in the choice of flannels for men's Summer wear. They are soft and pleasant to the touch, light in weight, keep their shape better than most thin materials, and wrinkle less easily.

Besides that, they are fashionable—which, to many people, is a sufficiently valid reason in itself.

The new Flannel Suits which have just joined this fine GIMBEL Summer stock are in Oxford gray and Oxford blue. Each of them with white pin stripes, in two widths.

The tailoring is full of Summer comfort—the coats entirely innocent of padding or stiffening, relying on GOOD TAILORING to hold their shape. Patch pockets. Quarter-lined with silk specially chosen for GIMBELS.

(We want to state, in parentheses, that when we say "no padding," we mean it. Most of the so-called "English models" around town are about half padded.)

$32 for these Suits. Other handsome Suits of flannel at $27.50 to $40, including plain gray, half silk-lined, at $35. Also some very good-looking gun and shepherd checks in a soft-finished cassimere that is first cousin to flannel, quarter silk-lined, at $30 to $37.50.

Interest Attaches to Some Suits at $19.50

Because they include a variety of Summer materials, in smart but quiet patterns, made up in several good models, including a semi-English effect. Also because they normally command several dollars more a suit.

Light-weight Overcoats, too, at $19.50, with the same added measure of value.

These SOFT SHIRTS Have New Effects In Russian Cords

Some are in two tones of lavender, blue or tan, while others have cords of contrasting colors. All are on fine mercerized madras, with white cords running through it. Plain bosoms and soft cuffs. Shirts that will stand the test of the coatless season—and are as full of comfort as they are of good looks. $1.50 each.

Also new are colored Shirts of fine madras, to which little Jacquard figures add life, and with printed seersucker stripes, (plaited bosoms) or neat figures, (plain bosoms). $2 each.

The apex of comfort—and elegance—is reached by Shirts of very fine white crepe de chine, made with soft cuffs, at $6.50.

GIVES FRIEDMANN CREDIT FOR CURE

Young Man in Advanced Stage of Pulmonary Tuberculosis Now Reported Well.

RECEIVED THREE INJECTIONS

California Doctor Obtained Preparation Through Friedmann's Classmate and Treated Him.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 24.—Fred W. Lang, Jr., of 144 Keil Street, North Tonawanda, who was taken in February to Pasadena, Cal., suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis in an advanced stage, has returned apparently cured by the Friedmann treatment. When he left he was so weak he could hardly walk, and Dr. C. T. Crance, who attended him, said there was little hope for him.

About that time Dr. Friedmann arrived in New York, and Dr. Henry G. Pyle of Pasadena was designated by the State of California to go to New York and investigate. Dr. Pyle was a personal friend of Dr. George Hyde of Pittsburgh, a classmate of Dr. Friedmann, and through him the Californai doctor obtained sufficient vaccine to treat three patients.

He returned to California and selected Lang as one of the patients. Lang had just suffered two hemorrhages and was very weak. In a few days he had gained two pounds. Another injection was given, and later a third. After remaining under observation of the California doctor, Lang was allowed to return to his home near this city. He arrived a week ago apparently a well man.

To-day Dr. C. T. Crance, who was commissioned by the State of California to make weekly examinations of the patient, said that Lang had not a symptom of tuberculosis, and was apparently absolutely cured. When Lang went to California the State Health Department made a verified statement that he was in an advanced stage of tuberculosis.

The last injection was given over two weeks ago. Lang has gained twelve pounds in weight since that time, and says he feels as well as ever.

"When I was treated for the first time," said Lang to-night, "I was so bad that I did not care whether I lived or died. I had suffered two hemorrhages a few days before and was very weak. A few days after I received the first injection I gained two pounds, but lost that weight the day after the second injection. Five days after I received the second injection I began to feel better and gained in strength. I have continued to gain daily."

FRIEDMANN TREATS FIFTY.

Finds Improvement in Fifteen—Girl Regains Use of Limbs.

Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann treated fifty patients yesterday afternoon at the Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases. Fifteen of these patients had already received the first injection and were ready for further treatment. Dr. M. A. Sturm, Dr. Friedmann's assistant, said that a marked improvement was apparent in the patients to whom the vaccine had been administered a month ago.

Dr. Max Landesmann, Superintendent of the People's Hospital, 20 Second Avenue, was present at yesterday afternoon's clinic. It was at the People's Hospital that Dr. Friedmann gave the first demonstration, injecting the vaccine into three patients, and was severely criticised by several physicians for his methods. Dr. Landesmann said yesterday that a wonderful improvement had taken place in the condition of Miss Berger, one of the three patients. Before the vaccine was injected she was badly crippled from tuberculosis of the joints, Dr. Landesmann said, but she was now able to use her limbs freely and recently had even danced. There are in the People's Hospital now ten patients who were treated in Providence, R. I., by Dr. Friedmann. Dr. Landesmann has received a letter from Gov. Pothier of Rhode Island asking him to forward reports of the progress of these patients. Dr. Friedmann has been forced to deny the request for a second visit to the People's Hospital as his time is fully taken up in the preparation of the vaccine and in watching patients who have already received the treatment.

In his apartments at the Hotel Ansonia yesterday morning Dr. Friedmann showed two small brown vials containing enough of the vaccine to treat 150 patients. He said that his plans for the distribution of the vaccine had not been completed and would not be for a week or ten days.

Dr. Friedmann plans to go to Canada in about a week to administer second injections in the cases he treated there three weeks ago. After returning to New York he will complete his treatment of patients in this city and then go back to Berlin.

One of Dr. Friedmann's visitors yesterday said that he had been authorized to request Dr. Friedmann to visit Baltimore and give a demonstration either at the Johns Hopkins University or one of the three tuberculosis sanitariums in Maryland.

Mask and Wig Club's Play.

The members of the Mask and Wig Club of the University of Pennsylvania will arrive in New York to-night from Philadelphia with a large delegation of students accompanying them. Saturday afternoon and evening the club is to present at Wallack's Theatre its new musical play "Maid in Germany," in which the students have already made a hit in Philadelphia and Washington. A special production has been made this year, as it is the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization's first appearance.

Not with Clarence R. Levy.

In the account in THE TIMES yesterday of the suicide of William V. Robbins, the lawyer who shot and killed his nine-year-old son and then slashed his throat with a razor Wednesday night, the statement was made that Mr. Robbins was associated in business with Clarence R. Levy at 55 Liberty Street. Mr. Levy is a real estate broker and had no relations with Mr. Robbins, of whom he declared yesterday he had no knowledge.

FINE GOWNS BUT NO FOOD.

Wife of Mining Promoter Says She Was Used to Impress His Friends.

Alphonse Charles Charlot, a Mexican promoter, reputed to be wealthy, but a member of Sheriff Harburger's Alimony Club in the Ludlow Street Jail, because of his failure to pay $40 a month alimony pending the trial of a divorce suit, was brought before City Court Judge Schmuck yesterday as defendant in the suit of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Anna Shannon, to recover $600 which she alleges she lent him. Mrs. Shannon testified that she had lent many thousand dollars to her son-in-law, and that last Summer, while she was with him on a coasting steamer off Sandy Hook, he had obtained $70 from her on the threat that he would commit suicide unless it was given to him.

His wife, Mrs. Dace M. Charlot, testified in her mother's behalf that, though her husband obtained large sums from his mother-in-law, she herself suffered many privations while living with him at the Hotel Seymour, often lacking food.

At this point, the lawyer for the defendant, Edward A. Isaacs of 55 Liberty Street, dramatically spread before the witness a numbers of papers and asked: "How then do you explain these bills for $485 worth of clothing furnished you last Summer by your husband?"

"That is delightfully simple," the witness answered. "He furnished me with those gowns and opera cloaks to enable me to make an impression upon his friends to whom he sold his wildcat mining stock, among them being you, Mr. Isaacs."

To the lawyer's vehement objections to this unsolicited testimony, Mrs. Charlot continued: "You know very well that he got your money and you got his mining stock."

The jury awarded Mrs. Shannon the full amount sued for, and Mr. Charlot was taken back to the Ludlow Street Jail.

VISITORS TO CONVICT BRIG.

Ancient Carriers of British Prisoners Attracts the Curious Here.

The old convict brig Success, which was moored at the foot of West Seventy-ninth Street on Wednesday, was visited yesterday by a crowd, who explored the dungeons in the hold, where the convicts were confined, loaded with chains, and listened to the account given by the guides of the tortures inflicted upon the unfortunates by the brutal warders. In the days when the Success was used for conveying convicts to Australia, then called Van Diemen's Land, a man could be transported for killing a rabbit that he caught on his land or for snaring a pheasant.

The success was built in Moulmain Burma of teak and copper sheathed in 1790 for the old East India Company, but was so low that she was sold to the Government. She is 135 feet long and 598 tons burden, and is lightly sparred for a brig of her size. Her brow is almost as bluff as the stern. She was 96 days sailing from the London Docks to Boston a year ago. There are stories of ghosts clanking their chains and weird, marrow freezing groans being emitted from the dark dungeons below the orlop deck for those, who like thrills and like to hear how people suffered in the good old days.

25,000 GIRLS IN WHITE.

They Will Head the May Day Parade of the Hebrew Trades League.

According to Samuel Leibowitz, chief organizer of the United Hebrew Trades League and Grand Marshal of the annual May Day parade of that organization, the parade this year will be headed by 25,000 girl garment workers dressed in white duck suits with red collars and cuffs.

Four thousand striking kosher bakers, dressed in white, will also parade. The bakers will carry on a truck a monster loaf of bread made from three barrels of flour, and sixteen other strikers will bear aloft a cake in the composition of which one barrel of pastry flour was used. More than 100,000 men and women unionists will be in line, and 100 bands have been engaged to furnish music.

Miss Leonora O'Reilly of the Women's Trades Union League last night issued 10,000 invitations to the girl members of the White Goods Workers' Union to participate in the equal suffrage parade on the afternoon of May 3. The girls will wear the colors of the league, blue and yellow, and sashes of the Equal Suffrage Party, red, white, and green.

Stella Hammerstein as Authoress.

Stella Hammerstein, daughter of Oscar Hammerstein, is to figure as authoress-actress and stage director in a new sketch, "Getting the Goods," which will be produced in a couple of weeks. The playlet is written by Miss Hammerstein and Mrs. Frank Sheridan. In the leading rôle Miss Hammerstein will be seen as an up-to-date newspaper woman.

CHANGES IN "THE GEISHA."

Virginia Earle to Play the Heroine —New Players Liked.

Several changes in the cast of "The Geisha" were put inoto effect last night, mostly among the feminine parts. Pauline Hall, as Lady Constance, was replaced by Mary Ambrose, and Clara Palmer was seen in the rôle of Juliette, the French girl, formerly played by Georgia Caine. Mana Zucca was to have sung the prima donna rôle of O Mimosa San in place of Alice Zerpilli, but was unable to appear because of a cold. Edith Thayer, the understudy, appeared and was well liked by the audience. Next Monday Virginia Earle will take the place of Lina Abarbanell as Molly Seamore. Miss Earle was in one of the first productions of the piece. Only one male rôle was changed. Donald McDonald appearing as Dick Cunningham in place of Charles King. James T. Powers, Edwin Stevens, Frank Pollock, and Carl Gantvoort will continue in their original rôles in the piece.

"The Car of Greatest Motor Efficiency."

THE PROOF.

The engineering department of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has recently tested out many makes of cars with much highly specialized apparatus. This was done to determine what make of car showed the greatest motor efficiency. In these trials the Velie car won out conclusively, showing more power delivered to the rear wheels than any others, figuring the size of the motor.

Remember also that the Velie is backed by 70 years' manufacturing experience and unlimited resources.

THREE-PARTY FUSION TO FIGHT TAMMANY

Fall Campaign Committee of 107 Named, with Representation Equally Divided.

TO ORGANIZE NEXT WEEK

Whitman, McAneny, and Mitchel Most Favored at Present as Mayoralty Timber.

The personnel of the Citizens' Municipal Committee, which was formed to make war on Tammany at the municipal election next Fall, was made public last night by Henry Moskowitz, Chairman of the Provisional Committee of Twenty, which has been carefully selecting the permanent committee for the last month. There are 107 members, and more will probably be added as the campaign gets under way.

The committee is made up of representatives of the three political parties, Democratic, Republican, and Progressive, with several independents thrown in. It was also selected so that each borough should have a representation according to population.

Manhattan has 44 members; Brooklyn, 37; the Bronx, 13; Queens, 9, and Richmond, 4. In Manhattan there are 12 Progressives, 12 Republicans, 12 Democrats, and 8 independents. Brooklyn has 11 Progressives, 11 Republicans, 9 Democrats, and 6 independents. The Bronx has 4 Progressives, 3 Republicans, 5 Democrats, and 1 independent; Queens has 3 from each of the three parties, and Richmond has 2 Democrats, 1 Republican, and 1 Progressive. Host of Men to Choose From.

Chairman Moskowitz said that the list had been selected from "an embarrassment of riches" after the provisional committee of twenty had toiled over it for more than a month.

"We tried to get a committee of representative citizens," he said, "from the various political parties who would all unite against Tammany in a common effort to give the city a clean, efficient, and progressive government for the next four years. We will organize on May 1, and from then on we will be strictly on the job every minute trying to unite all the anti-Tammany forces. We intend to offer the city a ticket which every citizen interested in good, efficient, and progressive city government can support."

It was learned from other sources last night, however, that when the committee got down to business three possible candidates would be considered before anything else was done. They are District Attorney Whitman, Borough President McAneny, and John Purroy Mitchel, President of the Board of Aldermen. Unless some other very promising Mayoralty material appears, it is likely that one of these three men will be finally decided upon to lead the anti-Tamamny forces.

All the members of the provisional committee of twenty are on the permanent committee. It was said last night that Col. Roosevelt was not consulted as to the make up of the committee, but that he was in favor of the anti-Tammany movement.

DANA QUITS STREET CAR JOB

Ethical Bride Induces Cambridge Heir to Seek Other Work.

BOSTON, April 24.—After a month's experience as a conductor on the Middlesex & Boston street railroad, Edmund Trowbridge Dana, grandson of Henry W. Longfellow, the poet, has resigned. It is said that his wife urged him to give up the street car job, and that he will go into newspaper work. About a year ago Dana married Miss Jennie Holliday of London. The wedding was widely commented upon as an "ethical" marriage, because the ceremony was conducted under a ritual written by the bride. Dana is a son of Richard Henry Dana, a wealthy resident of Cambridge.

CITY EMPLOYES PROTEST.

Represented Against Ordinance Compelling Them to Live Here.

There was a public hearing at the City Hall yesterday on the ordinance recently passed by the Aldermen requiring city employes to live within the State. The Mayor did not indicate whether he would veto or approve the measure, but it was said that he would send it back to the Aldermen for amendment in several particulars. Representatives of the Civil Service Reform Association, the Citizens' Union, the Municipal Civil Service Commission, the Bureau of Municipal Research, and others vigorously opposed the ordinance.

Clarence M. Lewis, counsel for the Citizens' Union, said the ordinance was unwise, in that it would prevent the city from obtaning the service of experts who were not citizens and residents of the State and would discourage city officers and employes from living in suburbs, tending to compel them to live in the crowded sections of the city. He also objected to it on the ground that it would "compel city employes to purchase or hire suburban property within the State in preference to suburban property without the State, and thus, in a measure, render it unnecessary for the owners of suburban property within the State to compete in the matter of terms and character of improvements with the owners of suburban real estate without the State."

President Strauss of the Board of Water Supply made the objection that many employes were required to live along the line of the Catskill Aqueduct and that it would throw these men out of their jobs. Many engineers and other specialists, he said, were employed by the board and lived in near-by cities, and their services would have to be dispensed with.

Alderman Frank Dowling, leader of the Tammany members of the board, spoke at length in its favor. Some 2,500 city employes, he said, lived in New Jersey or other States, and they should be compelled to spend their money in the State where they made it. Policemen and firemen, he said, had to live in the city, and other employes should not be exempt.

MISSION SOCIETIES UNITE.

Women Baptists East and West Join Forces for Foreign Work.

When the closing session of the Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society convention was held in this city yesterday arrangements were made to unite its membership with that of a similar society operating in the West, and working under a similar name. The joint organization will be known as the Woman's American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, and its numerical strength will place it among the foremost of the missionary societies of this country.

The women of each society have been accustomed to raise about $170,000 a year for foreign missions, and the rough total of $350,000 will supply a very considerable army of representatives in the Far East. Yesterday morning was given over to a very energetic canvas for money that yielded $31,300, enough to clear away a deficit, earn a $5,400 gift from John D. Rockefeller, and leave a comfortable surplus.

Fully a thousand Baptist women were in attendance yesterday, both at the day meetings and at the mass meeting held last night at the Madison Avenue Baptist Church. Many of the delegates present were from China, India, and Burma. More than 300 were from this city.

BUY IN DETROIT SOUTHERN.

Certificate Holders Asked to Make Reorganization Binding.

J. N. Wallace, William A. Read, and F. H. Baker, a reorganization committee for the Ohio Southern division first mortgage bondholders of the Detroit Southern Railroad, have notified holders of the certificates of deposit of the purchase of the property at foreclosure sale at the upset price, $1,550,000, subject to confirmation by the court.

In case the reorganization plan does not become binding upon the depositors the committee will be unable to obtain funds necessary to pay the remainder of the purchase price, and the property will pass to others without any substantial payment on account of the bonds. The committee has not yet organized a syndicate to furnish so much of the new money to be raised as shall not be subscribed and paid by the depositors.

VICE FIGHT DEMANDS FUNDS, SAYS M'ADOO

Magistrate Asks Support for Bill Giving $500,000 to Bedford Hills Reformatory.

NEED CASH TO ENLARGE

Women Sent There Show Marked Improvement, but Workhouse Cells Have Evil Effect.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo, in a statement made yesterday, appealed for support of the bill now in the Legislature appropriating $500,000 for the maintenance and enlargement of the New York State Reformatory for Women at Bedford Hills. Judge McAdoo does not believe in a Morals Commission, and he has reached the conclusion that the vice problem can be handled best by the methods used at the State reformatory.

On Wednesday Magistrate McAdoo explained the seriousness of the present situation in this city to Gov. Sulzer. He told the Governor that he had received a request from Bedford Hills to cease sending girls up there because the institution was much overcrowded. The result was, he said, that the city prisons and Blackwell's Island were rapidly filling up with women who ought to be in better surroundings.

"The interest which as a Magistrate and a man I have in the Bedford Reformatory," said the Chief Magistrate yesterday, "is because I and the other Magistrates, especially those who preside at the Night Court for Women, believe that it is far and away the best reformatory institution to which we can commit a woman. It may interest those who have never been there to know that there is not a fence around the place, and yet scarcely one inmate has ever escaped or tried to do so.

"The cases with which the Magistrates in the Night Court deal are largely those where they have summary powers of conviction, and are mostly for soliciting on the public streets. Even those most tolerant of this vice are agreed that the streets and avenues of the city should be kept clean in this respect; at any rate, that this vice should not be brazenly thrust upon decent men or obtruded upon virtuous women. If a street or a part of the street is given over to these women, where they are allowed with impunity, then no decent woman can be in that thoroughfare after dark, however pressing the necessity, because all men will assume that she belongs to the class of women who frequent the neighborhood.

Robbed of Their Earnings.

"These women are preyed upon by male parasites and even robbed of their money by the hotels where they take their quondam male acquaintances. I have helped the police to close up seventeen of these hotels as public nuisances, and in this way have struck a severe blow at this vice in public thoroughfares. Co-operating with the police, this nuisance has been reduced now to a minimum, especially now on well-known thoroughfares where decent people have to go at all hours of the day or night, and where it formerly flourished.

"When a woman is convicted before a Magistrate for infracting the law in this regard there are three things we can do with her. First, fine her. Second, put her on probation; or, third, send her to the workhouse or to some reformatory institution. Everybody is now agreed that fining her is the worst possible way to treat the case. It drives the woman to renewed exertions in following her trade. The money is paid by the male creatures who commercialize vice. The woman is put in debt to them and has to work harder at her infamy. The workhouse is in every way not a fit institution to send any women. It is not a workhouse, because it gives them no employment, or at least very little. They are hived in cells, five in a room, where they exchange their experiences and become more hardened in their career. Their surroundings are unsanitary and unsuitable, and it is highly discreditable to the city to allow such a place. It is not the fault of those in charge—they can't rebuild the buildings.

"Of the reformatory institutions two are religious, one secular, and the Bedford under the control of the State. Those institutions, however admirable and well managed and however high the aims of those in charge, which are situated in congested parts of the city, are handicapped by their location.

Improvement at Bedford.

"The change in a woman sent to Bedford, after a few weeks' work in the open air, with country surroundings, and a separate room for herself in which she sleeps at night, with good training, mentally and physically, and wholesome food, is most remarkable. The flush of health comes back to her face, her eyes are brightened by good living instead of artificial excitement, and her outlook on life is changed. No one contends that Bedford reforms every woman sent there. Probably it is a small percentage, but that it reforms any is to my mind remarkable. With mild cases probation is the best remedy we have. If the Probation Officer knows her business, the woman is carefully nursed back to moral and mental health and given a new start in life.

"The greatest thing that could be done for Bedford would be to have well intentioned people of receptive minds visit it. Of course, so far as we Magistrates go, we have to deal with this complex problem of the social evil in a concrete and practical way without regard to any theories or opinions we may have as to its origin, cause, and continuance. It has been said by some one of prominence that under progressive, economic, and political conditions such institutions would not be necessary, and I presume that in the slow and painful progress of humanity that will be true of other crimes and vices as well, but we have to deal with present-day problems under existing conditions."

According to Chief Magistrate McAdoo, Gov. Sulzer expressed himself on Wednesday as strongly favoring an extension of the work at Bedford Hills. The appropriation bill has passed the Assembly, and is now in the Senate.

GAS CHECKS MINE RESCUE.

Only 35 Bodies Recovered at Finleyville—80 Missing and Probably Dead

PITTSBURGH, April 24.—Up to dark to-night thirty-five bodies of miners had been taken from the Cincinnati mine of the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Company, a subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, at Finleyville, the scene yesterday of a disastrous explosion. Many other bodies, it is said, have been located, but the greatest difficulty is being experienced in finding means to convey the bodies through wreckage to the surface.

Eighty miners are unaccounted for to-night. These, with the 35 dead taken from the mine, bring the probable list of fatalities to 115.

Hopes of relatives and friends of the missing men that their loved ones are living are being dissipated. Rescuers are unable to reach the inner workings of the mine on account of gas fumes, water, and débris.

It was announced by officials of the Pittsburgh Coal Company to-night that 190 men entered the mine yesterday morning. The officials stated that 75 men were known to have made their escape after the explosion.

Of the thirty-five dead taken from the mine, nineteen have been identified at the morgue in Monongahela City, four miles away, where all the bodies are being sent to be prepared for burial.

The Giants prodded Earl Moore until he was dizzy in the first two innings at the Polo Grounds yesterday and ran away with the game, the general impression of some 12,000 folk present being that the score was about 7 to 1. When the Giants had the game tucked away, Red Nelson took up the flinging, and held the Giants up like a highwayman at the point of a snappy wrist delivery. Not a run was made off Red.

Moore didn't have a thing except a solemn look and a prayer. The ball came up so slowly that you could count the stitches from the grand stand. The Giants fell on it with the gentleness of a ten-ton safe dropping on your big toe. The most gorgeous crack of the recreation was made by Tilly Shafer in the second inning, when, with two runners on the cushions, he whacked a smoking-hot liner over Cozy Dolan's thatch in right centre field for a circuit excursion. Moore then called for an attorney and willed the game over to the Giants.

There was one play which sparkled like the diamond tiara in milady's auburn hair. With Sherwood Magee on first base in the second round, Cozy Dolan poked a sizzling drive toward right field. Larry Doyle wished himself over toward the south about ten feet, climbed into the air, and clutched the ball, doubling up Magee before he could get back to first base. It looked like a case of grand larceny.

And not forgetting George Burns's fine young catch of a steaming long foul fly by Luderus in the seventh. And while the boosts are going around, Mickey Doolan made a couple of tosses from deep short which were gaudy, but, nevertheless pretty slick. The bonehead offering of the afternoon was contributed by Miller, the Quaker outfielder, who rammed a triple to left in the sixth inning, and was called out for not touching second base on his hurried trip around the bases. And besides all these things, Fred Snodgrass spilled a fly in centre field in the eighth, just as neatly as he did in the world's series.

If you are curious to know why the Phils got only a single run, write a letter to Leon Ames and he'll tell you something about pitching. Ames has at last got a strangle hold on his hoodoo, and he held Dooin's Dutch and Celtic troupe to four unimportant hits. He fanned seven batsmen and had several others fooled so badly that Manager Dooin will probably send the whole crowd to an oculist early this morning.

The Giants got Moore's number in the first inning. After Snodgrass flied to Paskert, Shafer walked and went to third base when Burns's Texas Leaguer fell unmolested among the daisies back of second base. Burns stole second. Right here Larry Doyle missed a nice chance and struck out. Red Murray scored Shafer and Burns with a rap to centre. Merkle singled to the same place, and in retrieving the ball Paskert threw it to the grand stand and Murray scored, Merkle going to third. Herzog ambled, and Merkle counted when he and Herzog perpetrated a double steal. Moore's misery came to a temporary end when Meyers rocketed to Doolan for the third out.

In the second inning Ames's life was prolonged when Paskert Snodgrassed his balloon. Snodgrass noticed the muff, and remarked as he came to bat: "That guy is stealing my stuff." Snodgrass waited for a ticket. Tilly Shafer then pickled the bulb over the grass far away, and shoved in two runs ahead of him. Burns propelled a double to left, but was nipped trying to steal third. Doyle walked and was then caught lounging off first base. Murray skied to Dolan.

After that Moore went to the shower bath, and Nelson showed how a real pitcher should behave. He got himself into one bad hole when, with the bases full, Ames singled, the ball hitting Hartley while running from first base to second, preventing any scoring. Nelson got better support than Moore, and Doolan pulled off some pretty fielding stunts.

Joe Evers, Johnny's young brother, got into the game for the first time in the third inning, when he ran for Chief Meyers and was tagged out at third base on an attempted double steal.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., April 24.—Reports that Zimmerman, Chicago's third baseman, had injured his heel and would be out of the game for some time were denied to-night by Manager Evers. "There is no truth in the reports," said Evers. "The line-up to-morrow will remain unchanged."

ONE RUN BEATS SUPERBAS.

Pinch Hitter Rariden Bats in Victory in Twelfth.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 24.—The Superbas drifted back to their habit of losing 1 to 0 games this afternoon, falling by the wayside at the hands of the tail end Braves, who finally nosed ahead in a fast and well-played game that lasted twelve innings, and which ended only after two hands were out. Allen, who looks good this year, and James, the leading pitcher on the Pacific Coast last season, were against each other, and the honors were even down to the very finish. Boston made only seven hits against Allen, and not until the twelfth inning did the Braves get more than one runner past second base. Against James the Dodgers made eight hits, but could not bunch them.

George Stallings shifted his batting order this afternoon, and with it the hard luck that has attended the team for seven games shifted also. Allen pitched beautiful ball, fanning eight batters and passing only two men, one of these passes being intentional in the twelfth inning to get a weak batter up. But it was the weak batter that won the game.

Boston's finish in the twelfth was spectacular. James, the pitcher, opened with a base hit, and then Maranville, trying to sacrifice, tipped a little fly that the catcher smothered. Connelly drove the ball hard and fast at Daubert, Jake making a fine stop and lacing the ball down to second for a force out. Myers then came across with a hard smash down the third base line, which netted him two bases, fast work on the part of Zack Wheat holding Connelly on third. Allen then had to face Bill Sweeney, the Brave's heaviest hitter. He took no chance with Sweeney, however, passing him. Then Stallings sent Rariden to the plate. George's judgment proved to be the right sort, for Rariden hit out a single and Connelly romped home with the needed run.

James was on the rubber throughout. In the sixth he got out of a hole, Cutshaw and Stengel combining base hits, the former, however, being pegged out at third base by Kirke. James fanned nine of the Brooklyn batters, and all way through showed as much stamina as the veteran Allen. Aside from Kirke's play to third base in the sixth, there were no unusually brilliant fielding features, the teams, however, playing steady ball throughout. The score:

ST. LOUIS, April 24.—Cincinnati to-day pounded five pitchers off the mound, while Suggs was effective most of the time, Cincinnati winning from St. Louis 10 to 3. This is Cincinnati's second victory of the season. Double and triple hits were frequent, while passes and sacrifices aided in the scoring. Score:

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 24.—The Athletics climbed into first place again to-day by defeating New York 4 to 1, while the world's champions were snatching a ninth inning victory from Washington. Although they were outbatted more than two to one by the Yankees, the Athletics made good use of their few hits and profited by the errors and bases on balls of their opponents.

"Chief" Bender broke into the winning column with some freaky pitching, but managed to pull out through his ability to prevent hits with men on the bases and the splendid support given him by his teammates. The New Yorks wasted enough hits to win a couple of games, but were never there with the wallop when it was needed. They made six hits in four innings before they put a run across the plate, while the Athletics made enough runs in the fourth inning to win the game without making a clean drive.

There was never an inning that New York did not have a runner on base, and in nearly every inning they were in a position to score with the aid of a hit. But each time Bender tightened up and either pitched himself out of difficulty or was helped out by some member of the home team. Ira Thomas particularly shone in giving his battery mate support. His throwing to bases was perfect, and each time he threw to the bag the ball was right on the runner and resulted in an easy out.

Hal Chase, the reputed star of the Yankees, was Bender's easiest mark. Every time Chase came to bat there was one or more runners on base waiting to score on a base hit, but no less than five times did the ex-manager fail to deliver the goods. Bender was steady throughout the nine innings, and, although batted hard, he didn't weaken in the pinches, and not an error was charged to his support.

Heine Shulz, a southpaw recruit from Savannah, was on the mound for the Yankees and pitched a good game. Only four hits were made off him and only one, a two-bagger by Thomas in the seventh, was clean.

In the eighth inning Collins beat out a hit to McKechnie and stole second and third during the period in which Baker and McInnis were being retired. Walsh slashed one down the foul line and the ball hit the first-base bag. It looked like a foul ball, and no one chased it until Walsh was well on his journey round the bases, and it went for a triple, earning the final run of the Mackmen.

Shulz was unsteady at times, and passes finally resulted in the Athletics' two runs in the fourth. Schulz walked Thomas and Murphy in the third, Bender's sacrifice coming between. Oldring hit a liner to left centre which Cree gathered in by a splendid effort, and his throw to Hartzell doubled up Thomas at second.

In the fourth Collins walked. Baker flied to McKechnie. McInnis hit a short fly to left, which fell safe when Chase and Hartzell interfered with Cree. Walsh hit to McKechnie, forcing McInnis at second, but McKechnie hurled the ball over Chance's head trying for a double play, and Collins scored, while Walsh reached second. Hartzell fumbled Barry's grounder, sending Walsh to third, and the runners worked a steal, Walsh scoring. Thomas flied to McKechnie.

The Athletics did not get a man to first again until the seventh, when with one out Barry walked and stole second. Sterrett's wild throw put him on third, and he scored on Thomas's double to left centre. Bender was safe on Hartzell's fumble. On Murphy's hit to McKechnie Thomas was caught between third and home and retired. The runners advanced on the play, but Midkiff made a pretty stop of Oldring's smash and threw "Rube" out at first.

New York's only run was scored in the fifth inning, which Wolter opened with a triple, and after Chase drove a liner to Barry, Hartzell singled, scoring Wolter. Hartzell died stealing and Cree fanned.

Williams's Triples Down White Sox.

CHICAGO, April 24.—Outfielder Williams of St. Louis to-day made three triple-base hits in four times at bat, and Chicago lost the opening game of the series with St. Louis, 3 to 1. Two of Williams's triples figured in the scores for his team. In the sixth he drove in one run after a man had been walked, and in the eighth he drove in another, and scored himself on a long fly by Pratt. The locals hit Mitchell freely, but were unable to score more than one run. This came in the seventh on bunched hits. The fielding of Weaver of Chicago prevented the visitors from scoring on three other occasions when they had a man as far as third with only one out. Two of his attempts cut runners off at the plate. The score:

Cleveland Wins at Detroit.

DETROIT, Mich., April 24.—In the first clash of the season at Navin Field, Cleveland outplayed Detroit to-day and won, 5 to 3. Gregg was better than Dubuc in the pinches and the Frenchman's own error in the sixth was responsible for one of Cleveland's runs. In the first inning Crawford made the first home run of the year on the home grounds, lifting the ball into the right field bleachers. Birmingham worked the squeeze play for the fourth time this season, sending in the tieing run in the eighth inning. With Olson on third, the Cleveland manager bunted toward first base, and Olson, starting with the pitch, scored easily while Dubuc and Gainer retired the batter. A single and steal by Graney and Carisch's double then produced two more runs, making the game safe for the visitors. Bush had a great day on the paths, stealing second base twice and once pilfering third. The score:

President Wilson a Steady Fan.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—While Washington outhit Boston to-day, the visitors bunched their hits and beat the home team, 6 to 3. Washington had a lead of one run in the ninth inning, but Boston fell on Groom and batted out a victory. Boston had only one man left on bases, as against eleven for Washington, due to Bedient's keeping the hits scattered.

President Wilson was in the grand stand. Of the four games played here the President has attended three. The score:

Columbia Defeated at Tennis.

Columbia's lawn tennis team suffered a defeat of 5 to 1 at the hands of the Wesleyan team yesterday afternoon in a series of exciting matches on South Field. Brilliant sallies on the part of the visitors marked many of the matches, while the Blue and White players, making an uphill fight of it all the way, seemed to show lack of practice and had trouble in keeping within the backlines. The scores:

Singles—J. A. Richards, Wesleyan, defeated J. S. O'Neale, Jr., Columbia, 2—6, 7—5, 7—5; C. E. Bacon, Wesleyan, defeated L. A. Coffin, Columbia, 6—2, 6—4; J. I. Rowell, Wesleyan, defeated D. Way, Columbia, 9—7, 6—3; H. Adler, Columbia, defeated W. T. James, Wesleyan, 6—3, 6—1.

Each made a high run of 4 points.

Boldt Princeton's Rifle Captain.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 24.—Hermann St. John Boldt, Jr., 1914, of New York City, has been re-elected Captain of the university rifle team for the season 1913-1914. Boldt has shot on the team for three years, making it before the freshman rule took effect, and holds the Princeton record both for the sharpshooter's and marksman's qualifications and the National Rifle Association Inter-Collegiate targets.

BASEBALL PLAYERS TIED HAND AND FOOT

Contracts Too Binding, Says President Fultz of the Players' Fraternity.

The threatened legislative investigation of baseball, with a view to declaring it a trust, has aroused the club owners and officials of the major leagues, who fear Congress will take some action prejudicial to their interests, despite the attitude of Presidents Thomas Lynch and Ban Johnson, and Garry Herrmann, Chairman of the National Commission. Representative Thomas Gallagher of Illinois a few days ago declared in Congress that baseball is "the most audacious and autocratic trust in the world," and demanded that Attorney General McReynolds ascertain all facts relative to the contracts made between clubs and players, with a particular view to discovering to what extent discrimination for and against players exist.

The fact that Congressman Gallagher's resolution instructs the Speaker to appoint a commission of seven members to summon witnesses with instructions to produce documents has called attention to the octopuslike grip the club owners have on the players. Presidents of the National and American Leagues and the Chairman of the National Baseball Commission deny the existence of any trust. In discussing the relations between the owners and players and the necessity of several much-needed changes in baseball, David L. Fultz, President of the Baseball Players' Fraternity, said:

"I am in favor of organized baseball, but every student of the game must admit that there are many things in connection with the sport that should be changed. I am not thoroughly familiar with the exact interpretation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and hesitate about committing myself unreservedly on the subject.

"That many of the players think that organized baseball amounts to a trust must be admitted, but it is an open question whether legislative action will better the ball players' condition. They feel that they are tied hand and foot by the terms of their contracts and believe that they should get some relief from present conditions.

"Organized baseball has continued uninterruptedly for so many years that President Lynch of the National League and President Johnson of the American League, together with other prominent officials, believe they have established an inalienable right to control ball players and dictate any terms they choose.

"It is only natural that both Presidents Lynch and Johnson should ridicule the proposed legislative investigation, as adverse action would seriously affect their positions in the baseball world, in addition to upsetting all traditions of the game.

"I suppose that the cry of slavery finds a responsive echo in many breasts, but at present I would not go as far as declaring this to be a fact. There are many things that ought to be changed in order to place the players nearer the border line of equality, but it must not be forgotten that contracts are necessary to keep a team intact. If there were no contracts New York and one or two other clubs would secure all the best players in the country, as they could afford to offer the most money for their services. This would have the effect of disorganizing the game, and few would go as far as declaring for no contracts.

"To enumerate the ball players' grievances would be to enter into a long discussion of the ills of baseball. I do not think the players as a whole are unreasonable in their demands, and believe that a conference between a committee of the players and the leading officials and owners would do more to reach a complete understanding than drastic legislative action. However, I do not feel competent to judge the question impartially as I am not sufficiently acquainted with the laws governing trusts."

TIE IN SEASHORE GOLF.

Risley and Crump Each Qualify with Score of 78 at Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 24.—Although weather conditions were ideal, only two players, Maurice Risley of the home club and George A. Crump of the Philadelphia Country Club, succeeded in making the eighteen-hole medal play test in the open golf tournament at the Country Club of Atlantic City under 80 to-day. They tied for the medal with 78.

The best of the New York contestants was Hamilton K. Kerr, representing Ekwanok, who returned an 81. Going out, the Vermont champion failed to settle down, but after making the turn he played well, doing the second half in 37. Second only to Risley and Crump was A. S. Johnston, the St. Paul long driver, who made an even 80. Fred Snare of Englewood qualified handily with an 86. The scores:

Sullivan Will Not Referee.

Important business in connection with the Amateur Athletic Union caused a change in the plans of James E. Sullivan, Secretary and Treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, so that it will be impossible for him to arrive in the East in time to act as referee of the University of Pennsylvania relay meet in Philadelphia to-morrow at Franklin Field. Yesterday found him in Denver, where he was delayed longer than he had anticipated, so that it will be impossible for him to get to Chicago before to-morrow, when he will be busy making arrangements for the National championships which are to be held in the latter part of June. This will mark the first time in a dozen years that Mr. Sullivan has been unable to fulfill his duties in connection with what has become one of the most important athletic series in the United States.

Cross Leads Tiger Swimmers Again

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 24.—The Tiger swimmers to-night re-elected Eben J. D. Cross, '14, of Baltimore, Captain of the team for next year. Cross has figured prominently in swimming circles for the past two years and holds the record for the 100 and 220 yard swims. In the recent all-around swimming championship of the university he easily led in the total of points and in 220 yard swim he clipped 1 1-5 seconds from his inter-collegiate time. It will not stand, however, as it was not made in an inter-collegiate competition.

The Governors conferred upon their House Committee authority as to the reopening of the clubhouse during the period from May 1 to Nov. 30.

AMATEUR BOXERS IN RING.

Union Settlement A. C. Wins Point Trophy in State Championship.

108 Pounds.—Leo Kahn, Pennant A. C.
115 Pounds.—E. Kothe, St. Bartholomew's A. C.
125 Pounds.—G. Margolio, Union Settlement A. C.
135 Pounds.—E. Nadler, Paulist A. C.
145 Pounds.—J. Baker, Union Settlement A. C.
158 Pounds.—William Barrett, Harlem Y. M. C. A.
Heavyweight.—A. J. Reich, Irish-American A. C.

The semi-finals and finals in the New York State amateur boxing championships were decided last night at the City A. C., 50 West Fifty-fourth Street, fifteen bouts being necessary to complete the tournament. Only two of them failed to go the full three rounds, and one of the finals required an extra round for settlement.

The Union Settlement A. C. won the point trophy with thirteen points, and the St. Bartholomew's A. C. came next with eight. Former metropolitan and State champions figured as winners in a majority of the classes.

One of the best bouts was the final in the 108-pound class between Leo Kahn of the Pennant A. C., former Metropolitan champion, and Bert Weil of the St. Bartholomew's A. C. At the end of three fast rounds the judges failed to agree on a winner and the referee ordered an extra round of two minutes, at the conclusion of which the judges again differed, and the referee awarded the decision to Kahn. The latter's work was more clean-cut in the final round, when both boys cut loose at top speed to win the title. Many disagreed with the referee, but the decision was for the most part popular.

William Barrett of the Harlem Y. M. C. A. had an easy time annexing the honors in the 156-pound division. Only two boxers competed in this class and there were no preliminaries. Barrett, former holder of the Metropolitan title opposed E. A. Shaw of the Trinity Club in the one bout to decide the title and Barrett was too experienced for the Trinity Club entry. After two minutes of boxing Referee Donovan stepped between the boxers while Shaw was covered up in a neutral corner, and sent Barrett to his corner. The winner will compete for national honors in the Boston tournament next week.

The heavyweight class furnished a repetition of what happened in the 156-pound division. The small entry list brought about only one bout in this class, between A. J. Reich of the Irish-American A. C., the Metropolitan holder, and B. Benz of Hartley House. After one minute and five seconds, during which time Reich had been slightly outboxed, the Irish-American heavyweight landed a terrific right to Benz's stomach and the latter went to the canvas, completely knocked out. It was fully a half minute before he was able to get up. The summary:

WATERBURYS POLO STARS.

Internationalists Show Superb Form in Lakewood Practice

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 24.—The dashing practice this afternoon was a fitting close to the month of polo that the international squad has spent here. With a short respite ahead of them before work is again resumed, the players cut loose to-day, and there was not a dull minute from gong to gong. Both games brought high-class teams together. The first was so evenly contested that an extra period was necessary to decide the contest, and in this great work the Waterbury brothers brought their team out two goals in the lead.

The second game was as fast as the first, and it had a lively ending, six of the eleven goals being scored in the last period. The line-up:

White—L. E. Stoddard, J. H. Waterbury, Jr., H. P. Whitney, L. Waterbury.

Kilbane to Insure His Hands.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 24.—Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, who will box Johnny Dundee of New York in a scheduled twenty-round contest here April 29, has applied for a policy insuring his hands for a term of three years, according to announcement made at his camp. It was stated that Kilbane hoped to retire from the ring at the end of that period. Only the preliminary documents were signed to-day, the definite issuance of the policy being contingent on a physician's examination to be made later. Kilbane was quoted in the betting to-day a 10 to 8 favorite over Dundee.

Y. M. C. A. ATHLETES COMPETE INDOORS

H. Kessler of East Side Branch Breaks Record in Running High Jump.

Athletes of fourteen branches of the Young Men's Christian Association competed in their annual indoor athletic and wrestling championships last night in the gymnasium of the East Side Branch, in which six field events and four classes of wrestling bouts were held.

East Side won the point trophy with 35 points. Newark scored 15, Brooklyn Central 12, Union 10, Harlem 8, Orange 6, Prospect Park 5, Twenty-third Street 4, Elizabeth 3, Yonkers 3.

One record was broken when Harry Kessler of the home branch leaped the height of 5 feet 8 inches in the running high jump, clearing the bar without a touch. The remarkable feature in connection with the performance was the distance away from the cross bar that the athlete "took off" from.

The bar vault was the first of the field contests decided, and this engaged the competition of ten men. The conditions required their leaping over a horizontal bar from which was suspended a heavy gymnasium mat, which prevented any swing being made under it and required a real fence vault. Z. Belcher of Newark was the best qualified physically for the stunt, being just under 6 feet in height. He breasted the bar at 6 feet 6 inches and leaped over it well within the rules, thus gathering in first prize, with H. T. Bryde of the Harlem Branch second, with one inch less, he in turn being two inches higher than J. Cavanagh of Newark, who leaped 6 feet 3 inches.

The wrestling was of particularly good class and called out a number of "grapplers" who have made their impression in local titular events. D. Field and W. Droege, both of the East Side Branch, worked their way into the final of the 135-pound division, and had a capital bout for the honors. In the welterweight class the finalists were G. M. Michaels, East Side, and C. Johnson, Brooklyn Central.

J. Streim, East Side, and G. Steffins, Elizabeth, earned the right to compete in the final of the 158-pound class, while Streim, through drawing a bye in the 175-pound division, was again a finalist. The summary:

Bar Vault.—Won by Z. Belcher, Newark, with 6 feet 6 inches; H. T. Bryde, Harlem, second, with 6 feet 5 inches; J. Cavanagh, Twenty-third Street, third, with 6 feet 3 inches; A. C. McIntyre, East Side, fourth, with 6 feet 2 inches.

Running High Jump.—Won by E. Rice, Union, with 9 feet 10 inches; J. Brazier, Yonkers, second, with 9 feet 9½ inches; J. Lasser, Newark, third, with 9 feet 7½ inches; C. C. Kasskell, Brooklyn Central, fourth, with 9 feet 7½ inches.

Running High Jump.—Won by H. Kessler, East Side, with 5 feet 6 inches; Z. Belcher, Newark, second, with 5 feet 5 inches; R. L. Smyth, Harlem, third, with 5 feet 4 inches; L. Bundy, Newark, fourth, with 5 feet 3 inches.

Putting 12-Pound Shot.—Won by J. W. Doblin, Prospect Park, with 45 feet 1 inch; H. Meyers, Union, second, with 45 feet; Z. Belcher, Newark, third, with 39 feet 9 inches; W. H. Ferris, Twenty-third Street, fourth, with 39 feet 7 inches.

Hop, Step, and Jump.—Won by G. Wagner, East Side, with 28 feet; A. Korinek, East Side, second, with 26 feet 2½ inches; E. Rice, Union, third, with 25 feet 11 inches; C. C. Kasskell, Brooklyn Central, fourth, with 25 feet 9 inches.

CHALLENGE TEAM LOSES.

Eaton Defeats Quartet Who Will Come to Play for America's Cup.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 24.—In a practice game to-day England's full America's Cup polo team was badly defeated by the Eaton team, composed of R. Grenfell, F. M. Freake, Lord Wodehouse, and Capt. Lockett. England conceded three goals, but the game ended 11 to 6 in favor of Eaton in a keen match, which was marked by brilliant hitting and extremely quick galloping.

Too much importance need not be attached to England's defeat, as they are perfecting themselves in combination play rather than in attempting to score goals.

POLO PLAYERS' PLANS.

Internationalists to Move to Meadow Brook Next Week for Practice.

Next week will see a change of scene in the practice of the defenders of the international polo cup, as the many men who have been playing at Lakewood on the grounds of Georgian Court will move to Meadow Brook, where the fields will be under the supervision of Harry H. Holmes.

In anticipation of furthering the work of the defending quartet, the Cincinnati team, which is being coached by E. W. Hopping, will enter the list as soon as room can be found for the quartet. The moving spirits in the Queen City team are Julius Fleischmann, Col. Max C. Fleischmann, Bruce Graydon and Joseph S. Graydon.

It is expected that Maxwell Stevenson, one of the most prominent of the younger players, who was hurt in one of the concluding games at Coronado Beach, Cal., will soon be able to get into some of the preliminary work at Meadow Brook.

Walter S. Dupee and Paul S. Schimdt, of California are in New York and expect to get into playing togs next week in order to help bolster up the playing forces which will be arrayed against the international four when it is chosen.

The Polo Association announces the dates for the annual tournament of the Philadelphia Country Club at Bala, Penn., for May 15 to 31, with the special contests for the Second Woodcrest Cup, presented by A. J. Drexel Paul and the Morelton Cup, awarded by Hon. Edward Morrell. Both matches will be handicaps.

W YORK, FRIDAY, APRIL 25, 1913.

THE FIREMEN'S WAGE AWARD.

The award of the arbitrators under the Erdman act in the case of the firemen's demand for an increase of wages is simply an award. It commands respect, like the findings of a jury, because it is unanimous, but it gives no clue to the reasoning or the principles on which it rests. Unofficially it is said to be a compromise. That is likely enough, since such is usually the case, but the grounds of the compromise are unknown. The chief loss of the firemen is that the award applies solely to the future. They had wanted it to apply to the interval since last July, when the negotiations began. The firemen also lose in their demand for the employment of two firemen on all locomotives over 200,000 pounds in weight, but the award is that local conditions shall determine this demand according to the ruling of "adjustment commissions." Neither do the firemen get their full demand in the increase of wages by about 10 per cent., as compared with their demand of 15 per cent. increase according to their figuring, and 35 per cent. according to the figuring of the railways. Unofficially it is said that 30,000 firemen will gain a total increase of $3,000,000. Their gain, of course, is at the cost of the railways.

On such an award it is not possible to suggest that the firemen's demands were not justified, and it is a pleasure to congratulate the men whose pay is raised. On the other hand it is necessary to consider the situation of the railways. This increase follows hard on the award of an increase of $7,000,000 to the engineers, and did not come before other classes of employes were preparing to present their demands. Placing $10,000,000 ahead of dividends, with more to come, is like adding, say, $250,000,000 to capitalization, or like decreasing the funds for betterments by the amount which is added to wages without increasing efficiency. This measures the loss to the users of railway facilities at a time when capital is scarce and the betterment of railways is in arrears of the growth of population, and still more behind the demands for railway accommodations. The public must, therefore, pay these wage increases twice over, they must provide the funds, and they cannot hope for the accommodations the funds might provide.

In this respect railways are in the same situation with employers generally. The control over the wage fund generally speaking is in the condition described by the arbitrators in the engineers' case:

> The balance of power in the control of wages, which was first with the railroads, has now passed to organized labor. The railroad operators, under the control of National and State Commissions, and under the control of public opinion, are weaker than strongly organized unions. The latter, without any control through commissions, are, of course, also affected by public opinion, but not so directly.

It is not to be doubted that the public sympathy is with the men, although they were ready to strike regardless of the convenience of the public, and although the railways deferred to public convenience in accepting a method of adjustment which they criticised rightly. The railways have now acquired a habit of defeat in repeated concessions to public opinion without acquiring merit thereby, and the unions, both railway and industrial unions, have acquired a habit of victory through repeated triumphs. It would seem that the increase of wages must go on until public opinion changes through an alteration of the point of view developed by the demonstration of the effect upon users of railways. In that case the railway outlook is disturbing, unless perhaps these awards by public bodies may supply a basis for advancing rates.

MEXICAN "GENERAL OPINION."

Major Gen. WOOD, who has been investigating the situation along the Mexican frontier, reports that general Mexican opinion on both sides of the border is strongly opposed to Gen. HUERTA. Of course it is. The general opinion of Mexican refugees in Texas and Arizona, and of their friends in the north of Mexico opposed LERDO DE TEJADA, and favored PORFIRIO DIAZ; opposed DIAZ all the while he was in office, supported MADERO until he became President, and then opposed him. It favors, constitutionally and temperamentally, any armed revolutionist who is making mischief, but no elected or established public officer. There lies the key to the Mexican situation.

Gen. HUERTA's Provisional Government seems to be attending to its business as well as can be expected. Its existence, of course, is very uncertain. But the imagination cannot conceive of any form or quality of Government that will satisfy the vast, unorganized army of Mexican malcontents. A strong military leader with a genius for constructive statesmanship might silence them, and restore order.

PUT IT ON A BUSINESS BASIS.

A National Theatre, endowed if not subsidized, has long been talked of in England as a fitting monument to SHAKESPEARE, the greatest English poet, perhaps the greatest of all Englishmen. The 350th anniversary of the poet's birth will be celebrated April 23, 1914. It was expected that the plans for the memorial would be completed by that time. But Parliament is unsympathetic, and only $500,000 of the $2,500,000 required for the endowment is in sight. SHAKESPEARE died on the anniversary of his birth in 1616. Perhaps the money for the memorial may be ready on the 350th anniversary of his exit from life's stage. Perhaps subscription papers may be circulated in this country. Why not?

The Governors of the Memorial Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon are talking of sending their Shakespearean repertory company over here, in order to secure funds to keep it going. Their experts have been looking over the ground. But they ought to be told that theatrical competition was never keener here than it is now. Mr. LEWIS WALLER can tell them, too, that public taste here is very low. The American people may not have the good judgment to pay money for the upkeep of a theatre in little Stratford. The best thing for the Britons to do with Stratford and all its sights and treasures is to place them in charge of some enterprising firm of travelers' agents, like the COOKS, and then it may be put on as sound a pecuniary basis as the Ober-Ammergau festival and the Island of Marken, so that no too obvious reaching out for funds will be necessary.

HOW STATES MAKE INTER-STATE RATES.

Shall forty-eight States make the long-distance railway rates of the continent, or shall the Nation make one rule for them all? It might seem that the asking of the question answers it in a practical manner, so great is the difficulty of the Nation enduring forty-eight regulating bodies, each looking out for its own interests, and seeking to promote them at the expense of its neighbors. But such considerations are not applicable in the decision of questions of law, and the Supreme Court in over a year's consideration has not been able to answer the question asked in forty-six cases. As matter of strict law, neither State nor Nation has the right to invade the jurisdiction of the other, and yet each is doing it. One must give precedence to the other. It is even suggested that the Supreme Court is unable to reach any decision at all, one Justice being incapacitated for acting, and the others being divided evenly. However that may be, it surely is an unusual case when the National Government finds it necessary to intervene without the invitation of any party.

It is easy to see how the Nation can control the States' action, but how, it may be asked, can the sundry States control the making of rates outside their own borders? The explanation is that the rate structure of the entire country is an organic whole, with all its parts so interrelated that none can be altered without affecting all others. The fundamental rate of all is the rate from New York to Chicago—that is, the rate from the ocean to the lakes. All long-distance rates are based on that, and no State can alter the rate for the portion within its borders without affecting the rate for the rest of the distance. When the railways extended westward to the Mississippi River they were still under the influence of water competition, and also were compelled to submit to the demand that the outfitters of the East should have equality of access to all Mississippi River points. The same considerations applied to the territory between the Mississippi and the Missouri River. The rates between all these points are not based on distance, but are additions of such per cent. to the New York-Chicago rate as should enable Chicago and St. Louis to compete with each other for the business of Kansas City, Atchison, St. Joseph, and Omaha. There are similar adjustments west of the Missouri and in the Northwestern States. In the Southwest there is another adjustment with modifications due to ocean competition. The rates through all the "gateways" are adjusted to a nicety, and if thrown out of relation the disturbance affects the competitive markets more than it does the railways.

The same thing is true in the reverse direction, the products of the field and the forest reaching the markets of consumption in an equality of competition which is not dictated by the railways, but by the facts of commerce and geography. These rates are not the work of Legislatures nor of commissions. They are the resultants of commercial development, and cannot be disturbed with impunity. Trade has grown along these lines for generations. Communities are founded on these relations of rates, and their prosperity depends upon them. To substitute distance tariffs would have results no one can foresee. It would be a conflict not between railways, nor States, but between facts as immutable as oceans and rivers and mountains, and their effect upon trade.

The point which it is sought to make clear here is that it is not a concern of the railways alone, nor of the relations of the railways to the States seeking to regulate them. It is the concern of every city in its relations with every other city on the routes, or in commercial competition with any other city. It is a competition between commodities, as well as between cities, and has the possibility of life and death for all markets on ocean or lake or river. If the Nation takes control justice may be done to all. If the States are allowed to take control there is a new era of cutthroat competition ahead, with Legislatures seeking trade at the expense of others, and without responsibility for the losses caused. The Constitution forbids a war of State tariffs, and it doubtless will be found that the inter-State commerce law is competent to forbid a war of railway tariffs which would be more ruinous to communities than to railways.

IS THIS INDEX NEEDED?

We are not at all sure that an index to the Congressional Record would not be useful. Some need of one has often been felt by historical writers and journalists, and by business men, too, we dare say. Whether the index would be useful enough, however, to warrant the expenditure of any large sum of money annually to secure it is another matter. The provision of a good salary for an additional clerk might not be worth while. The various branches of the Federal Government, in spite of the money required to keep them up, never seem to be able to do anything out of their routine without spending more money.

In the case of the Record of this session or even of the last we doubt if anybody has strongly felt the need of an index. Somehow, nothing seems to be said or done in the Congress day by day that one would care to retain in the memory. The persons who feel sometimes that they would like to get hold of an index to the Congressional Record always have sessions of the dim past in their minds. To them, in that mood, it seems strange that the Record was not copiously and accurately indexed from the beginning. There is a resolution now before the House of Representatives providing for the appointment of an index clerk to begin his labors with the last session. Doubtless posterity would derive as much satisfaction from his index as we might from an index of the proceedings of the Twenty-ninth or Forty-first Congress. But we have got along tolerably well without the index, and perhaps the whole job may be left to posterity. As a matter of fact such a publication as the index of THE NEW YORK TIMES answers every reasonable requirement that the Record index would meet, and the various annuals and almanacs supplement this information.

OPENING AND CLOSING "DOORS."

Gov. SULZER, in the memorandum accompanying his signature of the law allowing delicatessen shops to be open on Sundays, says it is really a law to close them. His meaning is that allowing the shops to be open before morning church service, and between morning and evening services, is the same thing as forbidding them to be open at other hours. That depends. Laws opening and laws closing may mean the opposite of what they say, or they may both mean the same thing if no attention is paid to them.

There is another law pending applying the same principle to liquor shops, and the signature of the one law would indicate the signature of the other, if it should reach the Governor. It may be thought that the liquor shops are open sufficiently for practical purposes as it is, but that leaves out of consideration the class of saloon keepers who would be glad to comply with an opening law which should be truly a closing law, on the basis of the Governor's argument. At present the chief use of such laws, as they are applied, is to support "machines," or to facilitate graft. It would be otherwise if the laws were made to accord with the public sentiment of the community, and then that sentiment were to compel their enforcement according to their text.

For this there is support in the experience of St. Louis, where Gov. SULZER's argument now receives practical application. This month, for the first time since the ordinance passed three years ago, the lid has been clamped on the groceries of St. Louis at the hours when it was made unlawful for them to be open. The result has been the approval of the law by grocers who formerly lost trade to those who opened at unlawful hours through graft. The law had to be litigated, which explains the delay in its application, but now that it is being enforced it works as expected by the grocers who secured the passage of the ordinance, and as it is likely that the opening-closing laws would work here under like conditions.

The Philadelphia Public Ledger, which for the last twelve years has been sold at one cent per copy, will raise its price to two cents a copy on May 1. Mr. CURTIS is to be congratulated upon his courage and his purposes. The Public Ledger has been equal in quality to the two-cent and three-cent newspapers, but he is resolved to make it even better. The paper will be "expanded in volume, in features, and in scope"; it will be printed upon better paper, and with improved typography. Mr. CURTIS fully intends to make a newspaper that will be worth two cents, and of his ability to achieve that ambition there cannot be the slightest doubt.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Encyclopedia as Well as an Index.

Our own estimate of the value outside of this office as well as in it that will be possessed by a complete, really scientific, and up-to-date index of the world's happenings as they are presented from day to day in THE TIMES was confidently high. That it was not exaggerated is evidenced by the prompt and widespread interest that has been manifested in the undertaking—an interest that takes the form of many inquiries as to details of the plan and as many expressions of the belief that the work will provide large classes of professional and business men with information often needed and hitherto obtainable, if at all, only with great difficulty and expense.

Memories, even the best of them, can retain but vaguely the fast following events of this active age, and nothing is more deceptive than one's impressions as to when occurred an event that after the lapse of some time has, for one reason or another, acquired importance. Mistakes of years are easy in trying to fix, unassisted, date and detail, and unless that can be done access to a newspaper file is not of much use to those not prepared for a long and laborious search.

While all references in this index are to the columns of THE TIMES, they will be hardly less helpful for those in quest of several accounts of the more important episodes in diurnal history, the records of which are practically contemporaneous in all the more comprehensive papers. In many cases, however, all the information desired on a given subject will be supplied by the index itself, and no consultation of files will be needed, since the entries under each heading form a continuous though skeletonized narrative. Each number of the index, for instance, will contain what amount to detailed biographies, for the period covered, of innumerable men, while the writer of an article on almost any topic can obtain "material" that without further investigation may meet all his demands.

The assumption that a newspaper is worthless after it is a day old needs revision. Worthless it is for some purposes, but for others it is invaluable, or would be if the mass of fact and opinion growing so rapidly were not so hard—so nearly impossible in the absence of an index—to penetrate. This difficulty will be removed for the owner of the guide now in course of preparation.

A Reminder of the Brown Dog.

Considering the severity — it would hardly be too much to say the ferocity— of the English libel law, the acquittal of The Pall Mall Gazette and Dr. SALEEBY by the London jury that has been hearing the charges made against them by Miss LIND-AF-HAGEBY is a truly remarkable triumph for both journalism and medical science.

This woman has been known for many years—ever since the British anti-vivisectionists went into hysterics over the purely imaginary torturing of a certain "little brown dog"—as a most reckless slanderer of all who take part in animal experimentation. She has never hesitated to make the most abominable of false charges against them, and it was because of the use as facts of crazy yarns by her and another woman of the same sort that the eminent physiologist BAYLISS was able to get a verdict for £2,000 damages and nearly £3,000 costs against COLERIDGE, the high priest of British anti-vivisection.

The brown dog story was utterly disproved then, but of course that did not in the slightest degree affect the victims of the zoophile psychosis, and they have never thought of taking down the monument to the animal's memory which they were allowed to erect in one of London's streets.

A recent characterization of this woman in print led to the bringing of the suit just decided. It must have been far within the truth and well excused by circumstances, for though the plaintiff argued her case at enormous length and with an eloquence so impressive that the Judge allowed the portion of the public present to express its approval by applause, the jury found for the defendants and put the costs—over £5,000—on the voluble LIND.

This verdict hints the possibility that the time has come for the friends of English science to secure a repeal or mitigation into sense of the laws against animal experimentation which have for years prevented almost all research by the English biologists and pathologists and barred them from their proper place among the leaders of medicine. The restrictions placed upon them would be absurd if they were not outrageous. The doctors have a much better justification for militant lawbreaking than do the suffragettes, and the patience with which they have suffered restraints imposed by insane ignorance is not particularly creditable.

Artificial Ice Is Preferable.

Comment made in this column yesterday on ice statistics printed in The Cold Storage and Ice Trade Journal was noted by its editor, CHARLES H. HERTER, and he has kindly provided further facts in a letter on the subject.

The available ice machines in this city, he writes, if run to capacity, could meet, except for the four hottest months in the year, New York's whole demand, and do it, too, without storing any of their product. It is only in midsummer that the existing plants are necessarily supplemented by the natural product. As for the often asserted difficulty or impossibility of storing artificial ice, Mr. HERTER says that, however made, it can be preserved indefinitely. Ice made of distilled water, however, disintegrates unless kept in a refrigerating room artificially held at 28 degrees Fahrenheit, while "raw water" ice, "plate" ice—made in large and deep tanks, that is—and "natural" ice can be stored as long as desired in insulated houses, cooled only by allowing a little of the ice itself to melt.

We have other authority for the statement that between "plate" ice and "natural" ice there is no difference of structure, and that the water out of which it forms is purified in the same way and to the same degree as if the freezing took place in a lake or river. If the claims of the "natural" ice dealers are correct, therefore, the use of distilled water in making "artificial" ice, while commendable, is hardly essential to safety. The sooner all dependence is put on the manufactured product, the sooner will we be spared the frequently recurring fears of famines and high prices after "open" Winters.

THE "LAND SHARKS."

Victim Relates His Experience with Long Island Lots.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Relative to the recent article entitled the "Land Sharks" on Long Island, I wish to say, as one of the victims of these sharks, that I have personally been fighting them in various ways for some time, and have had on hand a plan of advertising a warning to would-be purchasers, which I was about to launch when your article appeared. THE TIMES no doubt will save many a poor man from losing his hard earnings as I have done, for the minute he signs one of the sharks' land contracts on the easy payment plan he is stung.

In 1903 I purchased on the easy payment plan four lots on the south shore, forty miles out, after reading the sharks' flaming advertisements of the wonderful future, great improvements, cheap fare to come, opportunities in a town of 6,000 which has not over 4,000 population to-day, &c. I was told that a street car line was to be built connecting the north and south shores, which would run past my door, and I fell for $425 with interest at 6 per cent., taxes, &c. It has cost me to date at least $700, and to-day, after holding ten years, I can't sell for $200.

When I bought these lots there were four maple shade trees 25 feet apart in front of them. Since then these trees have been removed and probably placed in some other development to catch another victim. The streets that were plowed up and were to be improved have overgrown and can't be seen. The stakes were also pulled up, making it hard to locate lots, and the assessments are exorbitant. The Long Island Railroad instead of reducing its fares has increased them, thereby preventing development, and keeping those who have been so unfortunate as to purchase this worthless stuff from attempting to occupy it. My advice to all is to leave Long Island property alone. D. F. T.

ARBOR DAY.

Its Observance Urged Upon Schools in All Boroughs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Arbor Day this year will occur on Friday, May 2. I hope there will be found many opportunities to plant at least one tree or substantial shrub or vine in recognition of the day, and as a part of the usual exercises. In the outlying boroughs the planting of many trees may be done if the matter is taken in hand at once, the pits prepared with a good supply of soil, and the trees and plants engaged at near-by nurseries.

If trees, &c., cannot for any good reason be planted in or about the school precincts, it might be arranged, as a part of the day's observance, to plant in some neighborhood park, in the presence of as many children as possible, some trees or shrubs, or both, by arrangement with the park authorities, these trees, &c., being placed there in honor of some noteworthy man or woman whom we delight to honor, or to mark some conspicuous historical event. Where open ground exists about the building, a choice variety of both deciduous and evergreen trees is available; the latter being specially desirable for their pleasing effect in Winter.

THE TIMES, which introduced Fred Law Olmsted to Manhattan Island, will, I hope, favor this practical feature, much to be desired for Arbor Day.

The Post Office Charwomen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Recently a new order was made compelling the charwoman in the Post Office Building to report for duty at 5 o'clock in the morning instead of 6 o'clock, without additional pay. In order to be at their work in time these women in many cases have to rise at 3 o'clock in the morning.

The persons responsible for this rule probably do not know that at this unusual hour women in the streets and on the street cars of New York are subject to the vilest insults. It is a great injustice that these respectable and hardworking women should be required to be the butt of the foul remarks of the class of men out at this hour.

These women are receiving no more than $325 a year! Most of them have to support not only themselves but families of little children as well. Surely they deserve better treatment at the hands of our Government.

A bill has been introduced by Congressman Griffin to better their condition, and it should be passed without delay.

Dusty Carnegie Hall.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to join in the protest of J. Redfield Hotchkiss as to the disgraceful condition of Carnegie Hall. Being a woman, my housewifely soul rises in revolt when I see the rolls of dust on ledges and walls which have lain there inviolate for years.

May I also add that the lack of elevator service in the hall is on a par with the general laissez faire attitude of the management? CAROLINE WOODBRIDGE.

Dried Currants a Luxury?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the new tariff bill, I would ask as follows: In an argument with a friend on the same subject, the item of dried currants was mentioned. I contended that the increase on that article was all right, as it was a tax on a luxury. He contended it was a necessity. Will you kindly decide the question? W.

MILITANT METHODS.

Suffragist Leaders Challenged to Come Out Squarely Against Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue D. J. G. Perkins doubts my interpretation of Mrs. Brannan's letter and declares that she can find in it "no trace of approval or liking for the violent actions which have marred the suffrage cause in England." I do not understand how any one can read Mrs. Brannan's communication without feeling the warm sympathy with English militancy which animates it from beginning to end. Mrs. Brannan and Miss Perkins both evidently believe that conditions in England demand just such action and that it is justifiable there. Will either of them deny this inference and say squarely that they do not think arson and the use of dynamite by the English suffragettes are justifiable? I said that Mrs. Brannan's letter contained an open threat that militant methods would be used in this country in the case of certain eventualities. And I find it impossible to construe otherwise her remark that in the face of a certain condition, which in all likelihood will come to pass, the women of the Eastern States "would find the political anomaly of their position so impossible to bear that even militancy would seem to them justifiable." If that is not a direct promise to the legislators at Albany and Boston that if they do not soon grant the ballot to women Mrs. Brannan and her co-workers will start out armed with stones, hammers, and bombs, then words do not mean what they seem to mean.

Those who know anything whatever about the history of the suffrage movement in England know very well that the vote would have been gained long ago if it had not been for the volcanic eruption of violence engendered and engineered by Mrs. Pankhurst and her followers. Why should those who foresee exactly such a setback in this country, to say nothing of the consequent shame and disgrace, if certain women have their way, do anything, no matter how ardently they believe in the principle of suffrage, that will help to make possible such a result?

The leaders of the American suffrage movement could not do a bigger thing for the cause than to prove that their moral perceptions are not atrophied by coming out in open denunciation of the criminal operations of the English suffragettes. But it is greatly to be feared that their moral perceptions are undergoing such atrophy on that question that they will not do it. A SUFFRAGIST.

New York, April 21, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of current events, Rheta Childe Dorr's estimate of the "harmless, necessary anti" is amusing. Her admission that, without anti-suffrage, the cause of woman suffrage would be utterly uninteresting to the multitude confirms the claim of the antis that women in general have no grievances, and do not seek to change their position in relation to government. The inference is that the "cause" has so little merit that it would die a natural death if it were not for an opposition to make the work exciting.

At last the suffragists and the antis are on common ground. We are indeed "harmless," as truth cannot harm. And we are "necessary" that men may see the radicalism that suffrage leaders stand for, and preserve for women their privileges under the law; that differentiation of function for men and women may continue to prevail; that women's ideals regarding their own particular work may be raised, and that better children may result, to the glory of the State. ELLA C. BREHAUT.

Washington, D. C., April 22, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is evident that certain persons fear that the woman suffrage movement in America may develop militant methods. I believe that there is not the remotest possibility of its doing anything of the kind. But to those who are afraid of it I would advise that, instead of refusing to give financial assistance to the cause and expressing a lack of confidence in its upholders, the critics of the English militants show by their support and encouragement of American methods their appreciation of these as reasonable and legitimate ones, and in this way advance a reform indorsed by a large proportion of the people best able to understand the problems and needs of the Nation. M. MANSON.

New York, April 22, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The anti-suffrage arguments based on English militancy boil down to something like this:

(1.) A few English suffragists are behaving outrageously.

(2.) Woman suffrage organizations here have not officially condemned them.

(3.) Therefore women ought not to have the right to vote.

I would recommend a study of Jevons on the syllogism for those who are convinced by such reasoning. LOGIC.

Women Who Wear Feathers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have a suggestion to make, namely, that gentlemen refuse to give their seats to ladies whose hats are adorned by feathers other than those of the ostrich and domestic fowls. I have for a long time practiced this, looking first at the hat when I feel prompted to give my seat to a lady.

I would like a suggestion whereby the sentiments of gentlemen who act in this way might be understood, so as to have the desired result, say the wearing of a suitable badge. Doubtless the transportation companies will see to it that there remain a sufficient number of straphangers to give us a chance. R. CONSTANTIAN, M. D.

BEDFORD REFORMATORY.

Bedford Reformatory, a State institution doing invaluable service in the reclamation of wayward girls, is overcrowded and asks $700,000 from the State for extension purposes.

Behold, she stands
And stretches out her hands
For aid.
Those firm, strong hands,
Those gentle, helpful hands,
Whose spirit unafraid
Of sin and shame and loss
Have borne the burden of the cross
For girls unnamable, whose feet
Have trod the open street,
The market-place
Of body and of soul,
In search of toll
From any man who gave
To own a common slave,
The chattel of the street.
These Bedford comes to meet,
But not as shameless things;
To them she brings
Love, courage, hope, the better way,
The clean, new day
Whose morning sun awakes
Another world to these half gone
And hopeless ones
To whom there was no other dawn.
And now she stands
With outstretched hands
For aid; the means to lift
Out of the ghastly drift
These girl-souls crying in the night
For kindly light.
And shall she be denied?
Shall men who buy
Deny?
Shall any man, in whom his pride
In his own womankind is strong,
Go wrong
And say

CALIFORNIA'S ALIENS.

Sacramento Editor Expresses State's Dislike for Japanese.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The opposition of Eastern newspapers to California passing alien land laws arises from a lack of understanding of the racial conditions in the Coast State and the absence of a similar problem in the East. Even THE TIMES has printed editorials which a short residence in California would completely disprove.

There are two questions involved: Is the legislation vitally necessary for the welfare of the State, and are alien land laws constitutional and in accord with the treaty rights of Japan?

Frankly, the legislation was provoked by the Japanese problem and is aimed particularly at that race. In the first place, the Japanese are a people that can never be assimilated. Their physical features and characteristics are so different from the European as to prevent merger by intermarriage, in addition to the clash between Occidental and Oriental temperaments and traditions.

Of their character, the Japanese morality, or lack of it, is one of the objectionable features to their presence in large numbers in California. That this is not an unfounded accusation, any observant traveler in Japan will testify that a life in a house of prostitution is no bar to marriage for girls of any class. In money matters they are tricky and absolutely unreliable.

Such are the people whose permanent possession of some of California's best agricultural land the alien legislation is designed to check. Chinamen, when their numbers do not threaten American standards, are well liked, but Japanese, individually or collectively, are cordially disliked, not only by the white people of California, but by the Chinese as well.

The Japanese to-day own some of the best lands in California. They are in absolute control of the section around Florin, nine miles from Sacramento, one of the richest strawberry districts in the world. Half of the fertile orchards of Placer County are also in their hands. The Japanese, George Shima, "the Potato King," owns or controls nearly all of the potato lands of the delta districts of the Sacramento and San Joachin Rivers. All up the rich farming section of the Sacramento Valley the Japanese have large holdings—in Sutter, Yuba, Glenn, Butte, and Tehama. The rich grape districts of San Joachin County, through Lodi and Woodbridge, are in Japanese hands. In some of the southern counties, in the raisin district of Fresno and adjacent counties, Japanese are in the majority.

The loss of these lands cannot be attributed to the shiftlessness of the former owners, but to contemptible and unfair tricks. In these districts Japanese laborers first drove out white hands by the lowness of their wages, and when the orchardist had to depend upon the Oriental to have his crop gathered he was met with the demand that he turn over half, and sometimes two-thirds, of the crop to the Japanese. In a short time he was forced to sell out to the Japanese themselves. In districts where loyalty prompted the farmers to stick together and refuse Japanese offers one orchard would be bought at an extravagant price and those surrounding it could then be gathered in for a song, for no white people will live next to Japanese, in city or country.

In Placer County in a few years there will be more Japanese children in the public schools than white children. In Sacramento, with a census population of 44,560, there are 2,505 Japanese, a city within a city, with Japanese newspapers, theatres, stores, and banks, drawing their profits from the rich agricultural country round about and returning nothing to Americans. When the Japanese desire new property they acquire one house, caring nothing how extravagant the price may be. The property on both sides can then be bought for a song, and the process continued until the whole block is in Asiatic hands.

If these conditions are not remedied now, in fifty years California will be Japanese in population, for, slowly but surely, they are driving Americans from one county after another. For these and many similar reasons Californians are decided the evil must be stopped, and no American who lives a short time in California will deny the justice of California's complaint.

As for California's right to pass the legislation now before the Legislature, President Wilson offers good authority in his telegram, in which he acknowledges the power of the State, but advises caution in the wording of the bill. Alien land laws are in existence in the District of Columbia, in several of the Southern States, and in the Federal Territories.

The wording objected to in the California bill is that no alien can own land who is "ineligible to citizenship." The courts, by the refusal of citizenship papers, have set the precedent that Japanese, Chinese, Hindus, Turks, South Sea Islanders, Koreans—in short, all those neither of the Caucasian race nor of African descent—cannot become citizens. So the bill is not confined to Japanese, but merely adopts a principle of the Constitution of the United States sustained by court decisions.

Little attention seems to be paid the fact that the Congress of the United States used these very same words, "ineligible to citizenship," in adding those of that class to the list of excluded aliens. The Burnett Immigration bill, which passed the last Congress, contained that clause. It was passed by a large vote, and when vetoed by ex-President Taft on account of the reading test was passed over his veto by the Senate and failed of repassage in the House by only seven votes.

Members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations submitted that clause to the Japanese Embassy here before it was included in the bill, and Baron Chinda, the Ambassador, said it was satisfactory to Japan. No objection was made to that clause by any one, and the same bill was reintroduced in this Congress and is now on its files.

Much stress is laid upon the rights of Japan as guaranteed to it under the recent treaty. That document provides only for the leasing of land and guarantees only reciprocal privileges, one country promising to the subjects of the other within its jurisdiction the rights that are granted to its own citizens resident in the other nation.

An American to-day in Japan cannot own a foot of land, and leases are hedged about with restrictions and refused in certain districts of Japan. All this time Japanese have been enjoying in this country rights denied Americans in Japan, and yet they are impudent enough to protest legislation which merely reduces them to the rights Americans have in Japan.

Biblical Sanction of Inheritance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I would advise our Vice President to search for wisdom at its fountain head if he is too much pressed for time. I suggest that he look up Proverbs, xiii, 22, so that he may know that it is no crime to devise one's property. On the contrary, it is the duty of a good man. L. F. C.

FIND IT HARD TO FIX SUBWAY JUNCTION

Lower Lexington Avenue Property Owners Alarmed at Prospect of Being Cut Off.

UNION AT GRAND CENTRAL

This Is the Plan, but It Meets Strong Opposition — Alternative Is 33d Street Connection.

Much discussion is attending the several laws proposed for the junction of the Lexington Avenue Subway and the present Interborough subway in the neighborhood of the Grand Central station. The Public Service Commission has suggested two ways of going at it, but opposition to both methods was made before the Board of Estimate yesterday, and it was decided to have a hearing in a few days, when the Public Service Commission and the Transit Committee or the Board of Estimate will sit together.

The commission first proposed that a station should be built connecting the Lexington Avenue and Park Avenue subways, running diagonally across from Forty-third Street and Lexington Avenue to Forty-first Strett and Park Avenue. This would pass under the sites of the old Children's Hospital and the Grand Union Hotel, but the New York Central, which owns the hospital site, asked so large a sum for the necessary easement that the Board of Estimate refused to accept the proposal.

By the second plan the Lexington Avenue line would be continued as far south as Fortieth Street, and the connection with the Park Avenue line would be made through that street cutting under private property at either end.

When this proposal came before the Board of Estimate yesterday morning, a new suggestion was made by Jacob A. Cantor, ex-Borough President, and Dr. John Wyeth, who appeared on behalf of a number of Lexington Avenue property owners. They urged that the city had no right to break off the Lexington Avenue line a Fortieth Street, but should carry it as far south as Thirty-second Street and make the connection with the Park Avenue line at about that point.

The Forty-second Street Association, which has regarded with a great deal of disappointment the proposal to reduce the present crosstown Forty-second Street service to a simple shuttle service, was also represented by W. J. Solomon, and entered an appearance.

The clients of Mr. Cantor consider that if the city determines not to build further down Lexington Avenue they have a real grievance against it. Alterations and improvements in property in Lexington Avenue, between Twenty-sixth and Fortieth Streets were made on the understanding that the subway would run along this route. Now the owners find that in all probability the work which has been suspended will not be started again. Borough President McAneny said last night that he thought it would cost no more to build the additional half-mile down Lexington Avenue than to make the Fortieth Street connection. Consequently, by adopting the Thirty-second Street plan, the city would be the better off by half a mile of subway, which would ordinarily cost at least $1,000,000, without spending any more money.

On the other hand, some of the traffic experts of the city argue that it would simply be a waste of energy to construct half a mile of subway in Lexington Avenue paralleling the Park Avenue line.

Most of the traffic men would place the new Subway Grand Central Station, if they could, on the diagonal line between Lexington and Park Avenues, at Forty-third and Forty-first Streets, for this would connect with the present Interborough station by the mere extension of the mezzanine floor. If this arrangement were too expensive, then they would place the new Subway Grand Central station in Lexington Avenue, at Forty-second Street, and would prolong the Forty-second Street crosstown line a block or so to connect with it. With either of these stations the shuttle service would be between Times Square and Grand Central.

If the Lexington Avenue connection is to be about Thirty-second Street, the shuttle trains may be run as far south as the present Thirty-third Street station, which would mean that a passenger from the Interborough Seventh Avenue line would have to take an unnecessary dip to the south, if he wished to go, say to Eighty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue. The Interborough has not yet decided whether it will want to run any express trains across town over its present route, when the dual system is in working order, but it will certainly demand that nothing should be done to render such a method of operation impossible, if it proves necessary, and this adds another factor to the problem.

EASE INTERBORO FINANCING.

Subway Funds Not Being Needed Now, Bankers Defer Installments.

With the knowledge that the Interborough Rapid Transit Company will not need so much money for the early payments on account of the construction of new subways as had been figured on, arrangements have been about concluded with J. P. Morgan & Co. for an extension of the time during which the first $78,000,000 shall be supplied. The original terms called for the delivery of the first block of the 5 per cent. Interborough bonds by June 30, but the delays in getting the work under way has made it convenient to extend the limitation to Dec. 31.

The company has been supplied with funds to meet the maturity of $15,000,000 on notes falling due May 1 through a call on the underwriting syndicate for 12½ per cent. of the total issue, amounting to $170,000,000. This call produced $21,250,000. The Interborough will have to pay $18,000,000 for subway construction by the end of this year.

Dates for taking the second, third, and fourth years' blocks of $30,000,000, $30,000,000, and $32,000,000 of the new bonds will also be extended six months, which will bring the financing to an end by Dec. 31, 1916.

ART NOTES.

The Colonna Collection on view at the American Art Galleries prior to its sale by auction is an entertaining assemblage of various objects of art, many of them both beautiful and interesting, but without any especial relation to one another. There are lamps and plaques of Persian brasswork, steins of Rhenish stoneware, plates of Italian majolica, Flemish Italian and Spanish furniture, Chinese and Japanese vases and carvings. There is also a little excellent ironwork, including a notable little jewel box wrought at Nuremberg with etched ornamentation of hunting scenes, soldiers and leaf scrolls, and with an elaborate lock. A Sicilian backgammon board is another witness to the greater regard in which this noble game was held in the past. The board, a small one, is made of brown wood inlaid with Byzantine ornaments in mother of pearl and tinted ivory. The sale takes place April 26.

At the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries are a considerable number of art objects from the stock of H. O. Watson & Co., who are devoting themselves to early antiques and selling their more modern pieces. The collection includes decorative paintings and furniture, some fine French tapestry sets, and cabinet work by such artists in the craft as Lincke, Jansen, Sormani and others. The opportunity afforded connoisseurs familiar with period work is worthy of note. The dates of sale are April 25 and 26.

Mrs. Bessie Potter Vonnoh, an American sculptor, whose work possesses both distinction and charm, has been invited by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson to place a number of her bronzes on exhibition in the Red Room at the White House. This is an unprecedented occasion, no American artist haveing before received an invitation to exhibit at the White House. Mrs. Vonnoh modeled a portrait of Miss Jessie Wilson three years ago, and expects to go to Cornish this Summer to execute another portrait of her.

Mrs. Vonnoh was a pupil of the Art Institute of Chicago, and has received a number of medals, among them a gold medal at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904. The Metropolitan Museum owns several of her sculptures.

AND WHAT THEY WILL WEAR

Bands by the Score, Horsemen and Horsewomen, Foreign and Domestic Delegations to be There.

Particulars of the suffrage parade of May 3, which will march up Fifth Avenue from Washington Square to Fifty-ninth Street, were given out yesterday. It is estimated that the parade will be larger than any yet given in the city, though it may be shorter, as the marchers are to go eight abreast instead of four as in previous parades. It is expected now that 30,000 will be in line. There will be thirty-five bands, one of them a Finnish band, which will play Finnish national airs.

Leading the parade will be Mrs. Richard Coke Burleson on horseback, dressed in a plain riding habit and carrying a National flag. Following her will be eight women representing the eight suffrage organizations of New York, each carrying a banner with the color of the organization represented. Even the Men's League will be represented by a woman here. The executive officers of the National Woman's Suffrage Association, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, President, will follow, then the Woman's Suffrage Association and Congress Committee of Washington, headed by Miss Alice Paul and Miss Lucy Burns, and the Woman's Political Union, Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch, President.

"Gen." Jones in Place of Honor.

The "Pilgrims" who hiked to Washington, headed by "Gen." Rosalie Jones, will march in front of the carriage in which will ride the pioneer suffragist, Mrs. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, who is more than 80 years old. Mrs. Cyrus Field will ride with Mrs. Blackwell.

Behind Mrs. Blackwell, after the union's Senatorial groups, will be the occupational groups.

The Woman suffrage Association, Miss Mary Garrett Hay leader, will have fourteen bands, and will be a blaze of yellow and white. The Equal Franchise Society will wear its colors, dark blue, and its members will carry blue balloons. A number of the husbands of the women of this society will march with them. Mrs. Belmont's organization has blue, and the college women will be in caps and gowns. Miss Lillian Wald and Miss Lavinia Dock will lead the nurses.

Dr. Anna Kubista will lead a regiment of women as "the Spirit of '76," and there will be twelve bands in this group. There will be a Bohemian group with the editorial staff of a Bohemian paper There will be 100 Finnish women in their National costume led by Miss M. Ullengren. They will march in their national dress and will carry an old Finnish war banner, the only one in America.

A group of cavalry, with men and women, will lead the Men's League, which will be out in greater numbers than ever before. Beatrice Forbes Robertson Hale and Oswald Garrison Villard will head the cavalry.

The division on foot will be lead by William Jay Schieffelin. The Chief Marshal for the National Men's League will be James Lees Laidlaw and for the State R. C. Beadle.

Mrs. Herbert Carpenter, carrying an American flag, will lead the New York State Woman Suffrage Association, of which Miss Harriet May Mills is President, and the Seventh Regiment Band will provide the music for the head of the division. The Chief Marshal will be Miss Portia Willis, and the banner will bear the words: "New York State, Victory, 1915." The Assistant Marshals will be Mrs. Duncan B. Harrison, Mrs. Emma Kip Edwards, Miss Irene Beach, and Miss Winifred Sherwood.

THREE SOCIETY DANCES.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Gallatin Entertain at the Gotham.

There were several dances yesterday afternoon and last night to attract society.

Mrs. Gustavus T. Kirby gave a small and informal dance last night at her home, 43 Fifth Avenue. The guests were asked for 10 o'clock, and a supper was served about 1 o'clock.

Miss Grace Lee Middleton, who acted as maid of honor, wore a gown of white moire silk, and a leghorn hat topped with blue French feathers and ribbon. She carried an arm bouquet of Killarney roses. The flower girls were the Misses Louise Moore, Florence De Graw, and Drusilla Everett. BELMONT RESENTS CENSURE

Hempstead May Lose a Park as a Result of Village Trustees' Action.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., April 24.—August Belmont is displeased because the Village Board, by a resolution passed some time ago, took him to task for failing to keep his sidewalks in proper condition. He has sent a letter to Eugene Parfsons, clerk of the Board of Village Trustees, in which he says he thinks the resolution was uncalled for.

The Belmont mansion is on Fulton Avenue, not far from the railroad station. The estate consists of about fifty acres. There is a lake on the property, and after a rainstorm the dirt walk in front of the property becomes muddy and makes travel over it very uncomfortable for those going to and from the railroad station. Commuters sent complaints to the Village Board, and a resolution was passed ordering Mr. Belmont to grade the property so that water from the lake would not make mud of the dirt walk.

In his letter to Clerk Parsons Mr. Belmont says:

> I have been a resident of this village for over thirty-one years, and this is the first time that I have been held remiss to my duties as a citizen and taxpayer. I regret very much that your board found it necessary to censure me in this instance.
>
> You may state to your Board of Village Trustees that for several years I have had my local agent rounding out property which I had been purchasing with the idea of turning it over to the village for a public park.
>
> I must ask that your board be more specific in regard to the grading of my sidewalks. I would also call your trustees' attention to the fact that they have been remiss in keeping the streets adjacent to my property in proper condition.

Mr. Parsons will present the letter to the Board at its next meeting.

VISITING THE PREVENTORIUM

Party of 50 Goes to Farmingdale To-day for Annual Meeting.

The success achieved in rescuing children of the congested city districts from tuberculosis will be illustrated to-day at the annual meeting of the Tuberculosis Preventorium for children at Farmingdale, N. J. A party of about fifty will leave over the Jersey Central at 9:50 A. M., arriving at Farmingdale at 11:25. An inspection of the old and new buildings will be made and luncheon will be served. The party will get back here at 5 o'clock.

Marcus M. Marks, president of the institution, has invited as guests of honor Dr. Abraham Jacobi, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Straus and Nathan Straus, Jr., in recognition of the fact that this work was conceived and founded by Nathan Straus, who coined the term "Preventorium" to describe the purpose he had in mind, which was to take children out of tuberculosis environments and those who chowed predisposition to this disease and fortify them against the plague by life in the open with good food. This idea was an outgrowth of Mr. Straus's work in fighting tuberculosis by the pasteurization of milk. It was Dr. Jacobi who was Mr. Straus's chief advisor in the development of the plan five years ago.

The preventorium has been remarkably successful in rescuing children who were in peril and now has 158 boys and girls who are daily gaining in health and weight in the Jersey pines.

MRS. BELMONT SUED AS SHE WAS SAILING

Served with Summonses in $20,000 Damage Suits Aboard the Mauretania.

$43 BILL CAUSED TROUBLE

Lyon Brothers Say They Were Falsely Imprisoned When They Demanded Payment.

A few hours before Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont sailed from this country on the Mauretania at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning, she was served with summonses in two suits for $10,000 each for arrest and false imprisonment suffered through her.

The summonses were drawn by Gray & Gray, attorneys of 115 Broadway, representing Stephen Pell Lyon and his brother, Joseph Lyon. According to James A. Gray, the Lyon brothers on April 3 went to the home of Mrs. Belmont, at 477 Madison Avenue, with a dressmaker's package, goods ordered by Mrs. Belmont. They delivered the package, which was marked "C. O. D. 43," to an employe of Mrs. Belmont, they said, and waited in the hallway for the money. Presently, according to the lawyer, Mrs. Belmont sent word that she would send a check the next day, and that they might go.

The men refused to leave the house, however, saying that the package was marked C. O. D., and that they must have either the money or the package back. Thereupon, they said, Mrs. Belmont ordered them angrily to leave the house. They refused.

Through her secretary then, the men said, Mrs. Belmont sent out for a policeman. Meanwhile, one of the brothers also left the house, bent on a similar errand. The two policemen reached the Belmont house about the same time. Mrs. Belmont, according to the Lyons, ordered the arrest of the two brothers on the charge of disorderly conduct. They submitted to arrest without preferring counter-charges, and later were taken to the Jefferson Market Court, but not, they alleged, before they had been locked up about eight hours.

In court, Mrs. Belmont was represented by her attorney, Herbert Reeves. After hearing the case, Magistrate Appleton dismissed both.

Three or four days later, the two brothers placed the matter in the hands of their attorney, and negotiations were begun with Mr. Reeves looking to an adjustment of their grievance.

Failing to get such adjustment, and learning that Mrs. Belmont was to leave the country on the Mauretania at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning, the Lyon Brothers' attorneys hurriedly prepared papers in the case and sent a process server to the Belmont home. The process server failed to get service there. He was then directed to hurry aboard the Mauretania and to serve Mrs. Belmont aboard the steamer. This he did, serving summonses on Mrs. Belmont personally in her stateroom, No. 17.

According to Mr. Peeves, it was not Mrs. Belmont, but an employe of hers who signed the complaint against the two men in court, and for this reason if for no other the complaint for arrest and imprisonment should not lie against her personally. Moreover, said Mr. Reeves last night, it was his understanding that the two brothers had agreed in court to press no further action for damages if the case against them were dismissed, and for that reason the complaint against them was not pressed. He thought, also, that the two men had been arrested at Mrs. Belmont's suffrage headquarters in Forty-first Street and not at her home. According to the attorney for the Lyon brothers, however, Mrs. Belmont was present at the time of the arrest of the two men, at her home, and personally directed the policeman to arrest them.

The dressmaker's bill for $43 was paid to Mrs. Lyon in Mr. Reeves's office a few days later. He said he had asked for no release from possible legal action against his client at the time, deeming that unnecessary.

Mrs. Belmont will not return to this country until September. She sailed for a tour of England and France, and also went as a delegate from the United States to the International Woman's Suffrage Alliance Convention at Budapest in June.

THE NEW YORK TIMES INDEX will issue from the press within a few days the first volume, about 275 pages, covering January to April, 1913.

This is the Only Newspaper Index Published in the United States.

It is edited so that, by means of subjects, dates, brief synopses, and full cross-references to persons and related events, the index will be, for all ordinary occasions,

Complete in Itself

For extensive references, while containing accurate page and column notations to the issues of THE NEW YORK TIMES, this work will prove almost equally valuable where the files of any important newspaper are accessible.

The life of the world recorded in the recent past has hitherto been cut off from reference or ordered survey. Yet this period is Most Important to Men of Every Profession working in the present, to public officials, writers, newspaper men, students of public affairs, and business men.

This index of the news meets the lack carefully and thoroughly, Throwing Current Events in Continuous Perspective.

Specimen Copies

covering January to April, 1913, will be sent to you on approval. The price quarterly, bound in paper, will be $1.50 a copy, $6 a year; in boards, $2 a copy, $8 yearly.

Steamships departing for European ports Friday will have moderate south and southwest winds, and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

BRANDEIS REPUDIATED.

Boston Exchange Says He Doesn't Represent It at B. & M. Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 24.—More than $73,000,000 is needed to put the Boston & Maine in first-class working order, and this without allowing one dollar for electrification, according to estimates submitted for the road to-day at the hearing before Inter-State Commerce Commissioner Prouty. These estimates have not been put before the road's Directors.

Of this amount $10,000,000 is asked for to build a new passenger terminal in Charlestown and make extensive improvements in that city, and $19,000,000 for additional main tracks.

Vice President Horn, who has charge of operation and construction, told of the recent improvements and others in contemplation. These changes, he said, would greatly aid in relieving traffic congestion, would save money for the road, and cut down materially the time for moving trains.

Louis D. Brandeis brought out the fact that terminal charges to enable the Hampden Railroad to use the Boston & Albany terminals in Springfield would add $2,000 a mile per train making a round trip, when figured by the year. This is the road leased by the Boston & Maine at an annual rental of $12,000 a mile for each of its fifteen miles of track.

Mr. Brandeis attempted also to show that this road was being built with pine ties and old rails rerolled.

During the hearing Edgar J. Rich, attorney for the Boston & Maine, submitted a voluminous statement showing that the unexpended balances on improvements authorized and not yet completed by the New Haven Road amounted to $26,491,000. It was filed.

Commissioner Prouty assured counsel for the railroads that they would have full opportunity to reply to the allegations made. He said he should be glad to have Mr. Mellen appear, but he must appear in person and not by written statements.

An incident of the day that caused some surprise was the announcement by the Directors of the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange that Louis D. Brandeis, who was supposed to be representing the Exchange at the inquiry, had no authority as counsel from that body. The Directors said in a statement issued this afternoon that Mr. Brandeis was engaged to appear in the interests of the Exchange at a hearing before the commission last June on "unsatisfactory freight service." "We do not understand that Mr. Brandeis is further in the service of the Exchange," the statement concluded.

Since the present hearing began, on Monday, Mr. Brandeis has been the chief opponent of the railroad, and much of the testimony has been elicited by his questions. Some bitterness has been engendered, and in a published statement to-day President Mellen of the New Haven system questioned Mr. Brandeis's good faith.

Mr. Brandeis refused to comment on the action of the Exchange Directors. He intimated, however, that he would participate in to-morrow's sessions, and this intimation seemed to be supported by the statement of Commissioner Prouty, just before adjournment, that to-morrow Mr. Brandeis would have an opportunity of questioning David E. Brown, the examining accountant of the commission.

Three interesting autographs of Maximilian M. I. Robespierre, the leader of the "Mountain" in the French Revolution, were among the items in yesterday's sale of the Napoleon collection of William J. Dodd & Livingston gave $50 for a holograph letter of Robespierre to St. Just and Labas, dated Paris, Dec. 29, 1793. A document dated "12 Prairial An. 2," (May 21, 1794,) and signed by Robespierre, Couthon, and Collot-D'Herboise, went to William H. Hoffman for $52.50.

Dr. William Hirsch paid $30 for Pierre de Nolhac's "La Dauphine Marie Antoinette," Paris, 1896, in binding by Durvand. James F. Drake gave $50 for Barry O'Meara's "Memoirs of Napoleon Bonaparte," fine copy in the original parts, yellow wrappers. E. F. Bonaventure paid $57 for a collection of portraits of the Deputies of the National Assembly, held at Versailles in May, 1789. Dr. W. Hirsch obtained for $41 "La Coeur de l'Imperatrice Josephine," by Imbert de Saint-Amand, an extra illustrated copy. D. Z. Norton of Cleveland gave $51 for a first edition of W. M. Thackeray's "The Second Funeral of Napoleon," London, 1841.

The total for the afternoon's session was $1,407.35.

Robert Fridenberg, at the final session last evening, paid $23 for oval busts of Bonaparte and Josephine. W. H. Hoffman gave $28 for "Napoleon le Grand," bust in cocked hat; $53 for a line engraving by Le Beau after Nodet of "Bataille de Montmirail," and $42 for an aquatint by I. Sutherland after W. Heath, "Battle of Roleia, Aug. 17, 1808." J. F. Sabin paid $52 for an equestrian portrait of the Duke of Wellington, aquatint by D. Havell, large folio in colors, London, 1814.

Year More for Cape Cod Canal.

BOSTON, April 24.—An additional year in which to complete the Cape Cod Canal, taking the time limit to June 3, 1915, was allowed to-day by the Joint Board of Railroad and Harbor and Lake Commissioners. The canal is five-eighths completed, according to August Belmont of New York, President of the company. He told the Commissioners that 10,000,000 cubic yards of material had been dredged, and that 6,000,000 remained.

CAN'T END TWINE STRIKE.

State Authorities Give Up Effort to Effect Settlement.

AUBURN, April 24.—The State Board of Mediation and Arbitration and John Williams, State Labor Commissioner, abandoned to-day further effort to settle the twine mills strike against the International Harvester Company. The 675 employes walked out on March 21, and since have rejected every proposition. The company announced to-night that the mills would be held open a reasonable time to let the strikers reconsider. If the employes again reject the company's suggestions the plant will be moved to Germany.

Commissioner Williams said the next move must come from the strikers. The company proposes a fifty-four-hour week, a minimum wage of $8 for women or girls and $9.72 for men or boys, abolition of night work, with a provision for the day employment of employes at present on the night shifts; recall of the machinery sent to tidewater for shipment to Europe; employes to have their old places without discrimination, and a declaration of willingness by the company to receive individuals or committees to hear grievances.

The board and the Commissioner urged acceptance of the proposition.

Tableaux at Teachers College.

A series of eight tableaux from the Arabian Nights stories, with scenes based on the illustrations of the Arabian Nights by Mexfield Parrish and Edmond Dulac, was given under the auspices of the Arts and Crafts Club of Teachers' College, Columbia University, last night, in the Household Arts Building of Teachers' College. Some twenty-five women members of the club took part in the tableaux, which were attended by about 300 spectators. The tableaux were given for the benefit of "Arts and Decorations," the magazine published annually by the club.

The stories from which the scenes were taken were read by Miss Anne Selleck, a graduate student, before the curtain rose.

MISSOURI INSURANCE LAW BLOCKS TRADE

Business Can't Go On Without Protection and Companies Refuse to Accept Risks.

MANY TO QUIT APRIL 30

Editor of the St. Louis Republic Suggests That Contracts Might Be Made from Outside State.

The danger of a complete business paralysis throughout the State of Missouri as a result of the drastic fire insurance law passed by the present Legislature and the consequent withdrawal of fire insurance companies from that State, was described yesterday by Charles W. Knapp, editor of The St. Louis Republic, who is attending the convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association at the Waldorf. The drastic provisions of the new fire insurance law, he said, threatens not only business within the State, but also thousands of shippers outside the State, who, finding that they could get no insurance for shipments into Missouri, diverted them to other States.

Already some 156 fire insurance companies doing business in the State have announced their intention of withdrawing and underwriting no more fire risks in Missouri after April 30, when the new law goes into effect. More companies are expected to join in this determination as a result of a meeting of the Western Insurance Bureau held at Pittsburgh yesterday.

Until a few years ago the fixing of insurance rates in Missouri had been in the hands of the State Board of Fire Underwriters, of which James A. Waterworth, one of the leading business men of St. Louis, was president. Mr. Waterworth, in fact, dominated the Board, and it was primarily through him that the fire insurance rates were made. The organization of which he was the head also conducted a Fire Prevention Bureau for the examination of buildings, a fire underwriters' patrol, and a salvage corps.

Hostile legislation forced the dissolution of the Board of Fire Underwriters, but so great was the confidence of the insurance companies that they immediately accepted Mr. Waterworth in his individual capacity to perform the work of determining fire insurance rates. A law was passed prohibiting this practice also, and the bureau was discontinued.

New Bureau Formed.

Under the legislation at that time, however, a Missouri Actuary Bureau, consisting of a Chairman and two associated Directors, was permitted, allowing the fire insurance companies to agree on rates, but requiring them to file these rates with the State Insurance Commissioner, and empowering the Commissioner to consider such rates and to reduce them if in his judgment they were exorbitant. Mr. Waterworth, whom the companies at first tried to put in charge of the bureau for the State until opposition was encountered from Kansas City, was put in charge of the St. Louis district.

Through the Missouri Actuary Bureau the companies constructed new schedules aiming to equalize rates throughout the State. In doing so, about 45 per cent. of the rates were lowered, and about 55 per cent. raised. Wherever the existing rates were raised, vigorous protests were immediately encountered.

"The companies had filed schedules with higher rates than they expected to have granted to them," said Mr. Knapp yesterday, "counting on the likelihood of Insurance Commissioner Blake reducing them, as he was able to under the law. Holders of fire insurance policies throughout the State urged him to do so, but the Commissioner refused to exercise the power given to him under the law. The high rates remained.

"Thereupon those agitating for relief went before the Legislature. As a result, the present law, known as the Orr law, was passed. The Orr bill made any agreement between the companies in fixing of rates punishable as restraint of trade, by a heavy fine or imprisonment up to five years, or both. If it could be shown on complaint that an agent or representative of a company in fixing a fire insurance rate had used or even inspected the rate schedule of any other company, that mere fact, under the new law, was made prima facie evidence of a violation of the law.

"At a meeting held in Philadelphia two weeks ago, 109 organizations of fire insurance underwriters agreed to withdraw from the State after April 30, and since then, I believe, the number has been increased to 156. Action is to be taken by fifty more companies at a meeting in Pittsburgh to-day.

"This means almost complete business paralysis. A big wholesale dry goods house, for example, which had been negotiating for the use of a $1,500,000 building, found that the parties who were considering leasing it to them had thrown up their hands; they could get no insurance. Shipments of cotton, grain, and other commodities consigned to places within the State from other States, have to be diverted elsewhere, simply because the consigners are not sure they can get insurance on them. Building organizations throughout the State are affected, mortgages being unable to keep up insurance on buildings.

"Already vehement protests have been made by many organizations, including the Bankers' Club and the Merchants' Exchange, and meetings have been held throughout the State, at which delegations were selected to visit the Governor and urge him to act in relief of the present complication. Meanwhile, the Attorney General and Commissioner Revelle, the new Insurance Commissioner, have been trying to relieve the strain by asserting that the whole trouble is due to a misinterpretation of the law by insurance companies. But their statements have not allayed the widespread uneasiness, the companies cannot take the risk of incurring the penalties of the law, and business men cannot do without insurance."

Mr. Knapp suggested that a possible evasion of the law might be effected if the companies would conduct negotiations by mail, making their contracts from other States and executing them outside Missouri. They would then be subject to the Federal instead of Missouri law. The likelihood of this, however, has not been ruled upon as yet.

COMPANIES DESERT MISSOURI.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 24.—Asserting that they felt they had not the courage to operate under the new insurance law of Missouri, which forbids the consulting of the rate cards of other insurance companies, representatives of fifty fire insurance companies doing business in Missouri have agreed to suspend operations in that State. To-day's meeting was attended by delegates to the convention of the Western Bureau of Fire Insurance, and was informally called for the purpose of discussing the Missouri act.

W. H. Stevenson, President of the Agricultural Fire Insurance Company of Watertown, N. Y., who presided at the meeting, said:

"No one of us felt we had the courage to operate under the Missouri law. It affects each individual agent, the officers of the company and the company itself."

Complaint was made at the meeting that the companies operating in Missouri, in order to comply with the law passed a year ago, spent $250,000 in organizing a body of experts whose duty was to calculate the rates. By the enactment of the new law, it is asserted, the State has dealt unfairly with the insurance companies.

This morning a meeting of the Eastern Insurance Bureau was held. Ex-Gov. Hadley of Missouri was present and delivered an address in which he advised the insurance companies to send representatives to Jefferson City to confer with the Attorney General of the State and other officials. After the Governor had closed his address, the delegates voted to refer the matter to the Missouri committee, appointed to give [illegible] consideration to the present [illegible]

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Fewer Fake Paris Labels.

Recent activities of the Advertising Men's League have minimized the sale of fake Paris labels in this city, according to A. M. Grean, one of the pioneers in the American fashions for American women movement. It is now impossible to buy them openly, but it is believed that they are still sold in a small way under cover.

⁂

Object to Feather Provision.

Local importers of flowers and feathers are up in arms over the provision of Schedule N of the new Tariff bill, which prohibits the importation of feathers and other parts of wild birds for millinery garnitures. Not only would a good part of the business of these importers be wiped out if the bill becomes a law in its present form, but a large number of women now employed here in preparing feathers, wings, and heads would be thrown out of work.

⁂

Wholesalers Willing to Help.

Local manufacturers and jobbers seem inclined to give retailers in the Middle Western flood belt as much credit extension as they reasonably require. Most dealers there desired to pay 100 cents on the dollar, but one house, which suffered greater damage than others, offered a 25 per cent. cash settlement, and this proposal was accepted at a meeting of the firm's New York creditors on Wednesday. Julius Blauner of Blauner Brothers & Co., one of the creditors, said yesterday, however, that acceptance of such settlements was wrong. He contended that allowing some retailers to evade their debts in that way would breed misrepresentation among others.

⁂

Tariff Petition from Fur Men.

At a joint meeting of committees appointed from the Fur Merchants' Credit Association and the Associated Fur Manufacturers it was decided to appeal to the Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee for consideration, either through a hearing or briefs, of the inequalities in the Underwood tariff schedule directly affecting their industry. They had already petitioned the President and Chairman Underwood regarding the matter. If it is impossible for them to be heard by the Senate Finance Committee they will appeal directly by brief to every member of Congress.

⁂

Salvador Coffee Crop to be Lighter.

According to reliable estimates, the 1912-1913 coffee crop of Salvador will be from 15 to 20 per cent. less than that of the previous year, or between 55,000,000 and 60,000,000 pounds. Up to the early part of this month not more than 20,000,000 pounds of the present crop had been shipped. This was due to the late beginning of the rainy season, which delayed the crop about six weeks. Much of the coffee in the higher altitudes remains to be picked.

⁂

Raw Silk Prices Going Up.

Raw silk prices on all grades are slowly advancing in this market under the scarcity of stocks at primary points. At Yokohama tram stock now stands 30 yen a picul higher than a month ago. New crop Canton silk is reported to be of fair quality. The crop is estimated between 8,000 and 10,000 bales, and is already more than half sold.

BILLS FOR HONEST TEXTILES

Labeling Would Affect the Worsted Men Less Than the Woolen.

Apropos the bills before Congress for labeling adulterated textiles, a local trade authority said yesterday that if they become operative they would affect worsted manufacturers less than woolen, because there was little room for manipulating worsted fabrics. Wool shoddy, garnetted stock, worsted waste, noils and cotton can be easily worked into woolen goods, however, and they can hardly be detected except by "boiling out." A manufacturer said that the consumer would be benefited only if the bills and free wool were combined with sufficiently high duty to protect American makers, because there is no protection given against adulteration in imported fabrics.

Another trade authority said that the bills were of little value, because the average man cares little about what a fabric was made of if it pleased him. He pointed out also that when a woman bought broadcloth she was not particular whether it was all wool or all worsted, or whether it contained cotton or shoddy. Also it mattered little to her whether the wool in the goods came from Australia or Ohio, if the color was the prevailing one and the goods suited her purpose.

TARIFF ON CUT GEMS.

Prices Will Go Up 10 Per Cent. if Duty Is Increased, Says Nissen.

The American public will have to pay at least 10 per cent. more for its diamonds and other precious stones if the revised portion of the Underwood Tariff bill relative to importations of cut gems is made a law. According to Ludwig Nissen, who returned yesterday from Washington, where he went to argue for the trade against the change, this will be only one of the bad features of increasing the rate on these stones to 20 per cent. ad valorem. Discussing the proposed advance Mr. Nissen said:

"The additional increase of 5 per cent. decided on in the Democratic caucus will largely prevent the Government from collecting revenue on cut stones. The big part of them will be smuggled into the country as under the Wilson bill, which made this duty 25 per cent. Undervaluation will also be encouraged, but there will be less of it than smuggling. Under the Wilson bill as high as 80 to 85 per cent. of the precious stones brought here were fraudulently entered duty free. Another bad feature is that the honest importer will be unable to compete under this bill with less scrupulous members of the trade."

High Average of Kansas Wheat.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 24.—The first crop report of the year, issued to-day by the Kansas Board of Agriculture, says: "Statements of correspondents indicate that not to exceed five per cent. of the area of Winter wheat, estimated as sown in Kansas last Fall, will be a failure. The general average condition of wheat in the State is estimated to be 89.5.

"This is the highest condition at about the same date in April since 1908, and is 8.38 points higher than a year ago, while the area is more than 1,190,000 acres greater. The acreage figures, however, are subject to later revision by assessors' returns.

"Since the data upon which the report was based was sent in, rains have fallen in virtually all parts of the State, the sections needing it most reporting the heaviest."

Building on Smaller Scale.

The report of the Bureau of Buildings for Manhattan, for the quarter ended March 31, 1913, made public yesterday, shows that plans were filed for new buildings and alterations involving a cost of $23,188,544. For the corresponding quarter in 1912 the amount was $31,067,495. The falling off, it was stated, is not due to a decrease in the number of plans, as there were 984 this year, compared to 992 last year, but to the fact that there were fewer large operations this year.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Sales of raw silk at Yokohama in the last week amounted to 5,200 bales. Stocks there are now reduced to 6,000 bales, the lowest at this time in the last six years. The week's shipments aggregated 6,100 bales.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

A good demand exists for broadcloth in high-color effects. Scarlet, green, blue and Nellrose are among the most wanted shades.

An unusual scarcity of silk coats is reported in the local cloak and suit trade. The inability of the cutters to get sufficient merchandise because of labor troubles in the principal silk producing centres is given as the reason.

In view of reports of a "war fund" made up in the embroidery trade to stimulate business, more than ordinary interest is shown in this market in the cash prizes offered by one of the leading trade journals for the best window display featuring embroideries.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

The payment of the Canton-Hankow Railway loan, which was concluded with the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the Deutsch-Asiatische Bank, the International Banking Corporation, and the Banque de l'Indo-Chine in 1911, and which amounts to £6,000,000, is imminent. The Chinese Government will give the railway itself as security for the loan.

The Dominican export of bananas, entire output taken by the United Fruit Company, fell to 223,000 stems in 1912, the lowest for many years. Shipments this year began on March 6, and if conditions continue favorable may reach 800,000 stems for the season.

Mother of pearl buttons, made in Austria-Hungary, are finding an expanding market abroad. Shipments were 1,800,000 pounds, worth $2,750,000, in 1910, and 2,000,000 pounds, worth $3,500,000, in 1912.

The appointment of Mr. Corbett was requested by petitioning creditors and two, the Importers and Traders' National Bank, $22,412, and Adolph Arons, $14,000. Ehrlich as a manufacturer of gas and electric fixtures at 142 West Eighteenth Street by these creditors: Benjamin Simon, $575; Progress Brass Fitting Company, $151, and Louis Israel, $300, all on notes of the Union Gas and Electric Fixture Company of 142 West Eighteenth Street, which he indorsed. DENATURED ALCOHOL GOOD AUTO CLEANER

Experiments with Fluid Described by Chairman of Local S. A. E.—Motor Happenings.

At a meeting of the Metropolitan Section of the Society of Automobile Engineers, held at its headquarters, 1,790 Broadway, Joseph A. Anglada, chairman of the section, read a paper last night on the subject of denatured alcohol as a decarbonizer and engine cleanser.

These conclusions were reached by Mr. Anglada after experimentation:

Denatured alcohol is an efficient decarbonizer. It does not injuriously affect the surfaces of metals with which it comes in contact. Heat is not necessary when using it. Heat, however, accelerates the action. When introduced in the combustion space of an automobile cylinder at the working temperature of the engine, denatured alcohol will so loosen the carbon deposit as to allow it to pass out with the exhaust gases when the engine is run. An engine which has been in service for an extensive period will show a marked increase in operating efficiency when treated with denatured alcohol.

In describing one of his experiments, Mr. Anglada said:

"The first experiment consisted of running the motor of a four cylinder, forty horse power car, until the temperature of the cooling water was at 140° F. Examination showed that the combustion space, including the heads of the valves, was covered with a hard deposit nearly 1-16 inch thick. The exhaust passages in the valve cage were covered with a similar deposit, which in spots was ⅛ inch thick. An attempt was made to remove the deposit by scraping parts of the surface with a piece of wood sharpened to a chisel edge. It was found impossible to dislodge any of the material, but a slight amount of fluffy material, similar to lamp black, was removed. When force was applied to the wooden scraper, its edge was broken without removing any of the caked deposit. It was found necessary to use a sharp steel instrument to effect the removal of any of the hard deposit.

"Denatured alcohol was poured through the exhaust valve opening until the entire combustion space above the piston was filled. The openings in the cylinder for the exhaust valve cage and for the inlet valve plug were covered by cloths which had been wet with water, so as to retard the evaporation of the denatured alcohol through these openings. The exhaust valve and cage and the inlet valve plug were completely immersed in a receptacle containing cold denatured alcohol and left to soak in the garage with the engine. The average temperature in the garage for the eight hours during which the soaking occurred was 45 degrees F."

This completely cleansed the parts.

They are using some bright and striking pasters for the backs of envelopes on "Automobile Row" nowadays, which celebrate the coming meeting of the Institution of Automobile Engineers of England and the Society of Automobile Engineers of America. The S. A. E. is going to meet a large delegation of the I. A. E. before next month is very old and take the British visitors on a personally conducted tour to some of the big motor car factories, to the 500-mile race at Indianapolis and then through the "Soo" Canal.

⁂

The city of Huntington, Ind., has declined to grant a franchise for a street car line, and has substituted a motor omnibus service under a twenty-year franchise. It is the first American city to adopt motor 'buses to the exclusion of street cars.

⁂

After twenty years of continuous service in the Studebaker Corporation, E. Louis Kuhns, manager of its interests in New York City and England, is retiring from business. He will make his residence in Chicago.

⁂

A suit of some importance in determining the relations of automobile manufacturer and dealer has just been determined in Buffalo. G. H. Poppenberg, a dealer of that city, brought a suit for $8,000 damages against R. M. Owen & Co. for alleged breach of contract, claiming the damages for a number of 1911 cars on hand when the 1912 model was announced, and demanding the return of the deposit which he had made on the contract. The company set up a counter claim demanding the profits which they would have made had the dealer taken all the cars he had contracted for. The verdict gave the dealer the amount of his deposit, $2,000, but awarded $33,000 to the company, which was the full amount of its expected profits.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Importers Obtain Lower Duties on Gloves and Jewelry.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained Gimbel Brothers in a contention over the classification under the present Tariff Act of gloves returned by the Appraiser at Philadelphia as boys' gloves at 50 cents per dozen pairs and 40 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 328 of the Act of 1909. The Appraiser said that a mistake had been made and that the goods were used principally by girls, and should have been returned at 50 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 324 as cotton wearing apparel.

The F. Wm. Gertzen Company and others of New York were also sustained on jewelry and parts of jewelry returned at 85 per cent. as articles of personal adornment under paragraph 448 of the Act of 1909. The importers asked a rate of 60 per cent. under the same paragraph as jewelry.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Wheat prices declined ½ to ⅞c. from the day's high, and closed at net losses of ¼ to ⅜c. Corn closed ⅛ to ¼c. net lower, while oats showed a ¼c. net gain for May and a ⅛c. net loss for other months. Cotton was less active yesterday and moved contrary to recent sessions, closing at a net advance of 6 to 15 points.

⁂

WHEAT.

The foreign news played an important part in the wheat fluctuations yesterday, and was responsible for the principal upturn of the day, which carried prices ¼@½c above the previous night. The advance was not sustained, however, owing to active realizing in the last hour, so that final prices were ¼@⅜c net lower. A decline of ¼@⅜c marked the opening of the market in response to disappointing English cables and very favorable weather in Winter wheat States, including further good rains and a general breaking up of the drought. With the arrival of Continental cables, however, a different complexion was put on foreign news, and domestic sentiment became very bullish, promoting an active demand for both short and long account. Liverpool also improved, and at the close was ¼@½d net higher, while Paris closed ½@1c higher, Budapest, ⅝c higher; Berlin, ½@1c higher, while Buenos Ayres opened strong at 1⅛c advance. As weather conditions in France and Russia showed improvement, this pronounced strength abroad was attributed by some to uneasiness over the political situation. The advancing tendency on this side around midday was also helped by rumors that Duluth had worked 650,000 bushels for export yesterday, although this rumor was open to some suspicion. Fresh business for the day amounted to about 42 loads of Manitoba. The advance was met by heavy selling, in part due to the Kansas State report, making condition 89.58, which would suggest a crop of over 100 millions for that State. Weather advices from the Northwest were also very favorable, and Winnipeg wired that the forecast was for fine and cool conditions on Friday as well. No. 2 red, locally, was entirely nominal; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.03, free on board, afloat, opening navigation.

CORN.

There was quite a trade in May corn, which opened ½c lower, advanced ⅝c per bushel, and lost most of it in the afternoon, closing ¼c net lower, with other months ⅛c down. The early weakness was on a decline of ⅛d at Liverpool and further selling by an elevator house at Chicago. The weather was favorable in the Eastern belt, but too wet in Western sections, and farm offerings were not quite as liberal as on the previous day. It was estimated that Argentine shipments would be 1,273,000 bushels, compared with 1,488,000 bushels the previous week and 782,000 bushels last year. Export corn in the local market was quoted at 63½c, free on board, afloat.

OATS.

The oats market acted quite steady most of the day, with a fair volume of commission house buying on a light movement, and fears of delayed seeding by reason of the wet weather. Final prices were ¼c higher on May and ⅛c net lower on other months, the market having worked off a little in the last hour with wheat. Cash oats in New York were steady as follows: Standard white, 41c, nominal; No. 3, 40½@41c; No. 4, 39½@40c; natural white, 38½@41c; white, clipped, 39@42c, all track.

PROVISIONS.

A light run of hogs led to active commission house buying of provisions yesterday, and the market had a sharp advance, closing near the top. A better cash trade was noted also. Receipts at the West amounted to 60,000 hogs, of which 14,000 were at Chicago, 6,000 at Kansas City, and 3,000 at Omaha. Chicago expected 11,000 hogs on Friday.

COTTON.

The cotton market was less active yesterday, but prices ruled higher, and the close was steady at a net advance of from 6 to 15 points. Predictions of frost in the Western belt, the absence of continued active old crop liquidation, and the possibility of a more or less natural reaction after such a break as prices had recently experienced all seemed to be factors on the recovery. The fact that business did not broaden as prices moved upward convinced some traders that the demand reflected precautionary covering rather than any important change in general sentiment. However, this view seemed to be colored to some extent by the fact that the New Orleans market turned easier after the New York close. Final prices here were within a point or two of the best on most positions.

The market opened steady at an advance of 1 to 4 points in sympathy with relatively firm cables and worked gradually higher. May contracts, which had sold at 11.36 on Wednesday, sold up to 11.48 in the late trading, or to a net advance of 11 points, while October sold 12 points higher. Business was fairly active at the start when there were a number of overnight selling orders around the market, but there was also a good demand from people with Liverpool and New Orleans connections. After the close of the English market trading became quiet, but there was comparatively little cotton for sale, and whenever shorts tried to cover prices worked higher.

Weather advices indicated further precipitation in the Western belt, which seemed to be spreading eastward, and which was considered favorable, but the outlook was rendered less satisfactory by the prediction of low temperatures which, even if they do no harm, cannot be regarded as desirable from a new crop standpoint. Local bears claim that there is not enough cotton in a position to be injured to make the cold snap of any importance, providing it is followed by warmer weather in the near future. The somewhat less favorable weather outlook, however, emphasizes the uncertainties of the new crop start and progress, while the cessation of active old crop liquidation and the approach of the first May Notice Day started considerable old crop covering. Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were unchanged to ¼c lower. Liverpool reported a quiet, steady market with a somewhat better spot demand.

COTTONSEED OIL.

In responding to a strong lard market cottonseed oil advanced about 5 to 8 points during the early trading and had considerable support from commission houses, who were also influenced by the continued firmness of crude. The upturn brought out more or less realizing, however, under which prices worked off a little, closing unchanged to 4 points net higher.

COFFEE.

Coffee declined 6 to 15 points at the outset, showed a further loss of 9 to 12 points for the late positions, and then rallied to close and was steady at a net loss of 2 to 5 points. Total sales, 98,750 bags. There was considerable switching from May to the later months, especially December. European markets were lower. Cost and freight offers were 10 to 25 points down, but still far above a parity with prices here.

Spot coffee steady; Rio 7 quoted at 11¼.

(About Investments)

Buying a stock or bond which later shows a profit is not the whole of successful investing. The stock or bond must be sold—the paper profit converted into a real profit—and the proceeds reinvested as safely as at first. In other words, one must know when to sell. This requires a knowledge of fundamentals. Our booklet, "Judging Securities," will help you. Sent on request.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks a Little More Active and Lower—Stock Exchange Discipline.

An increased volume of trading on the Stock Exchange yesterday yielded as a net result a larger net change, and a downward one, than any recorded since April 4, when the high prices of the present month were reached. In the interval there has been a recession of a little over three points in the general level of prices. This has been brought about on an average daily volume of sales which has represented apparently very little more business than that which had its origin among traders to whom has been left in so large measure the shaping of prices. Not that influences have been lacking to which to point in explanation of the receding quotations, but the price losses of recent weeks seem rather to have been due to absence of outside buying than to any great pressure of outside selling. Some buying from the outside has been induced by the declines, but this sort of support has not assumed sufficient volume to make headway against the tendency which trading operations have given to the market. Some new elements were presented yesterday, and they gave help to the professional trader working for lower prices rather than encouragement to those, whatever their number, who argue that the decline which has been seen has discounted all the unfavorable elements and represented neglect of the favorable elements in the situation. To many it seems that the stock market, as the bond market, lately has suffered from lack of buying power, and from this point of view the readiness with which prices have yielded to professional operations for the decline seems easily enough explained. A larger measure of saving by the people at large, with all the results which a greater spirit of economy would bring in its wake, has been as much needed by the stock market as by the bond market itself. In the latter there continue to appear signs of improvement, although this seemed to reflect the lessened selling pressure rather than any large scale absorption.

The firemen's wage award, and the uneasiness of Europe over the capture of Scutari by the Montenegrins were the adverse factors which were seized upon by the trading element, if an increase in wages which had been fully expected is rightly described as an adverse factor in the stock market sense. The weakness in New York Central and declines in some other railroad issues were easily referrable to the necessity which the Eastern railroads are under of paying out more in wages without receiving any compensating advantage. The influence of this wage addition is enhanced in the eyes of those who have abandoned any hope which they may have entertained that successive increases in wages would lead to granting the railroads higher freight rates. Without regard to the merits of the case there are many in the financial district who feel that to place reliance on an increase in rates is to lean on a broken reed. Closely connected with this point of view is the possibility of dividend reductions, which now is one of the topics of every-day discussion in the financial district. Those with whom final decision in the matter rests may well consider if it is a wiser policy to postpone granting any relief to the railroads in one way or another until it cannot be longer postponed except at great cost to the public itself, than by a little more liberal handling of the situation, to save both the public and the railroads from a too great tax upon their resources. Meanwhile, however, wage advances are being actually granted, and the margin between railroad gross earnings and net income is being further narrowed.

Stock Exchange ethics came in for a good deal of discussion apropos of the action of the Exchange in the Rumely controversy and of the disciplining of two members of the Exchange for violation of the rule forbidding the carrying of accounts for employes of a financial institution. In order to view in the proper light the action in the Rumely matter it is necessary to bear in mind that the Stock Exchange had to do in this matter only with the question of good faith, and it found that the bankers in the representations which they had made had acted in entire good faith. The investigation of the Exchange did not go into the question of the degree of business judgment exercised in the formation and promotion of the company. The holders of the stock have had of course to reckon with that, but that phase was not before the Stock Exchange committee. The disciplining of two members for handling the account of a trust company employe registered the disapproval of the Exchange authorities of the encouragement of speculation by those who have no right to speculate. The degree of its disapproval is emphasized by the fact that in the present instances the members of the firms concerned were able to disavow personal knowledge that the trust company employe was trading with them. The Stock Exchange takes the position that it is the duty of members to have personal knowledge of such matters. The course which the committee has followed seems likely to bear good results in compelling closer supervision of branch offices of Stock Exchange houses than has been exercised in some instances in the past. The incident illustrates once again how effectively the Stock Exchange, under its present organization, is able to deal with violations of its rules.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Crop Outlook Favorable.

With so many things going wrong, from the observing stockholder's viewpoint, it is a matter for general congratulation that so far this year nothing very serious has threatened the 1913 crop. At the moment the agitation around President Mellen may seem to the New Haven stockholder to be the biggest event in contemporary history, just as the slump in Rumely seems to the holder of that issue to transcend all other developments, but in six months both events will probably have receded into the dim past. At about that time, if rain and sunshine have been distributed in the proper proportions throughout the Summer, the same people who are now ready to predict anything short of the end of the world will be boasting of the country's annual increase in wealth.

⁂

Early News Good.

In place of dire statements as to drought, or too heavy rainfall, or the sinister labors of bugs beneath the surface of the soil, which have supplied effective bearish ammunition in other years, there have been printed by the Wall Street news agencies this Spring such reports from the West as these: "A general rain fell last night. Wheat condition perfect." "Wheat condition never better." "Wheat is in good condition. There are no insects." The dispatches quoted came from crop experts in Nebraska and Oklahoma yesterday and were impressed upon the minds of readers as indicators of a widely excellent state of the wheat fields in the Middle and South West. The crop report of the Kansas Board of Agriculture, which was received in the Street late in the afternoon, gave another lift to sentiment on the bullish side of the stock market in the statement that the yield of wheat would probably be 100,000,000 bushels against about half that amount two years ago. It was noticeable, however, that quotationes for securities failed to reflect by even a slight advance the cheerful feeling about the crops.

⁂

Conditions in Southwest.

President Winchell of the St. Louis & San Francisco said yesterday that the crop prospects were particularly favorable in the States traversed by his company's lines, general rains having provided adequate moisture. The loss from floods in that section has been much less than it was last year.

⁂

Discipline on the Stock Exchange.

The moral pointed out by the Stock Exchange in suspending for six months the floor members of two houses which accepted business from a minor employe of a trust company is that incorporation would be bad for the Exchange. According to the statements of the suspended men they were only technically guilty of violating a rule which they tried to uphold, and they might have gotten off in a court of law. Furthermore, under the regulation of the State, as an incorporated institution, the Stock Exchange would have been unable to enforce its penalty of suspension, owing to the dread power of the injunction. Measured by this line of reasoning, the two members punished may consider themselves martyred in a good cause. For six months they must pay another floor broker $2 per hundred shares for executing their orders.

⁂

Rift in the Clouds.

An experienced bond man was finding comfort yesterday in the detection of a small demand for long-term bonds, which he hailed as the harbinger of a gradually reviving market. In recent weeks there has been no bond market, in the ordinary usage of that expression. The success of the offering of $10,000,000 of New York Central one-year 5 per cent. notes seems to have cleared the atmosphere to a slight extent. These notes were offered Monday morning, and at 10:15 that day a notice was sent out that the books had closed. Even so, the amount offered was considerably more than twice subscribed, and only those bidders who were assumed to be buying for their own investment purposes got the amounts asked for. In some cases, where dealers put in bids, the allotment was only 10 per cent. of the amount asked for.

⁂

Half of Can Bonds Sold.

A representative of the managers of the syndicate which underwrote the $14,000,000 issue of American Can Company debenture bonds last February said yesterday that approximately 50 per cent. of the bonds had been sold. This was in correction of a news dispatch from Chicago which said that no more than $5,515,000 had been distributed by the syndicate. It was learned that the managers found a ready market for the bonds when the issue was first offered to investors, but that the general contraction of demand in the bond market in the past few weeks had affected the Can securities as much as others. To help the syndicate bridge over the period of low prices the managers recently made arrangements with a trust company to carry $2,000,000 of the unsold bonds until Aug. 1, the consideration to the trust company being the interest on the bonds for the time they hold them.

⁂

Low Ground for Rumely Shares.

The Rumely stocks gave a poor account of themselves in yesterday's market, the common selling off for a net loss of 5 points and the preferred for a shrinkage of 6 points. Both issues touched new low levels, for while the common shares closed at 27, where they have stood before, the lowest figure for the day was 26. At the rate of the last dividend paid on the preferred stock the yield on a purchase at the bottom price would be 10.7 per cent.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Weakness Caused by Balkan Situation—All London Markets Close Dull.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, April 25.—The Times in its City article to-day will say:

"The moderate demand for money experienced yesterday was easily provided for, although the supply was restricted, owing to the lockup of a certain amount of money for monthly balance sheet purposes. The rate for short fixtures was a shade firmer, at 3 per cent. Discount quotations were unaltered, with comparatively little business in bills. Continental exchanges moved in favor of London, Paris rising 1c.

"The Stock Exchange passed one of the idlest days for some time past. In the absence of business prices naturally showed a disposition to give way. Paris and Berlin both appeared a little uneasy regarding the Balkan situation, but, except that there was a fairly sharp fall in Rio Tinto shares and Peruvian Corporation preference, the movements of prices of international securities were slight. Canadian Pacific shares followed the previous day's fall in New York, and the price closed at the lowest point reached. American shares were dull in the absence of support from Wall Street. Sao Paulo ordinary reacted sharply after Wednesday's advance. In the foreign market the Brazilian group remained weak."

PARIS, April 24.—Prices opened steady on the Bourse to-day. Later the market reacted and closed weak.

Three per cent. rentes, 86f. 30c. for the account.

BERLIN, April 24.—The Scutari question caused a weak opening on the Boerse to-day, and there was heavy realizing later, despite a temporary rally due to the effect of Premier Asquith's speech.

CITY BANK ANSWERS McADOO

Contradicts Statements About Employe's Work in Washington.

An implication that the National City Bank had obtained an unfair advantage over other institutions through the employment of a young woman in Washington to copy the statements of condition returned by other National banks was strongly resented by officers of the National City yesterday. It was said that the bank had never received any information through this channel which was not available to the public and had obtained the desired figures only after they had been published in various newspapers throughout the country.

President Frank A. Vanderlip issued a statement yesterday in which he said the bank had an agency in Washington for years, "for the purpose of furnishing a convenient means to its correspondent banks to have the representative required by law in connection with the destruction of National bank notes and the handling of bonds to secure circulation and deposits." He also said that it had been the practice to have an employe visit the Controller's office to compile information that it was customary to give out to anybody desiring it. He pointed out that the National Bank act requires every National bank to make report of its condition upon the Controller's call, and that the reports of the Controller of the Currency were public property, "except in so far as they concern the private relations of a bank with its customers, which are never divulged." As a matter of fact, he said, the statistics as to the condition of banks were published in the newspapers long before the National City Bank obtained them at the Controller's office. Here the statement continues:

"The information is not compiled by the Controller for thirty days or more after it is published by the individual banks. It is manifestly an impossible task to get 6,000 or 7,000 banks to send copies of their statements promptly. We have found, therefore, it was a better plan to obtain the information directly at the Controller's office, where it is all centred, and where it has always been open for any one making inquiry. The work of compiling this information for the use of the National City Bank has to be done in the Controller's office, because the reports are not permitted to be taken from the office. Obviously, to make up the statistics, it is necessary to use a desk, but there is no regular place assigned or any connection had with the Treasury Department except this.

"The National City Bank does not feel that there is anything in its relations with the Treasury Department to require explanation, but it does feel that on all such occasions the public should have the exact facts."

EXCHANGE SUSPENDS TWO.

Brokers Disciplined for Carrying a Bank Clerk's Speculative Account.

William Morris Imbrie of the Stock Exchange house of W. M. Imbrie & Co. and John W. Kirkner of Spaulding, McLellan & Co. were suspended from membership on the Exchange by the Governing Committee yesterday for a period of six months. The charge in both cases was that the firms had carried a speculative account for a subordinate of a New Jersey trust company, in violation of a specific rule of the Exchange which forbids brokerage house to take such accounts from clerks in banks, trust companies, or insurance companies without the written consent of their employers.

Mr. Imbrie issued a statement after his suspension had been announced, in which he said that the infringement of the Exchange ruling was committed by the manager of one of the firm's branch houses in 1910. At the office of Spaulding, McLellan & Co. it was said the violation of the rule had been wholly unintentional. The account in question, according to a statement made in behalf of Mr. Kirkner, was carried by the employe of a railroad company, who gave power of attorney to a third person authorizing the latter to deal with the account.

President Mabon of the Stock Exchange took the opportunity offered by the infliction of discipline upon the two members of issuing a warning against carelessness in examining speculative accounts.

"I wish to impress upon members who have branch offices," he said yesterday, "the necessity of personally supervising the accounts taken in branch offices."

Mr. Imbrie joined the Stock Exchange on Aug. 31, 1882, and Mr. Kirkner on Feb. 3, 1910.

HEAR PLEA FOR TIME OVER PACIFICS PLAN

Supreme Court Asked by U. P. Attorneys to Extend Time for Carrying Out Dissolution.

McREYNOLDS WANTS LIMIT

Utah District Judges, Who Would Consider the Extension if Empowered, Approve Railroad's Petition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Ex-Senator John C. Spooner, of counsel for the Union Pacific Railroad and the Oregon Short Line, petitioned the Supreme Court to-day to authorize the United States District Court for Utah to extend in its discretion the time allowed by the Supreme Court for submitting an acceptable plan for the dissolution of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger. Attorney General McReynolds opposed the petition in the form in which it was submitted, and two days was allowed to him to file his answer. He explained afterward that he will oppose any extension beyond July 1. The time allowed in the Supreme Court's mandate will expire on May 12.

The petition of the railroads, which is signed by John G. Milburn and N. H. Loomis, in addition to Mr. Spooner, was first presented orally by Mr. Spooner. Chief Justice White asked Mr. McReynolds if the Government objected, and when the Attorney General replied that it did, the Chief Justice said he supposed the objections were prepared in writing.

"But, if your Honor please," said Mr. McReynolds, "we haven't had time."

"Oh, but you must take time," replied the Chief Justice.

The petition of the railroads is a long document, including, besides the four plans which have failed for various reasons, a certificate from Judges Sanborn, Hook, and Smith approving the petition. A fifth plan has been prepared, the petition recites, but it is believed that it cannot be finally approved before May 12, and that, should it be rejected because of objections of the Attorney General or the disapproval of the District Court, the railroad would go at once into the hands of a receiver under the Supreme Court's mandate. This plan provides only for the disposition of the stock of the Southern Pacific Company held by the Union Pacific. It has been submitted to the Circuit Judges and the Attorney General for a preliminary consideration in advance of a formal presentation.

The petition asserts that the combination adjudged to be illegal has already been terminated, except that the Union Pacific still holds the shares of Southern Pacific stock. That stock, however, has been disfranchised, so that control of the Southern Pacific has been altogether lost to the Union Pacific Railroad Company.

Since the issuance of the Supreme Court's mandate, says the petition, a new Board of Directors has been elected for the Southern Pacific, entirely distinct from the management of the Union Pacific. None of the new Directors, it is submitted, ever served on the Union Pacific board except Julius Kruttschnitt, who was a Union Pacific Director for a short time, and H. W. De Forest, who was a Director of the Southern Pacific many times before he was elected to a similar position in the Union Pacific.

The court took the application under consideration.

The Governing Committee of the New York Stock Exchange announced yesterday that the stock of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company would be stricken from the trading list on June 16 if the company refused to comply with the Exchange transfer rules. Directors of the Goldfield Company recently appointed the Security Transfer and Registrar Company of this city as both registrar and transfer agent for the stock. The Exchange authorities protested against this action, as a rigid requirement for listing a stock is that a trust company or other agency or other individual shall not at one and the same time act in the dual capacity of registrar and transfer agent.

The resolution adopted by the Governing Committee reads:

> Whereas, The Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company, by letter of March 8, 1913, to the Stock Exchange, advised that commencing March 17 the transfer and registration of this company's stock, now being performed by Guaranty Trust Company and Empire Trust Company, respectively, will thereafter be performed "by a single agency, both as transfer agent and registrar;" and
>
> Whereas, The Committee on Stock List has endeavored by letter of March 29, 1913, to induce the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company to maintain a registry office in New York, separate from its transfer office, in accordance with the requirements above set forth; and
>
> Whereas, The Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company, by letter of April 9, 1913, acknowledged receipt of the letter from the Stock Exchange of March 29, and informs the Stock Exchange "that the arrangement was made in pursuance of an action taken by the Board of Directors" on Feb. 27, 1913; and
>
> Whereas, The Committee on Stock List desires that an opportunity be afforded the shareholders to confer with said company with regard to the continuance of separate transfer and registry offices in the City of New York; therefore be it
>
> Resolved, That the Committee on Stock List recommends to the Governing Committee that the capital stock of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company be stricken from the list on June 16, 1913, unless prior thereto said company shall comply with the requirements agreed to when the stock was listed and restore separate transfer and registry offices in the City of New York.

It was said in Wall Street yesterday that the Goldfield Company would not be averse to having the stock stricken from the list, for transactions in Goldfield shares have dwindled to a small daily total in recent weeks. If the stock should be removed from the Exchange, it would probably be traded in on the Curb, where a broader market for mining stocks exists.

MARQUETTE BONDS SOUND.

Past Management Bad, Committee Finds, but Receivership Capable.

LANSING, Mich., April 24.—The Joint Legislative Committee investigating the management of the Pere Marquette Railroad, now in a receiver's hands, made its final report to-day with a recommendation that the State have broader control of railroads and attributing the Pere Marquette's difficulties to mismanagement and manipulation.

The committee found that "the receivership is capable and should be given a reasonable opportunity to demonstrate whether the road can be made to earn its fixed charges. If it fails, a reorganization must be had.

"Much has been said about watered bonds, but your committee is satisfied that all the bonds are honest; that none of them is watered and that the persons owing them have honest claims."

The committee recommended abrogation of the State two-cent passenger fare law on branch lines of the road where the passenger business is not paying.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

A. D. McDonald, recently elected Controller of the Southern Pacific Company, succeeding William Mahl, has also been made Controller of the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico, the Gulf Steamship Company, and the Louisiana Western Railroad Company.

After occupying for more than a century the site where the first home was located, the Mechanics and Metals Bank will move on April 28 to its new home at 50 Wall Street. The original quarters were on the first floor of a remodeled dwelling house which had been occupied by Alexander Hamilton. The building at 50 Wall Street has been completely remodeled and refitted since its acquisition by the Mechanics and Metals last January.

Directors of the B. F. Goodrich Company took no action at their meeting yesterday on the common dividend due at this time.

The Stock Exchange seat of Louis E. Whicher of Ball & Whicher has been posted for transfer to C. S. Newman. Charles R. Leonard has been made a member of the Exchange.

PASSES STEEL DIVIDEND.

Lackawanna Company Was Expected to Provide a Regular Payment.

Directors of the Lackawanna Steel Company did not declare any dividend on the common stock for the current quarter at their regular meeting of the month yesterday. A disbursement of 1 per cent. was made last January, and, while it was said at the time that the payment was not to be considered as an initial quarterly return, it had been expected in Wall Street that the shares would be placed on a 4 per cent. basis at the next meeting of the Board of Directors.

The earnings of the company since the first of the year have been reported excellent, estimates being as high as 11 per cent. for the full fiscal period. The company has outstanding $34,978,000 common stock and $1,000,000 preferred, of an authorized issue of $10,000,000. The preferred shares are held in the company's treasury for the conversion of $10,000,000 bonds. The usual quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent. on the preferred stock was declared yesterday.

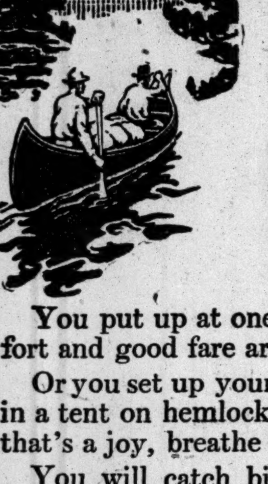
RESORTS. NEW ENGLAND.

Two weeks of JOY-O'-LIVING

Forest Lakes of MAINE



IT'S the vacation you're ACHING FOR. You go 'way down in Maine woods. You leave civilization far behind. By canoe and carry you come to one of those great that are scarcely known to the outside world.

BEAUTIFUL, LONELY LAKES

You put up at one of the log-built permanent camps whose comfort and good fare are one of the wonders of this country.

Or you set up your own camp with an Indian or white guide, sleep in a tent on hemlock boughs, eat campfire cooking with an appetite that's a joy, breathe air that makes your pulses tingle.

You will catch big fish, canoe, explore, watch the moose and deer, get back to Mother Nature.

In two weeks you will come out brown, hard, clear-eyed, steady-nerved—and with memories you wouldn't sell.

The expenses of the trip are small.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Riverside Drive Apartment House Sold to an Investor—Operators Increase Their Holdings on the Upper West Side—Builders Buy Another Dyckman Corner—Bronx and Brooklyn Deals.

Considerable activity was imparted to the realty market yesterday by several west side deals. The most important included the purchase by Alfonse Montant of the large six-story apartment house at 552 Riverside Drive, overlooking the Hudson, at the upper end of the Drive.

The apartment covers a large plot, 88 feet north of 127th Street, having a frontage of 75 feet with a rear line of 92.9 feet, it being in depth 141.11 feet on one side and 174.4 feet on the other. It was sold by the Silverson and London Construction Company, and represented a deal of considerably over $200,000, as the property is assessed at $205,000.

The sale of two dwellings in the lower west side section, which in both cases increase the former holdings of the buyers, evidently indicate additional apartment house improvements. In Ninety-fifth Street, William Colgate bought from Maria L. James the three-story house at 164 West Ninety-fifth Street, seventeen feet front. The buyer owns the three adjoining houses at 158 to 162, inclusive, and with his recent purchase controls a plot 68 feet front by 100.8 feet, which will be held for an apartment improvement. The sale was made by Frederick Zittel & Sons.

In Eighty-ninth Street, between West End Avenue and Riverside Drive, the dwelling at 311 West Eighty-ninth Street, on lot 20 by 100.8, was purchased by the Excelsior Holding Company, composed of Arnstein & Levy and George Backer, from Laura Heilner. The broker was George Ranger.

This purchase gives the new owners control of a plot having a frontage of 80 feet, as they acquired the three adjoining houses, from 313 to 317, last December. Just a few doors west on the Riverside Drive corner is the big Clark house, lately sold. The plot will be held by the buying syndicate for resale to builders, and if not sold before long will be improved by the present owners with a twelve-story apartment, for which plans have been prepared by the architects, Wallace & Goodwillie.

Builders Buy Dyckman Corner.

Another important corner in the Dyckman section was sold yesterday for improvement with apartment houses. The property, which consists of a plot 85 by 245 feet on the southeast corner of Arden Street and Broadway, was sold by the Sutherland Realty Company to the Maze Realty Company.

The buyers have been large operators in the Dyckman section, and are now building a row of five-story apartments at 207th Street and Broadway. As soon as this job is completed, ground will be broken on the Arden Street plot for a row of similar structures.

71st Street Sale for Apartment.

It was rumored yesterday that the three private dwellings at 230, 232, and 234 West Seventy-first Street had been acquired by the Campagna Construction Company, represented by Joseph Paterno. The sellers respectively were Rebecca M. Laidlaw, Mary L. Seyd, and J. W. Westerfield. The combined plot is 60 by 100.5, between Broadway and West End Avenue. The Campagna Company has just completed a nine-story apartment house at 231 to 237 West Seventy-first Street, opposite the site reported sold.

$7,000 a Year Leasehold Profit.

An interesting transaction, which shows quick profits on a leasehold, has been closed by Samuel K. Jacobs, who has leased to A. Schulte, the cigar dealer, the stores and basement in the building on the odd-shaped parcel on the southeast corner of Fulton and Church Streets. For the twenty-one-year term Schulte will pay about $500,000. The property was recently leased by Mr. Jacobs for twenty-one years from Martin and Louis Goldsticker, at an aggregate rental of $350,000. Through the present transaction Mr. Jacobs nets a clear profit of $7,000 a year, which virtually represents the bonuses paid by Schulte for the Jacobs lease. Nelson & Lee acted as the agents.

JOHN BOYLE & CO.'S Make
112 Duane Street, New York City

We mention this Manufacturer's name because his Awning Goods are recognized as "Standard" and are guaranteed Strictly Fast Color.

Our frames and general hardware are galvanized of proper weight, and are the best the market affords. If you consider all the points about our Awning proposition, you must recognize that our offer is the lowest, by a good margin, that has ever been made.

Nearly everybody waits until the last moment to order awnings. The season is then well on, the best awning patterns are sold out, and you are asked to wait 3 to 4 weeks. In fact, half the Summer is gone, and you have no awnings.

Change this method this year! Order your awning needs at once! They are delivered and hung later at your command.

Come and see the good points of our awnings, if you can! Models on exhibition. Otherwise send us a postal or telephone Chelsea 2100, and one of our awning measurers will call with samples!

Make Money on Your Vacation

INSTEAD of spending cash for some boarding place—where you pay much—get little and have nothing to show afterwards—invest it near the seashore. Get a Little Farm in New York City at Annadale on the south shore of Staten Island. "A Quarter of An Acre for A Quarter A Day." Your installments will make it cost but little more than board for yourself and family. Build, and we pay you cash for doing it.

The whole summer is your vacation. You should see the LITTLE FARMS—each a miniature country place —four city lots in area—beautifully planted with apples, peaches, pears, grapes, fruits, shrubs and perennials, (100 varieties in all)—planted free of cost—the artistic bungalows, the club house, the auto 'bus and the bathing beach —within 48 minutes' and an 11 cent commutation from Broadway—$10 down and $6 a month. A summer home and an investment.

$150,000 PRIZE OFFER

29 Bungalows have been built. To give Little Farms at Annadale a still further impetus—to clean out our remaining lots quickly—to encourage a still more rapid up-building—we are offering with every unsold Little Farm a maximum bonus of $500 for each bungalow built within the next five years. These bonuses go with the land, are assignable, and aggregate $150,000.

FREE BUNGALOW PLANS

If you are really interested in Little Farms and want to know what bungalows cost, plans and specifications and estimates of half a dozen will be sent to you on application.

DIRECTIONS

Leave ferry boat from upper deck on arrival at St. George, Staten Island. Take train to LITTLE FARMS at Annadale. Hand this coupon to our agent on the train, wearing yellow badge. He will supply your railroad ticket. We do not furnish ferry tickets.

DANIELS OUTLINES A NEWSPAPER NAVY

New Secretary Divides Up Press in Terms of the Fleet at Publishers' Dinner.

HE IS A "MANAGING EDITOR"

Work of the Associated Press Wins Praise—600 Newspapermen from Many States Attend.

The editors and the publishers constituting the Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association met at the Waldorf last night for their annual dinner. More than 600 newspaper men from every corner of the United States were present, and it was nearly midnight before the last speaker had his say.

Charles R. Miller, editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES, was the toastmaster, and the speakers were Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, who, in addition to having the civilian command of the service afloat, owns and, until he entered the Cabinet, edited The Raleigh News and Observer; Congressman Frank L. Greene, publisher of The St. Albans (Vt.) Messenger; Charles H. Grasty of The Baltimore Sun; Col. N. G. Osborn of The New Haven Journal-Courier; Bernard H. Ridder of the New Yorker Staats-Zeitung, and Dr. Charles Alexander Richmond, President of Union College.

Melville E. Stone, General Manager of the Associated Press is ill and was not able to attend the dinner.

In the early part of the dinner Secretary Daniels received a long-distance telephone message from his home in Raleigh, and when he returned to the dining room he informed his friends that misfortune had overtaken him. His newspaper plant had been entirely destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The plant was one of the finest in the South, and of the equipment only one linotype machine was saved. Secretary Daniels said that The News and Observer would appear as usual this morning, the other Raleigh papers having put their plants at his disposal. The Secretary left for Raleigh at midnight.

Secretary Daniels was the principal speaker last night, and when Mr. Miller introduced him his friends of the newspaper world jumped to their feet and cheered him.

Mr. Daniels began his speech with a reference to the appointment of Walter H. Page as Ambassador to the Court of St. James's. Mr. Page was once a newspaper man in Raleigh, N. C., and the Secretary of the Navy told what a fine editor Mr. Page was some twenty-odd years ago. When Mr. Page left Raleigh for the North Mr. Daniels succeeded to the Raleigh business.

"I have for thirty years been continuously engaged in sea service," said Secretary Daniels, "and my present position is my first shore assignment in these years. For that long period I have been in command of a 'gunboat' on the sea of journalism, and a rough, stormy sea it has been at times, as all newspaper men will appreciate. A few weeks ago the Commander in Chief of the American Army and Navy decided that a man who had had thirty years of sea service ought to be detailed on shore, where he could make assignments for the officers of the navy.

The Newspaper Navy.

"During the years that I have been commanding a 'gunboat' on the journalistic high seas, my frend, Melville E. Stone, has been in command of a dreadnought: William Randolph Hearst has been in command of a flotilla of torpedo boats, firing simultaneously from New York, Boston, San Francisco, and Los Angeles, not to speak of points in the interior; Ralph Pulitzer has been on the outposts and with hydroplanes able to drop bombs into the camps of the real enemies of true democracy; Col. Nelson has sought by the proper employment of submarines to blow up the old parties, having as his First Lieutenant the gifted Medill McCormick, while Frank Munsey has been the Paymaster General of this new flotilla of submarines which carried terror into many hearts toward the ides of last November; our venerable friend, Col. Henry Watterson, ranking Rear Admiral of the old Democratic fleet, commanding the battleship Kentucky, and sailing under no orders except those he issues to himself, is the most brilliant and audacious naval officer since the days of John Paul Jones, to whom, in his adventurous spirit and enterprise, he is akin; always gallant, too, on the high seas is our distinguished Admiral Felix Agnus, commanding the cruiser American, who received his sailing orders a quarter of a century ago, and has led the old Republican fleet into many a safe harbor.

"I hope I will be pardoned for saying that we have had two Presidents in the last half century who gave peculiar evidence, from an editorial point of view, for the wise exercise of the high duties of the greatest office in the world. I refer to Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson. I say this, not because of the greatness of the martyred President, nor of the scholarship of our present Executive. I give them this high place in this presence solely because they are the only Presidents who knew exactly where to go when they came to name a Secretary of the Navy. Other Presidents have supposed that the training for this high office was to be found in law or in business or in seafaring. These two Presidents understood the real needs of the navy. They believed in the principl in "Pinafore":

"Stick to your desk and never go to sea

Managing Editor of the Fleet.

"They understood that what is needed was not so much a man who could talk in the sailor vocabulary of starboard and port, (which by the way have been relegated into innocuous desuetude with the full approval of Admiral Dewey and the General Board,) but what really was called for at the head of the navy was a managing editor, one who understood how to make assignments, and to put the right men in the right place at the right time.

"Why do I single out Lincoln and Wilson for my highest praise? It is because each went outside of the field of politics and business to secure an editor as Secretary of the Navy. Arthur also chose a newspaper man in William E. Chandler, but the distinguished New Hampshire Senator had attained more reputation as publicist than as editor, while Gideon Welles and the present incumbent came direct from the sanctum to become managing editors of the Navy.

"Speaking for the Administration at Washington let me say it has no policy of concealment. It appeals not to any group or class, but its appeal is to the whole people of America, and it realizes that it will win their approval only as it carries out its pledges and meets the just needs of all the people who oppose privilege and demand only a fair chance. It invites criticism in all that it does. It wishes to have the searchlight of publicity turned upon all its acts. The men intrusted with power know that the first knowledge of what they are trying to do will come from the press. They have confidence that both because of your devotion to the high ethics of your profession and your patriotism that the public will be given their true motives, and that if there be singleness of purpose and patriotic action, your columns will reflect both the spirit and the performance, the will and the deed of those you have called to be your public servants."

Associated Press's Success.

Mr. Grasty in his speech made the Associated Press his topic. He paid a tribute to Mr. tSone, Mr. Noyes, Victor F. Lawson of The Chicago Daily News and Charles W. Knapp of The St. Louis Republic ,as the four men most responsible for the great success that had marked the life of the Associated Press. Despite misconception on the part of the public Mr. Grasty said the Associated Press was reliable, it was resourceful and Mr. Grasty added "it's as straight as a string."

Mr. Grasty said that the newspapers were not owned by their owners or by any corporations. On the other hand, he said, those in whose names the titles rested were the trustees of the public. He termed the organization the high point in co-operative success. It was a very simple organization, he said, which endeavored to collect the best news at the least price.

Dr. Richmond in his speech said that if Benjamin Franklin had happened to walk into the Waldorf-Astoria last night and been taken from there to see one of the great newspaper plants in New York he would have been interested but not surprised.

"If he read your papers," added Dr. Richmond, "Franklin would undoubtedly have remarked: 'Well, here at least, you have nothing on me.' A newspaper was as much of an educator as a college or university, but he said a commercialized newspaper was a great deal worse than a commercialized college or university. He was glad to admit, however, that there were no greater forces for good in the world than the newspapers. He closed with a tribute to the great American editors of the Greeley period.

Among those at the dinner were Commander Keigh C. Palmer, U. S. N.; Robert Ewing of The New Orleans Daily States, W. L. McLean of The Philadelphia Bulletin, W. H. Cowles of The Spokane Spokesman-Review, Elbert H. Baker of The Cleveland Plain Dealer, Charles W. Knapp of The St. Louis Republic, Condé Hamilton of The New York Tribune, Ralph Pulitzer of The New York World, Hilton U. Brown, William J. Amend, George R. Ball, Joseph Bancroft, Col. Frank Barksdale, Scott C. Bone, Arthur D. Brandeis, Clayton P. Chamberlin, W. B. Curtis, Col. Philip T. Dodge, Herbert F. Gunnison, Herman Ridder, Robert R. McCormick, Bradford Merrill, Norman E. Mack, Morgan J. O'Brien, Robert T. Small, Oswald G. Villard, and Lafe Young, Jr.

PUBLISHERS REORGANIZE.

Association Now a Membership Corporation—Election To-day.

The second day of the twenty-seventh annaul convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association at the Waldorf yesterday was devoted to routine business, listening to addresses by Presidents of various international unions and to the discussion of topics. The most important event was the reorganization of the association, the old organization, which was a business corporation, ceasing to exist and a new association being organized under the membership corporation law of the State of New York. A new constitution and new by-laws were adopted, and this afternoon new officers will be elected.

At the morning session, the reports of the special standing committee and of the committee on educational fund were read, and the members listened to addresses by Jams J. Freel, President of the International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union and James T. Lynch, President of the International Typographical Union, who both spoke enthusiastically of the cordial relations existing between newspaper publishers and labor.

In the afternoon the session was addressed by Nathan Woll, President of the International Photo-Engravers' Union, after which there followed an informal discussion of labor and miscellaneous topics. Question 23, reading: "Should not the association provide for a class A and class B membership to take in a larger number of the smaller dailies throughout the United States?" was referred to a special committee of five with instructions to report to the Board of Directors. The committee consists of John T. Mack, Louis H. Miner, Frederick H. Stevens, Milo W. Whittaker, and E. P. Adler.

The adjourned annaul meeting of stockholders will continue this morning. The discussion of miscellaneous topics will also be continued, and paper topics will be taken up. With the election of officers at the afternoon session and the winding up of unfinished business, the convention will come to a close.

HENRY A. ROSS TO WED.

Brother of Charlie Ross, Who Was Kidnapped in 1874.

Mrs. R. Swain Gifford of Brookline, Mass., formerly of New York, is announcing to-day the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jessie Lloyd Gifford, to Henry A. Ross, eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Christian K. Ross of Philadelphia, Penn., and a brother of Charlie Ross, who was kidnapped thirty-eight years ago, and whose fate has never been learned. Miss Gifford's father was the late R. Swain Gifford, the famous American landscape and marine painter. No date has been set for the wedding.

What became of Charlie Ross is a question that remains unanswered, and his disappearance on July 1, 1874, while playing with his brother near their home in Philadelphia, became the most famous mystery of its kind in this country. He was 4 years old at the time of his abduction, when the two men drove up in a buggy and asked the boys to take a ride. The older boy was put out of the buggy soon afterward, and that was the last he saw of his brother.

Until the day of her death in 1912 Mrs. Ross retained a lingering hope that she might find out what became of her son. She died in her seventy-ninth year, and devoted her life to charities in which she was active even at that advanced age.

RAID IN HOTEL SOUTHERN.

Poolroom Man's Profits $5,000 a Day, Says Inspector Dwyer.

Inspector Dwyer and a detail of his detectives made a raid last night in the Hotel Southern, 203 West Fifty-fourth Street. After they smashed in the doors leading to a four-room apartment, which they believe was being used as a poolroom, they confiscated two telephones, racing sheets, and entry cards. There were several men in the apartment at the time, but the man Inspector Dwyer was looking for with a warrant, issued by Chief Magistrate McAdoo, was not there. The men were ordered from the rooms and a patrolman placed on guard.

The Inspector and his men entered the elevator without revealing their business and alighted at the ninth floor. Under the overcoats of the detectives were concealed axes. The Inspector rapped at the door for admission, and when this was denied the doors were smashed in. Two of the rooms, the police say, were fitted up as a poolroom, while the other two were used as sleeping apartments.

According to Inspector Dwyer, the place was only recently opened, and nothing but big bets were accepted. He estimated the proprietor's profits as exceeding $5,000 a day.

RUSHES CASH TO SHIP.

Young Sculptor Takes It and Sails Away to Marry.

A few moments before the White Star liner Adriatic sailed yesterday at noon for Liverpool a tall young man ran up the gangplank, and breathlessly handed a wallet to another young man on board, who ran to meet him.

"Here's the money," he said.

Then the whistle blew and the gangplank was withdrawn on to the pier.

The messenger who brought the money explained after the ship had sailed that the man he had given it to was his brother, Ernest Avery, a sculptor of Chicago, who was going to England in answer to a cable from a Miss Edith Chapman of Sunderland, England, telling him if he wanted to marry her he would have to cross the Atlantic to her home. Fred Avery, the brother, who is an artist and lives at 67 Clarkson Street, New York, said that his brother had come on from Chicago to New York on a visit, and made up his mind to sail on the Adriatic only that morning.

55-STORY BUILDING OPENS ON A FLASH

Woolworth Skyscraper Lights Up and Big Dinner Starts on Signal from White House.

CASS GILBERT HONORED

F. Hopkinson Smith Compliments F. W. Woolworth, Who Began Life as a Farmer's Boy.

President Wilson, from the White House in Washington, gave the signal for the formal opening of the new Woolworth Building last night, the tallest structure in the world, with the one exception of the Eiffel Tower in Paris. At 7:29, when the 900 guests who had been invited by the owner, Frank W. Woolworth, to a dinner in honor of the architect, Cass Gilbert, were seated at the tables on the twenty-seventh floor, a telegrapher of the Western Union, stationed there, notified the operator in the White House that all was ready for the President to press the button. One minute later President Wilson touched the instrument, closing the circuit, which caused a bell to ring in the banquet hall and in the engine room, thirty stories below, and immediately and for the first time lights flashed from every floor of the fifty-five stories, from the sub-basement, 37 feet below the street level, to the top of the tower, 792 feet above the street.

Professional and business men, the arts, science, and literature, were represented in the gathering to make notable an enterprise costing $13,500,000, and having its beginning in the investment of a few hundred dollars, all the outcome of a 5 and 10 cent trade.

A special kitchen and service had been installed for the occasion. It was probably the highest skyscraper dinner ever held in the world. Among the speakers, who were seated at the Park Place and Broadway corner, were F. Hopkinson Smith, the novelist, who presided as toastmaster; Frank W. Woolworth, the owner of the building; Cass Gilbert, the architect; Louis J. Horowitz, the builder; William Winter, the veteran writer and dramatic critic, and Patrick Francis Murphy. After the President had pressed the button, a toast was drunk to him, and an orchestra played the "Star-Spangled Banner."

F. Hopkinson Smith, speaking for American enterprise, genius, and skill, referred to the words spoken of the late J. Pierpont Morgan:

"He established a world-wide belief in the integrity of the American character, an example of which he gave in his own life." Of the success of Frank W. Woolworth Mr. Smith said: "He was a poor farmer's boy, with no capital and no influential friends, and worked from twelve to fourteen hours a day. From this humble beginning he has built this wonderful monument, one so high that when you attempt to gaze to the top with the sun shining the roof of your mouth will become sunburnt. This is the work of a plain farmer's boy, an everlasting example to the American youth."

Mr. Woolworth described Cass Gilbert's work as that of one of the greatest architects in the world. Mr. Woolworth introduced his first employers, Moore & Smith of Watertown, N. Y., who, he said, had taught him his first and best business principles when he began with them as a clerk in a country store. They had to rise and bow their acknowledgments of the applause.

"They helped to make this building possible," he said. "The business from which this building has grown began with a five-cent piece. When I came here in July, 1886, my first account was opened with what is now the Irving National Bank, and the account was so small that they hesitated to take it, although I was well introduced. I soon became a director in that bank, and through the help of that institution I was induced to erect this building. This bank was also one of the factors which made this building possible."

The bank will be one of its chief tenants.

"There has been much speculation as to the height of the building. When Cass Gilbert asked how high the building could go, I told him about 750 feet. He wanted to know if that was the limit. I told him it was the minimum. When I returned from Europe last Summer and asked how high he had made it, he replied:

"'I can't tell within a few inches, but it is about 787 feet.' Well, I put a corps of engineers to work measuring it, and they found that the Park Place corner to the top of the tower was 791 feet and ½ inch; the Barclay Street corner is 792 feet; Broadway front, 791.6; Park Place entrance, 792.3½, and the Barclay Street entrance, 793.5, making an average of 792.1. It is 947 feet above sea level at high tide. This structure is due to the efforts of Cass Gilbert, who has brought into commercialism the arts of beauty."

Cass Gilbert, referring to the engineers' measurements of the building, said: "The reports of those engineers amuse me very much. If they are correct in their measurements the building must be lopsided and before I signed a last certificate for payment the builders should be made to straighten it up. But, seriously, there was no detail of this building that did not have Mr. Woolworth's attention. It is the work of many men and represents the loyal co-operation of many minds, and in accepting this honor I do it for them as well as myself.

"This building and the success of its owner shows that this is the land of equal opportunities; that a man may start with nothing and accomplish everything. It is not true that strife and unrest is the way to achieve, but that man prospers by the good old virtues—thrift, industry, and honesty. Our object was to make the building beautiful without losing any feature of usefulness. I believe that there is vitality enough in our art to meet the modern commercial needs, combining the practical with beauty and art.

"There was no financing of this building. Mr. Woolworth has paid for it all himself as he went along. His bankers told me that this building was unique here and probably so throughout the country, for it stands to-day without a mortgage on it or a dollar of indebtedness."

Hotel Manager Finds Wife Dead.

Mrs. Virginia Palmer, 42 years old, of 215 Manhattan Avenue, wife of the manager of the Hotel McAlpin, was found dead in her apartment at 9:30 o'clock last night by her husband. Dr. Archibold Beatty of the same address was summoned, and said that death was due to heart failure. Mr. Palmer said that he had spoken to his wife on the telephone a few hours before, and she had seemed to be in good spirts and feeling well.

Costly Thy Habit

It is good economy to spend as much for your suit "as thy purse will buy." If you will pay $30.00 you should demand absolutely correct style, such as the best dressed men are wearing to-day; not what they wore last year.

We offer you in our "Dover," with its straight shoulders free from padding and its soft rolling lapels, a model that is in all details a product of the finest tailoring art,—extreme but not freakish.

The Test of Value

THE test of value lies in comparison—and it is because we know that our Hart, Schaffner & Marx Clothes offer better values than you can find elsewhere that we are so keen to have you make comparisons.

So compare our clothes with others—

We'll send them to your home if you wish, so that you may judge them at your leisure. And we'll send for them when you are through. We are positive that you will say, "Yes, Wallach H., S. & M. Clothes are surely the greatest values ever."

At $18, $20, $22.50 and $25 we offer values that are really most extraordinary, for at those prices we specialize.

At $30, $35, $40 and $50 our clothes actually equal those custom made at double our prices. Just come and see.

Clothes from Maker to Wearer

Did You Read the Confession?
—Moe Levy.

Did you investigate my $15 garments? Did you compare them with the $25 clothes offered by the best ready-made clothiers? If you haven't, you are missing a good thing.

Last week I confessed that at the very beginning of this season I bought at retail a suit of clothes from the best style creators and retailers in the country. I paid $25 in cash for each suit—I chose the best they had to offer. Then I went to work and combined in my clothes all their points of superiority. I used the same materials, the same styles and the same kind of tailoring. But by reason of my low rental and because I manufactured these garments myself I am selling them at $15.

$25 Guaranteed Suits at $15

If you haven't verified my statements—if you haven't compared my values—and if you are ready to buy clothes—don't throw away a $10 bill by buying from a regular retailer. Come here first, look my offerings over and I'm sure you'll be surprised and satisfied.

The fabrics are everything that could possibly be desired for Spring and Summer. There's a wide choice in all materials, cheviots, serges, cashmeres, worsteds. There are shepherd plaids, club checks, pin checks, and pencil stripes in black and white, blue and white, and brown and gold. Also a fine assortment of Cambridge grays and Oxford blues, in fact, everything and anything that's up to date will be found here.

You can have the English model with the soft rolling lapels and patch pockets,—you can have any of the Broadway swagger ideas of style,—or, if you prefer, you can have garments of a more conservative nature. They're all here, and then some.

Investigate these frank statements. You can't go wrong by a comparison. That's all I ask. Do it today. Save that ten dollars on any suit you buy.
